CITY WILL PRAY FOR HER BRAVE SONS AT FRONT

War Reaches Into Every Block.

Prayers for the safety of Chicagoans participating in the war thruout the world will go up from every church in the city today as parents and relatives of soldiers and sailors crowd the pews to ask divine protection for their loved ones.

Today's services will be the first regular Sunday services held since the invasion of France began. The extent of the church attendance may be judged by the fact that the average residential block in Chicago has sent seven men or women into the army or navy.

Many Across Atlantic.

Of this number, approximately one soldier or sailor from each four block area was in England, awaiting invasion day. Suburban blocks display an average of eight service stars per block.

Reporters visiting at random thruout Chicagoland found that five residents from almost any block of the Hyde Park area are in the army or navy. Ten residents from each block of the 55th st. and Ashland av. section are in service and eight persons from each block of the Burling st. and Diversey pkwy. area are in uniform.

Southwest suburban Flossmoor and Homewood average a service list of almost 10 per cent of their populations. Of the 65,000 residents in north suburban Evanston, 7,358 men and women have donned uniform. La Grange, a western suburb, reports 25 per cent of a 10,000 population in the army or navy.

Two with Air Forces.

Mr. and Mrs. William Berry, 17945 Harwood av., Homewood, have double personal reasons for praying for the success of the invasion and the safety of American fighters engaged in the great drive. Their sons, Staff Sgt. Raymond Berry and Sgt. Richard Berry, both army air forces technicians, are stationed in England. Mrs. Berry, an active worker in the Homewood surgical dressings unit, plans to devote even more time to the work of folding dressings which are badly needed in the treatment of wounded fighters.

"I will go to church and pray for the safety of my son and all his buddies," declared Mrs. Melinda Goodwin, 711 W. Diversey pkwy., whose son, Sgt. Cleve E. Goodwin, 24, has served with the ordnance department of the army in England since last October. The sergeant's wife, Rose, lives in Indianapolis, Ind.

Veteran of 3 Invasions.

If Charles Koeller, 23, chief carpenter's mate, is engaged in the liberation of France, the coast guardsman will have four invasions to his credit, it was reported by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Koeller, 2828 N. Burling st. He participated in the invasions of North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, and now is stationed in England. Mrs. Koeller would like to attend church today, particularly since "it is children's day," but will be unable to do so because she is ill. She said she will pray at home for the success of the invasion and her daughter, Jacqueline, will represent her at church.

Flight Lt. Edward Gimbel, 27, of the royal Canadian air forces, had 81 missions to his credit when he visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gimbel, 2845 N. Burling st., in September. He probably has passed the 100 mark because he "undoubtedly is pretty busy flying from England during the invasion," his mother said. Mrs. Gimbel will spend the day in prayer for the safety of American fighters. Her aviator son holds the distinguished flying cross.

From Factory to Army.

Sgt. Robert Stern, 30, was a factory supervisor before he entered the army in December, 1942, his mother, Mrs. E. S. Stern, 722 Oakdale av., said yesterday. Today he is stationed in England and his mother will pray for the success of the invasion and the "complete defeat of the Nazis."

Radio invasion reports occupy most of the time of Mr. and Mrs.

ROME PRICES GO UP; BREAKFAST $3 AND WINE $2

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 10.—With the arrival of the American troops in Rome, the Italian people soon discovered that the lira is now worth only 1 cent instead of about 5 cents as in the past, and immediately scaled their prices upward.

For instance, a good room at a first class hotel which rented in the past for 200 lire per day now rents for 1,000 lire.

In a restaurant, where many officers and correspondents eat, breakfast with ham and eggs cost 300 lire. Lunch and dinner each cost about 500 lire without wine. Wine is priced from 200 lire a bottle. Water is kept mostly for washing and shaving and is scarce at the table. Americans are not complaining about having to drink frascati and chianti instead.

AMG [allied military government] as yet has made no attempt to control these hotel and restaurant prices, saying that these establishments are entitled to charge for their service. But inquiries are being launched to ascertain if the restaurants are receiving food thru the black market.

Excellent cameras, which could be bought for about $30 when we entered Rome, now are selling for as high as $300. Swiss watches, procurable last Monday for $30, now are available at five times that figure. AMG is not interested in these price rises, as cameras and watches are classified as luxury items.

Andrea Sama stopped correspondents on the street until he found one from Chicago. Andrea wanted to send regards to his brother, Dominic Sama, 1113 Fillmore st., Chicago, if Dominic still remembers him. They haven't seen each other for 32 years.

GI's stopped in front of the obelisk on Via Del Mare. This particular pile was brought here by Mussolini from Addis Ababa. "I guess that will be sent home to Hailie Selassie pretty soon," one soldier remarked.

First Lt. John Senseney, St. Louis, Mo., was assigned to take over one hotel for American officers. In the basement he found five Italian soldiers armed with rifles. "They had been helping the Germans and had the idea for a moment or two of causing some trouble," Senseney said. "I yelled at them to come out. And brother, thy did, dropping their rifles and holding up their hands and crying, 'Amici, amici.'"

The American Express company was busy repainting its signs. During German occupation the company had to style itself "Americano Expresso." It can use English now.

Nazi Glider Bomb Hit in Midair and Exploded

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 10.—It took an ordinary United States merchant ship to debunk the terror of the German glider bomb which wrought so much havoc on allied shipping at Salerno. Today, over the channel, one was being steered by radio control directly at the merchantman. One of the gunners scored a direct hit and exploded it in midair.

WOODEN BULLET USED BY NAZIS IN FRANCE —AND IT KILLS YANKS

ABOARD ADM. HALL'S FLAGSHIP, June 9 [Delayed.]—(AP).—Germans are using wooden bullets against the Americans. Rangers today found 20 millimeter and infantry rifle ammunition with slugs hollowed out of wood fitted into the usual metal cartridge cases.

They said some of their men had been killed by them. The wooden bullets splinter and make nasty wounds, altho their light weight increases inaccuracy at long ranges. They probably are accurate up to 100 yards or so, Rangers said.

Yank Pilots Tell How Ten Planes Sank 4 Jap Warships

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADVANCED NEW GUINEA AIR BASE, June 10.—"Magnificently done," Gen. MacArthur today said to the heroic men who with only 10 Mitchell bombers hunted out, found, and attacked six destroyers and a cruiser, sinking four destroyers.

Lt. W. D. Walters.

Lt. Machnikowsky.

Seven of the 10 planes came home damaged and one carried a navigator whose leg was blown off. Three of the planes were lost.

Maj. Gen. E. C. Whitehead, deputy commander of the 5th air force, said the attack was "one of the finest military feats of the war."

Lt. Ronald E. Machnikowski, 1125 Dodge av., Evanston, Ill., was pilot of one plane and Lt. William D. Walters, 3526 62d st., Chicago, was navigator on another. Both men were unhurt.

Warships Scatter.

The men realized the mission was most difficult. As they crawled into the planes one pilot said "if we find those ships I'll be cashing in my chips." His premonition was correct. His plane lost a wing and crashed in the sea.

"We found the task force northwest of Manokwari," said Maj. W. B. Smith, Warrensburg, Mo., bombardier in one of the B-25s. "We had planned to pattern the bombs from a high altitude, but there was overcast at 2,000 feet, and as soon as the warships saw us they scattered.

"Two by two the planes peeled off. As we came in the cruiser was lined up with three destroyers on the right and a fourth on the left.

Commander's Plane Lost.

"The squadron commander took the cruiser, but even as he approached the commander's wingman was hit and the plane blew up. The commander continued straight into the heaviest ack-ack you can imagine. His plane burst into flames just before it crossed the cruiser at mast height and smacked into the water.

"I don't think he ever got to drop his bombs, but he saved the rest of us by diverting the cruiser's fire. I think he did it deliberately to help the rest of us.

"Two by two the rest of us divided up the six destroyers. Lt. Westley Strawn of Clarendon, Tex., and his wingman, Machnikowski, picked one on the right. Both dropped bombs squarely, and the destroyer blew up.

Ship Just a Shadow.

"Lt. Archie Trantham, Cape Girardeau, Mo., and his wingman, Walters, dived onto the leading destroyer, flanking the cruiser to the left. He did the neatest bombing job you ever saw. The destroyer sank almost at once. It was already under by the time the planes turned away. By the time the men got a chance to look the ship was just a shadow showing up thru the clear water.

"The plane in which I was riding with Lt. Glenn Pruitt of Tracy, Cal., and another plane piloted by Lt. Al Wolfram, Pontiac, Mich., took on the destroyer second in line. Al's bombs were near misses, but a thousand pounder from our plane hit it squarely.

"The last two planes headed for the fourth destroyer. The lead plane lost a wing and fell into the sea. His wingman, Lt. Fred E. Rimmer, Knoxville, Tenn., kept right on. The cruiser and remaining destroyer concentrated their fire on him. A 40 mm. shell hit the plane in the nose and blew the navigator's leg off, but even this didn't stop the plane. Barley skimming the masts, it dropped its bombs. There was one hell of a fire.

Two Destroyers Burn.

"Pruitt took over command of the remaining planes as we circled to form for our run home. We could see two destroyers burning furiously. Scouting later showed they sank. I believe, however, the cruiser was unhurt.

"As we approached an emergency field a Jap Zero played a dirty trick on us. He called our base and in English reported seven Jap bombers were coming in. As a result we were welcomed by a burst of our own ack-ack, but the men identified us in time and we didn't pick up any more holes.

"All in all, it was a quiet day."

'One Man Army' Has to Give Up to His Wounds

ON THE NORMANDY BEACH, June 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Pvt. Harry W. Roberts of Charleroi, Pa., finally had to stop fighting and let himself be taken to England for medical treatment, but his fellow rangers insisted tonight that he is another of those "one man army" guys. A shell splinter tore into his neck and that seemed to annoy him, because in the next couple of days he destroyed two machine gun emplacements with grenades, manned a Vickers gun, and finally stole a mortar from the Germans.

40 VILLAGES CAPTURED AS AMERICANS ADVANCE ACROSS NORMAN PENINSULA

Chicagoan Carries His Signal Base to Shore by Hand.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 9 [Delayed].—Virtually the only officer successful in getting all hand carried signal equipment ashore was Lt. Robert C. Schoen of 58 W. 74th st., Chicago, who landed with a division signal detachment while the beach was under fire.

He lost one man killed and a few wounded, but with the help of others he dug into the side of an 18 foot anti-tank ditch and then moved in a few more yards to set up the first advance command post beside a knocked out pillbox.

From there he supervised the dangerous work of getting wire laid by hand to all the other units.

Talk Saves Yanks' Lives.

Captured nine and one-half hours after hitting the beach in the first assault wave, two young American riflemen talked themselves out of execution. Then, 14 hours later, they took the surrender of 52 Germans, all that survived from their company after it had been battered by naval guns and beaten by American infantry.

This is their story as told me yesterday when we were back in our lines on the beach. The soldiers were Pvt. Lawrence Milander of Fairfax, Minn., and Pvt. Victor Odell of Baltimore, Md. A third member of their patrol was slightly wounded and was evacuated with the German wounded when captured.

"Some of our sections were drowned when their boat was swamped coming in," said Milander, "but we landed on the far left flank, reorganized and pushed on to take our second objective—the crest of a bluff. We could see that the Heinies seemed to be pulling back, so our lieutenant ordered us to patrol toward the town."

Three Hold Off Platoon.

Those two sentences covered a long time, while their outfit was chewed to pieces on the beaches and fighting up the cliff.

"Outside the town we were slipping thru hedgerows when Odell spotted the Jerries," Milander continued. "At first, because of their bluish helmets, we thought they were British, but we soon learned all right.

"There was more than a platoon, but the three of us held them off with rifles and anti-tank grenades from 11 until 4, when our buddy was wounded. Then they surrounded us and we were prisoners."

The men were kept in the company command post in a bomb proof shelter in the town until 7 o'clock, when the Germans tried to evacuate. But the naval shells and advance American patrols kept them hemmed in.

Some Nazis from Russia.

"Milander speaks some German and he did all the talking for us," said Odell. "The younger ones thought we were British Commandos, altho the tough older non-

TWO CHICAGOANS IN FIRST MEDICAL UNIT FLOWN FROM FRANCE

LONDON, June 10 (AP).—Five American nurses, the first allied women to fly into the zone of operations, formed part of an evacuation unit which landed on an improvised air strip on Cherbourg peninsula and sent back three plane loads of wounded—the first flown from France.

After an hour and a half on French soil they returned to Britain carrying bouquets of red poppies picked on the battlefields. Seven wounded prisoners, one a Japanese in a German uniform, were among those flown back.

Mustangs circled overhead to ward off enemy aircraft when the nurses, doctors, and six enlisted medical technicians landed. Among the latter were Louis Bergantino and Wilfird C. Brand of Chicago.

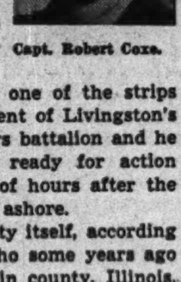
Allied Raiders Flying from 3 French Bases

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE ALLIED FLEET OFF FRANCE, June 10.—Lt. Col. John J. Livingston of Cedar Hill, Mo., has completed the simple little task he had laid out for D-day—and as a result allied planes today were flying from three landing strips in France for the first time since 1940.



Capt. Robert Coxe.

Preparation of one of the strips was the assignment of Livingston's aviation engineers battalion and he had his project ready for action within a couple of hours after the equipment went ashore.

It was simplicity itself, according to Livingston, who some years ago managed a Hardin county, Illinois, fluorspar mine. All Livingston and his boys had to do, besides fighting off attacks, was to knock down walls and trees, fill up ditches, uproot shrubs and hedges, and grade the earth—all with bulldozers.

Built Fields Behind Lines.

Livingston is a veteran of Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily, Italy, and Sardinia, where he helped build several hundred landing strips, including some built secretly behind German lines.

Livingston's outfit included a surgeon, a dentist, a chaplain, and a mess staff headed by Capt. Raymond N. Carlan of Rockford, Ill. Other midwesterners in the outfit are:

Lt. Howard F. Kelly, Chicago; Capt. Nicholas Casciato, Chicago; Maj. Gerald Homann, Mattoon, Ill.; Capt. Robert Coxe, 2111 Morse av., Chicago; 2d Lt. John J. Kohler, Minneapolis; Lt. Gideon Statz, Gary, Ind.; Lt. Walter Renner, Aurora, Ill., and Lt. John Frantz, Ann Arbor, Mich.

[Coxe, 32, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Coxe of 7462 N. Ashland av. His wife, the former Helena Willard of Evanston, lives at 226 13th av. N. E., St. Petersburg, Fla.]

In Range of Enemy Guns.

All three of the new fields, including Livingston's, are in the heart of newly won territory in range of enemy artillery. The first 9th air force planes to use them were C-47 transports which ferried wounded allied and German soldiers back to Britain. Fighters patrolling the beachhead also refuelled and armed there.

The 9th air force set up a headquarters in France to facilitate the building of more fighter bases.

Pound Nazis in Normandy.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 11 [Sunday]—(AP).—Clearing weather yesterday enabled swarms of allied planes of all types to blast targets on and behind the Normandy invasion front.

Liberators dumped heavy loads of explosives behind the battle zone in Normandy and Brittany and Marauder medium bombers made three attacks.

Bradley's Air Borne Troops Lead in Push on Port.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 11 (Sunday)—(AP).—The Vichy radio reported last night that allied warships had attacked Toulon, great French naval base on the Mediterranean. The broadcast claimed German coastal batteries had sunk one "gunboat." No landings were reported.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, June 11 (Sunday).—American troops, in a day of continued progress and fierce fighting, yesterday drove closer to the prize port of Cherbourg and expanded their front a third of the way across the Normandy peninsula.

By German admission, the Yanks were near Montebourg, only 15 miles southeast of Cherbourg. The Vichy radio reported the Americans were aiming for Volognes, 10 miles from the big port.

Open New Drive.

Isigny, a small but important port, and Trevieres, a town five miles from the invasion coast, were won by the forces of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, whose 82d and 101st air borne divisions spearheaded the drive against the continent.

Elements of the American 1st and 29th divisions surged forward all along the front east of the Vire river in their drives to capture Trevieres and Isigny. These advances gave the Yanks a more solid hold on the beachhead and pushed the Germans far enough from the beach as almost to remove the landing area from medium artillery range. Patrols also made contact with beachhead forces west of the Vire.

Capture 40 Villages.

More than 40 villages were taken in this new drive which began from the beachhead perimeter more than six miles inland and extended the American lines almost due west of the British at Bayeux.

At Carentan, midpoint of the American front and at the base of the Cherbourg peninsula, stiff resistance by Nazis who are being attacked from two sides, was being encountered. In this area the Germans have flooded a large section in an apparent attempt to slow up the Yank drive to seal off the peninsula and its great port.

Fierce Fighting at Caen.

At Caen, in the British-Canadian sector to the east, severe fighting was going on with strong German armored units, including the 12th S. S. and 41st Panzer divisions and the 716th and 352d infantry divisions.

A section northeast of this front also has been flooded by the Germans. It is in this area of the invasion line that the Germans are striking back the hardest. At Bayeux, 15 miles west of Developments yesterday in the fighting for the Cherbourg peninsula.

Caen, the Germans admitted, however, that the British had made news gains to the south.

Air Force Back in Action.

Under cover of allied planes now striking in improved weather after a 15 hour lull, from air fields in France for the first time since 1940, and backed by a continuous flow of new forces and supplies across the Channel, the allied armies were making "progress along the whole of the beachhead," a headquarters announcement shortly before midnight said.

The United States 9th air force and the 1st R. A. F. group have set up headquarters in France. The 9th engineering command, a new unit of engineers trained and armed for combat and construction of advanced air fields, moved onto the beachheads in the first four hours of the invasion and established three air strips. The R. A. F. has two emergency fields and one refueling and rearming strip in operation. Spitfires landed on these fields, refueled and took off again to join allied air forces blasting enemy gun positions, tank and troop concentrations in a wide area.

From the allied gains, it appeared two threats were being mounted against Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's position in Normandy. One was seen as toward Cherbourg and the other—possibly of a diversive nature—was toward Rouen. To meet these dangers, Rommel has attempted to seal off the Cherbourg drive by massing heavy forces at Volognes while he endeavors to block the drive toward Rouen with concentrations of men and armor east of the Orne river.

With more than 5,000 German prisoners now taken, Gen. Montgomery, allied ground commander, has established advance headquarters in France and has visited the troops in the front lines. He was reported well satisfied with developments.

The 8th and 9th United States air forces flew nearly 2,000 sorties during the day in their battering of German positions thruout Normandy and beyond. German troops and tanks moving up to the battle area were prime targets for these planes, some of which loosed their explosives from a height of only 400 feet.

Destroy 16 Nazi Planes.

There was German fighter opposition, but the Nazis still avoided a sky showdown. The two United States forces listed 16 German planes destroyed, while 26 American craft were missing.

At sea an allied cordon of warships protected both sides of the channel sea lane to the beaches. Friday night light allied forces chased off and damaged a number of Nazi E-boats and also dispersed enemy patrol ships near Jersey Island. An allied convoy beat off a German glider bombing attack without damage to itself. One enemy glider bomber was shot down by the gun crew on the United States merchantman J. B. Weaver.

Two Forces 13 Miles Apart.

The Germans previously had reported the dropping of American parachutists in the Lessay and Coutances areas on the western side of the peninsula. Lessay is only 13 miles beyond United States spearheads cutting across the peninsula from the east.

The 35 mile American front now extends westward from a point east of captured Trevieres, on the road to captured Bayeux and embattled Caen, thru fallen Isigny to a point near Carentan. It skirts that town, where heavy fighting is going on, and runs northwestward thru fallen Ste. Mere Eglise to a point near Montebourg.

All these points, with the exception of Trevieres, are on highway 13, the main road leading to Paris, 117 miles east of Caen. Trevieres, representing a five mile inland strike, is about two miles beyond the highway.

The lopping off of additional segments of the Paris-Cherbourg main rail line apparently occurred south and southwest of Ste. Mere Eglise, where the railway lies about two miles beyond the highway.

The Germans used the old French dike system to inundate big sections of the lowlands but Berlin nevertheless said the Americans were attacking thru the water on both sides of Carentan, and described the assault as a major one.

Carentan Key to Dikes.

Carentan itself is the key to much of the dike system, since a whole network of rivers draining the middle Cherbourg peninsula pour thru there into the Bay of Seine. The locks controling the dike system are at the tiny village of Hautdyck, just on the northern outskirts of Carentan.

Floodgates controling a smaller area east of Carentan had been opened by the Germans just before the Americans captured Isigny, a small inland port which can handle boats not drawing more than 13 feet. With Isigny's capture American engineers can drain off that area soon.

This is the general area where William the Conqueror launched his 1066 invasion of England, and Gen. Eisenhower's troops now are reversing the operation.

INVASION ZONE FAVORABLE TO A MOBILE WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 10.—From the tip of the Chebourg peninsula to the river Seine there are two good ports —Cherbourg and Caen. Cherbourg has a good harbor and Caen is linked to the sea by a 10 mile canal.

In general, the peninsula is favorable to mobile maneuvers. The rivers are small, the hills low, and the roads many. In the flat expanses of the peninsula there are large marshes. Parallel to the sea and from 15 to 20 miles inland are hills partly covered with forest. Some of the woods are an obstacle to large tanks and others could be used for the secret assembly of tank forces.

Two main railways run southward from Cherbourg. They connect with the two main eastward routes for Paris. The Americans have cut one southward route at Ste. Mere Eglise and the other, by the way of Coutances, remains open. The British have cut one of the eastward routes at Bayeux, and the other, running thru Granville, remains open.

SECRET VISITS TO NORMANDY BY TROOPS BARED

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 10 (AP).—Soldier-scientists landing secretly months ago on the beaches of Normandy paved the way for invasion troops, headquarters disclosed today.

Digging thru old French geology books the scientists discovered that proposed invasion beaches which appeared sandy and well suited really had clay underneath which would bog down heavy equipment.

So the soldier-scientists were sent over in darkness and crawled on their stomachs for miles along the beaches making borings which proved the old books right.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 10 (AP).—Allied war bulletin No. 10, issued tonight, said:

"Allied progress continues along the whole of the beachhead. Trevieres is in our hands.

"On the eastern sector, severe fighting is in progress against strong enemy armored forces. In the Cherbourg peninsula, our advanced patrols are west of the main railway in several places. In the Carentan sector, heavy fighting continues.

"Intensive air operations in support of our ground and naval forces were resumed this morning in better weather.

"Heavy bombers attacked enemy air fields in Brittany and Normandy. Their fighter escort remained in the zone of operations strafing enemy armor and transport. Other fighters attacked similar targets over a wide area.

"Our medium bombers and their fighter escorts twice attacked targets close behind the enemy. These included road and rail transport, troop and tank concentrations, bridges, and communication centers.

"Widespread air cover was maintained over our beaches and the channel.

"Few enemy fighters were seen but flak was heavy at many points. According to reports so far received three enemy aircraft have been destroyed. Seven of our fighters are missing.

"Further troop carrying and support operations to our forward formations were completed during the morning.

"Allied warships have maintained their activity on the eastern and western flanks of the assault area in support of our ground forces.

"Last night enemy E-boats operated on the west of the assault area. They were intercepted by light coastal forces under the command of Lt. Collins and a number of brief engagements ensued.

"Enemy patrol vessels heading toward the assault area this morning were attacked off Jersey by our coastal air craft which also dispersed a cluster of E-boats.

"An unsuccessful attack was made by enemy air craft on an allied merchant convoy. One of the enemy was destroyed by gun fire from H. M. S. Wanderer [Lt. Comdr. R. D. Whinney, R. N.]. There was no damage to the convoy or its escort."

GERMAN STATEMENT

LONDON, June 10 (AP).—The German high command bulletin recorded from a Berlin broadcast today said:

"Fighting in the enemy bridgehead in Normandy is continually increasing in intensity, since both sides are throwing fresh forces into action.

"An attempt made by the enemy to land at Trouville, immediately south of the mouth of the Seine, collapsed in the fire of our coastal batteries, which inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. One enemy warship was sunk and the others forced to withdraw.

"Our mopping up operations on the eastern bank of the Orne are making good progress. Enemy counter-attacks against Touffreville have failed.

"Heavy tank fighting is continuing in the area of Caen and Bayeux. The enemy, after an embittered struggle, succeeded there in pushing back our rear guard lines, behind which our reserves are being deployed.

"Embittered fighting is in progress on the Cherbourg peninsula. Our troops are giving an excellent account of themselves against strong enemy forces and against superior enemy air forces.

"Along the entire front many German nests of resistance and fortified points, encircled by the enemy, are holding their own in stubborn fighting. Within the first three days more than 200 enemy tanks were destroyed and several thousand prisoners taken.

INVASION DRIVE FRUIT OF 2 YEARS' ALLIED PLANNING

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

The first record of a serious intention to undertake an invasion of France appears to have been in the first half of 1942. Who first planned it is not yet known. A very active promoter of the invasion was Russia, for whom it was the second front.

In May of that year Russia sent its foreign commissar, Molotov, first to London to see what he could do to get the second front started that year. He was sympathetically received. The idea seemed so good that the British government on June 8, 1942, broadcast an appeal to the French people to get away from their coasts, and to lose no time in doing it, as operations in the French coastal areas were coming.

Africa Drive Put First.

Molotov thereupon flew on to Washington. Washington wasn't so enthusiastic about the idea. The White House on June 11 issued a statement that in the course of conversations [presumably between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Molotov], a full understanding had been reached as to the urgent task of creating a second front in 1942.

From what the Russian press subsequently published, the Russians construed the American statement to mean that the second front would be started in 1942.

Prime Minister Churchill arrived later in June in Washington. The second front was then thoroly discussed. President Roosevelt, at his press conference of Nov. 7, 1942, stated that he and Mr. Churchill had discussed the second front during the June visit. After receipt of a report from the combined chiefs of staffs board, the question had resolved itself into whether the invasion of France should occur in 1943, not 1942, or whether in lieu thereof there should be an invasion of northwest Africa. The decision was in favor of northwest Africa. This put off the invasion of France until 1944. The reason for the delay appears to have been the need to provide a perfectly astounding quantity of men, weapons, and implements of war before undertaking the venture.

Full Preparations Made.

The project was reviewed at the Quebec conference on Aug. 31, 1943, Mr. Churchill stated that he was looking forward to British and American armies crossing the channel, but that this would not be done until there was a good prospect of continuing success.

Altho the record is by no means complete, it seems that the chiefs of staffs board resisted all pressure to become involved in a second front until after it was fully prepared to go thru with the undertaking.

Two years have passed. All preparations have been made and the invasion of west Europe has started. To be successful it must, as Mr. Churchill stated, keep on moving. Not necessarily at every place of what will eventually be a much larger area than that now involved. But "on to Berlin" is the real job.

Cherbourg First Goal.

The immediate objective of the landing in Normandy appears to be the capture of Cherbourg. This excellent port would make a first class base for the invaders. Ships could enter its harbor and discharge passengers and cargo at any time. When troops and supplies are landed over open beaches, the operation is at the mercy of the weather. Heavy surf may delay or stop all landings. Reports so far received indicate that there has already been some difficulty in landing supplies.

Most of the information available comes from German sources. Very little that is definite has appeared from the allied side. Cherbourg was not directly attacked. Landings were attempted at various places along the 25 mile eastern side of the Cotentin peninsula, at the north end of which is Cherbourg. This coast has good beaches. The landing at the base of the peninsula, in which the American 1st division took part, gained its beachhead and has advanced westward inland some eight miles.

High Bluffs on West Side.

No landing was made on the west side of the peninsula. High bluffs line the shore. These can be scaled without much trouble by infantry, but bluffs are a decided obstacle to tanks, guns, and vehicles. The Germans report that the channel islands of Guernsey and Jersey, 32 and 18 miles offshore, were unsuccessfully attacked by the allies.

Air borne allied divisions, stated to be American, were dropped on the first night of the invasion on the west side of the Cotentin peninsula. This force, represented as being the United States 82d, 101st and two other divisions, is still there and has blocked the west routes to Cherbourg. The men are 15 to 20 miles away from their comrades at Carentan, who block the east routes.

Weather Aids Nazis.

There is no first class central route up the peninsula to Cherbourg. At certain seasons the loss of both main routes would be serious to the Germans. But at this time of the year it is dry, and it is possible to detour around the main roads by using secondary farm roads, or even driving across country. Cherbourg is not yet cut off by land.

In order to accomplish this objective, the Americans at Carentan are attempting to move southwest directly toward Coutances. Aiding in this movement is a British advance thru Bayeux toward St. Lo. If these, forces join with those of Coutances, the first important step to the capture of Cherbourg will have been accomplished.

There is little reliable news of German movements. What there is indicates that their main effort is to assemble panzer divisions near St. Lo in order to keep the entrance to the Cotentin peninsula open.

BATTLE RAT-TAT OPENS TRIBUNE WAR EXHIBIT

Device Shows Training of Machine Gunners.

BY FRANK STURDY.

The War Products exhibit opened with a great display of American battle equipment yesterday at Tribune Tower.

Hammering sounds of machine gun fire signalled the start of the 30 day display, sponsored by the United States treasury in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and manufacturers of the weapons, vehicles, and supplies in the exhibit, all samples of the fine equipment American fighters are using in war theaters thruout the world.

The rattling sound of machine gun bursts was real, but no smell of burned powder followed. The visitors on the show grounds turned to a gunner-training fire range and found an ingenious, electrically operated mimic gun spitting plastic projectiles at a tiny paper plane silhouette.

All to Scale Except Noise.

But don't think the pealike shots are anything but near-perfect for their job. They simulate the tracer bullets of the true .50 caliber machine gun. The trainer looks like a machine gun, and everything about it is built to a scale of one to 30—except the noise.

The trainer transmits the same shock of recoil as a real gun. An electric control panel assails the ears of the shooter with the recorded sound of the reports of his own gun, and the background noises of a real battle field.

Here's another important point—the trainer device conserves material, costs about 5 cents an hour to operate, and the several thousand in use in the ground and air forces are estimated to save millions of dollars' worth of bullets daily.

What do soldiers shoot, wear, eat? How do they get their orders on the battlefield? How do they use telephone and radio to talk to command posts? You can see the answers in many elaborate exhibits in the large show tent.

What Bond Buyer's Money Does.

The show is meant to be a patriotic inspiration to all Chicagoland, a treasury sponsored opportunity for every buyer of bonds and stamps in the fifth war loan drive to see what he is sending with his money to the men who do the bitter combat job. In opening the show, W. J. Byrnes of THE TRIBUNE said:

"On display is visible evidence of the achievements of the American industrial machine. The exhibits give some general understanding of the huge scope and infinite detail involved in the task of producing for war. They will generate pride in the abilities and devotion of the designers, managers, and workers in our factories upon whom depends the arming of our fighting forces.

"They will renew your assurance that our fighting men are adequately supplied with every required material, superior in quality to that of any other nation."

Navy Pier Band Plays.

Les Lear represented the treasury as master of ceremonies on the program of entertainment at the show's opening, a portion of which was broadcast by station W-G-N. Stirring military music was played by Chicago's Navy Pier band, led by Chief Musician Fred Norton. Featured were Chief Specialist Storm Bull, U. S. N., well known pianist; Wini Shaw, star of the show "Alaskan Stampede," Two Ton Baker, radio actor and singer, and "The Three Imaginators," now appearing in College Inn, Hotel Sherman.

The show will be augmented tonight by a large collection of captured enemy material, including guns and a crashed German airplane. This display will remain at the show thru today and tomorrow. Open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., the exhibit will close July 9.

5TH LOAN DRIVE WILL GET UNDER WAY TOMORROW

Ends July 8; Goal Is $894,014,000.

16 Billion Drive

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—The individual bond buyer will take the spotlight Monday as the treasury launches its $16,000,000,000 fifth war loan drive. The goal for individual purchasers is $6,000,000,000—nearly $1,000,000,000 more than they invested during the fourth war loan.

The fifth war loan drive, with a goal of $894,014,000 for Chicago and Cook county, will open tomorrow as 16,500 block wardens swing into action to meet their quotas. This house-to-house canvassing division will be supplemented by many workers in other groups that will cover the city and county.

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the campaign, which will end July 8, has described it as the biggest financial undertaking ever attempted in Cook county.

Blocks to Show Percentages.

Volume thermometers will be erected in every block to indicate volume percentages, Clarke said.

Messages appealing for coöperation will be delivered from pulpits of churches of every denomination today.

Inauguration of the drive will take place at 12:01 a. m. tomorrow in the Walgreen drug store at State and Randolph sts., where Pvt. Clarence D. Orvis, 24, will purchase the first fifth war loan bond in Chicago and the United States under auspices of the treasury department. The 24 year old soldier was wounded in the North African campaign and is convalescing in the Gardiner General hospital. The bond will be sold by Frances Charles, ex-wife of Victor Mature, former movie actor who is now in military service.

Newspaper Ads Urged.

Frank E. Tripp, chairman of the Allied Newspaper council, addressed telegrams in Washington, D. C., yesterday, proposing that all newspaper publishers back the drive "with the greatest possible volume of sponsored war bond advertising."

A chemical warfare demonstration to spur interest in the bond drive will be staged on the Foster av. beach at 7:30 o'clock tonight under auspices of the treasury department. Army flame throwers, smoke screens, and other chemical warfare weapons will be included in the show, which will be narrated by Lt. Joseph Schwimer, representing Col. Harry R. Lebkicher, commanding officer of the Chicago chemical warfare procurement district.

CHICAGO 'MAYOR' OF ROME HASN'T SEEN SIGHTS YET

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 10.—Lt. Col. John D. Ames, nearing the end of his first week as "assistant mayor" of Rome, remarked that he might as well be in Chicago for all the chance he has had to see his new bailiwick. Ames, who is publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, has been tied to his desk here with many administrative details in his capacity as chief of staff to Brig Gen. Edgar Erskine Hume, head of the allied military government [AMG] in the Rome area.

"It's a beautiful city—they tell me," Ames said, "and ultimately I'll get around to see it. I'm informed there is no subway or elevated in the loop here, but I'd like to verify that."

Ames reported that Rome now is receiving 58 per cent of the normal water supply, and this should be raised to 75 per cent in a few days. The individual bread ration is 3.5 ounces per day, the same as under the Germans, but we are providing all the white flour, which gives the bread a higher nutritive value than before.

Tito's Forces Break Nazi Offensive and Attack

Ships Spread Out as Far as Eye Can See.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OFF AN ALLIED BEACHHEAD, June 9 [Delayed]. — This lovely stretch of French coastline is quiet now except for occasional explosions as engineers blow up another mine or one of our warships sends a shell lobbing inland against some unseen target.

Capt. John Hoffman.

Men who have been ashore say you are safe as long as you walk carefully down the marked paths among the German mines.

There is plenty of evidence of the short, fierce struggle that enabled the allied troops to gain a beachhead, tho we see many grounded boats filled with shell and machine gun holes, others partly submerged where they were hit by shore fire or anchored mines. As far as you can see there are ships of all kinds pouring ashore cargoes brought a few hours ago from English ports.

Thirty Hours, Not a Nazi Plane.

Our ship, which anchored half a mile off shore last night, carried 20 tons of explosives and a quantity of road material for use by the combat engineers. This is already ashore.

I have spent a total of perhaps 30 hours in this harbor during two trips and have not yet seen a German plane. Last night, however, they were overhead and dropped a few bombs. As far as we could tell they did not hit anything. Ships in the harbor threw up a spectacular burst of anti-aircraft fire, turning the whole sky into a gigantic fireworks display.

We believe at least one plane went down, as well as two of our protective barrage balloons that flamed up and drifted onto the ocean to burn out.

Nazi Prisoners Old Men.

Word from those who saw German prisoners is that most of them were old men more than 50 years old who huddled dejectedly together.

Our troops were reported fighting well inland on all sectors and the advance seems to be progressing as well as, or better than, expected, tho the Germans still may launch a strong counter-blow soon.

Among midwesterners aboard our ship are Ensign Allan Gabrilska, former University of Wisconsin football player and former coach at Wausau, Wis., High school; Capt. John Hoffman, 5316 Drexel av., Chicago, formerly a resident surgeon at the Cook County hospital; Steward's Mate 2/C Alvin Robinson, 223 N. Oakley blvd., Chicago; Pharmacist's Mate 2/C Edward Buckley of Waukegan, Ill., and Pvt. Raymond E. Moore, 2450 N. Cicero av., Chicago, a member of the combat engineers.

The great mystery of the invasion is the absence of the German air force. It is almost as tho the Germans are too stunned to think properly.

It is incredible to look at the hundreds of our ships and boats swinging at anchor or cruising slowly about the bay and then realize that there has not yet been one daylight German air raid. It has been suggested the Nazis are saving the Luftwaffe for the next war.

SGT. FIFER, CHICAGO GUNNER ON BOMBER, LOST OVER AUSTRIA

Staff Sgt. Donald D. Fifer, 23, radio technician and gunner on a bomber plane, has been missing since May 10 in a raid over Austria, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fifer of 2757 Pine Grove av., were notified yesterday by the war department. Sgt. Fifer, who was stationed in Italy, had received the air medal. He enlisted in the army air forces shortly before the attack on Pearl Harbor. He had attended Todd School for Boys at Woodstock, McHenry county.

coms, most of them veterans from the Russian front, said we were Americans. But about 11 o'clock they realized that this was an invasion and not a raid.

"I never knew so much German until they started talking about shooting us. Then I began remembering every phrase in the book.

"At about 11 you could see they were beginning to think of surrendering. The ones who thought us British had been asking about Canada, where prisoners are sent, and I really built up our northern neighbor. A little later one noncom said he had just heard on the radio that Rome had fallen and that meant the end for Germany. But the real clincher was the fact that they finally realized so many Americans had landed and that not one Jerry plane had been seen.

"Then they started talking surrender. There were two Poles and two Russians who hated the Germans and were eager to surrender. About 4 o'clock one noncom said they had just shot their captain who was trying to get away with the wounded, who were being evacuated. Then they asked us to help them surrender."

Milander said he and Odell had some trouble persuading the Americans of company F to stop shooting, but finally succeeded and brought out their prisoners.

Chicago Tankmen There.

One tank outfit which landed on D-day is composed 85 per cent of men from Chicagoland, said its liaison officer, Capt. William R. Denslow of Trenton, Mo. They have lost only one tank crew while destroying machine gun and sharpshooter nests.

Capt. Frederick A. Bigelow of 1124 Garden st., Park Ridge, turned samaritan yesterday by giving me a lift forward on his half-truck. His outfit was among the first to land. Bigelow formerly worked for the Levy Circulating company.

Chicagoans who survived the fierce beach assault included Pvt. Kenneth Mueller of 1615 Ohio st., a medical man in ordnance, and Capt. William Collins of 7030 Paxton av., who was pinned down on the beach for five hours. Another liaison officer here is Capt. Max G. Hensel of 2414 W. McKinley st., Milwaukee.

GERMANS LASH BACK AT ALLIES RACING UP ITALY

Set Up Maze of Guns to Check 5th Army.

ALLIED HDQ. IN ITALY, June 10 (AP).—Nazi forces in Italy, fleeing northward in a rout that the allied command said had become a "catastrophe," turned to make a stand late today around a village northeast of Viterbo, which is 40 miles above Rome.

George Tucker, Associated Press correspondent with the 5th army, wrote that the almost unopposed race of the allies to overtake the retreating Germans slowed when they ran into a maze of German 88 mm. and anti-tank guns in and around the village.

The allies brought up tanks, infantry and artillery and the fighting "quickly assumed the character of a sizable action," Tucker said.

Indications were that the 5th army, which has advanced about 15 miles a day since Rome fell last Sunday, had succeeded in its racing efforts to overtake and engage some important units of the German 14th army.

Advance Along 50 Mile Front.

Capturing the ancient town of Tuscania, 13 miles northeast of Tarquinia, which fell Friday, the 5th army had fanned out over a 50 mile front with just such a battle intended.

Earlier today a headquarters spokesman had described the German army as "retreating in a completely disorganized fashion," with the 5th army "unable to catch up with any important element of it," despite the speed of pursuit.

Tucker wrote tonight that the Germans were beaten "but by no means disorganized."

8th Captures Six Towns.

The German withdrawal before the British 8th army on the Adriatic front, announced yesterday, also continued, with the allies advancing more than five miles and capturing the battle wrecked towns of Orsogna, Guardiagrele, Miglionico, and Filetto and crossing the River Foro.

The 8th army front east of Rome also was advanced as allied troops, fighting thru demolitions and mine fields in the rough country, captured Moricone, 11 miles north of Tivoli, and Arsoli, nine miles northwest of Subiaco.

The cutting up of the German 14th army was providing the great drama, however. The allied spokesman said that the only organized body of troops met here were from the 20th air force field division, hastily rushed from Denmark.

10th Nazi Army Also Flees.

As the shattered remnants of the 14th army fled toward the safety of northern Italian mountains, it left its fellow 10th army to the east and south to guard its flanks. This army has been withdrawing more slowly and with more order before the British 8th army.

Nevertheless, the allied spokesman included it with the 14th in the forces he said now were being enveloped by "catastrophe."

German losses in prisoners and equipment were mounting steadily.

The Mediterranean air forces, flying 2,700 sorties yesterday, destroyed 246 vehicles and 300 rail cars and damaged 150 vehicles and 130 rail cars.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Yesterday's broadcast German war bulletin said:

"In Italy the focal point of the fighting Friday was again in the sector of the front west of the Tiber. The enemy here with strong tank forces attacked our rear guards and after embittered fighting entered Viterbo."

BURY FIRST YANK INVASION DEAD IN ENGLISH GRAVES

Lie Near Buddies Who Fell in Last War.

BROOKWOOD AMERICAN CEMETERY, England, June 10 (AP).—The first American dead from the battle across the channel rested tonight in British soil. Rows of flag covered caskets of brown, polished wood lay in mass graves.

As a double column of officers and enlisted men led by five chaplains approached in a slow march, there was nothing to mark this as anything but another military funeral. But it seemed to drive home with cruel sharpness the increased tempo of war on the French coast.

In this cemetery, one of the most beautiful in the world, lie American dead from the first World war. Here in the gently rolling hills where the grass always is green and pines scent the breeze, will lie some of the dead from this war until they are moved home.

There was but one mourner inside the rhododendron bordered cemetery. An English girl, her eyes puffy from weeping, stood in the road a few feet away, and chewed nervously at a handkerchief. She wore a leather coat, no hat, and no stockings. One of the Americans was her husband.

Squadron Pays Respects.

Another was a flyer, a P-38 pilot. Four of the twin-tailed craft from his base somewhere in England dipped near the small group. Flying in perfect echelon, their engines muffled, they circled once and disappeared.

Another American was the crew chief aboard a troop carrier plane riddled by ground fire beyond the bridgehead on Cherbourg peninsula Tuesday night.

Capt. R. F. Grady, Philadelphia, Pa., read the Catholic service. Maj. F. J. Smeltzer, Shamokin, Pa., began the Protestant service with scripture. There was a prayer by Lt. Ford Gilbert, Long Beach, Cal. The raw wind gusting from the skies drowned out the words and there could be heard only catch parts:

"I am the resurrection . . ."

Capt. Frank H. Lash, navy chaplain of Clovis, N. M., said a prayer and read from the Bible. Capt. John A. Moore, Lake Helen, Fla., and Lt. Dezil Carty, New York City, a Negro, concluded the service.

Taps Echo Gun Salute.

Onlookers stood at attention and saluted while a firing squad set the hills echoing with three volleys. Corp. Joseph Ferlazzo, 100 Daisy st., Clearfield, Pa., sounded taps. Swelling and then fading as the wind rose and died came the answering taps from the far side of the hill, where the flag stood at half-mast before the white chapel with its ivy clad columns. They came from the bugle of Sgt. Herbert E. Thompson of Ilion, N. Y.

"The flag remains at half-mast so long as there are unburied dead inside the cemetery," an officer explained.

As the burial party headed toward the gate, the English girl stood at the edge of the still open grave, her hands deep in her pockets.

Former Tribune Employe in Air Forces Is Killed

Second Lt. Dewey H. Darville, 26, formerly a linotype operator in The Tribune composing room, was killed recently in an airplane crash in California, his uncle, Harrison Darville, 4825 N. Kenneth av., was advised yesterday. Lt. Darville enlisted in the army June 28, 1941, and was stationed for a time in Hawaii, later returning to the United States to enter the army air forces. He was married in April, 1944, to a Sacramento, Cal., girl. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Darville, live in Sioux City, Ia. A sister, Carolyn, also survives.

AMG SEATS NEW MAYOR IN ROME; OUST BANK HEAD

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 10.—This city got a new mayor today thru appointment by Brig. Gen. Edgar E. Hume, chief of the allied military government [AMG]. At the same time, Dr. Vincenzo Azzolini, 64, governor of the Bank of Italy, one of the nation's oldest and most respected financial institutions, was removed because of his Fascist connections and placed under guard in his home. Gen. Hume said he was taken into custody because he did not have a spirit consistent with that which liberated Italy.

The new mayor succeeded an incumbent appointed a few days ago by Marshal Badoglio, whose star set after Rome's fall.

New Official a Prince.

Badoglio held the premiership under AMG auspices after the Italian armistice but was ousted by the vote of leaders of six political parties at their first meeting here night before last. His successor, Ivanoe Bonomi, was consulted on the naming of the new mayor, according to an announcement by Gen. Hume. The new official is Prince Filippo Andrea Doria Pamphili, described by AMG as "58 years old and a scion of one of the oldest princely families of Rome."

Known as an anti-Fascist, the prince was interned under Mussolini's regime and stayed in hiding during the German occupation. This is his first public office. Hs predecessor, Gen. Roberto Bencivenca, will return to military duties, AMG said.

New Cabinet Sworn In.

The removal and installation of civil officials by summary appointment is not a new experience to Italians. They have not voted for two decades and must wait until the Nazis are cleared out of Italy to get a chance for a voice in government for the first time since the rise of fascism.

Premier Bonomi's cabinet assumed office today without taking the customary oath to the crown as represented by Crown Prince Umberto. Instead, the 17 ministers pledged themselves to duty according to the constitution.

AIR LINE ENGINEERS TO STUDY PLANS FOR PROPOSED TERMINAL

Representatives of eight major air lines now using the Chicago airport will meet Thursday in the offices of the United Airlines to form an engineering committee to agree on the tentative plan and architecture of a proposed new terminal building at the airport, Philip Wilcox, executive vice president of United Airlines, said yesterday.

The air lines have agreed to the construction of a new building with their funds altho title to the improvement will belong to the city.

Technicians for the air lines have recommended that the building be constructed at the northeast corner of the airport and that it have facilities for a peak of 72 plane movements an hour. The present terminal has a capacity of 40 planes an hour.

The proposed building will cost between $900,000 and $1,250,000. Mayor Kelly has given the plan his backing and has expressed confidence that priorities can be obtained.

ALLIED PLANS CRITICIZED BY GEN. DE GAULLE

Says Military Command Assumes Power.

LONDON, June 10 (AP).—Recent allied proclamations to the French people were criticized today by Gen. Charles De Gaulle as seeming "to announce a sort of assumption of power by the allied military command in France."

"This situation is obviously not acceptable for us and it could provoke in France incidents which it seems to us must be avoided," the leader of the French committee of national liberation said.

De Gaulle also criticized the issuing of "so-called French currency without any agreement and without any guarantee from the French authority," and said it "can only lead to serious complications."

"At the moment when the battle is being joined on French soil," De Gaulle added, "the French government is eager in the common interest to see an end to such confusion and infringement."

Voice on Peace Demanded.

De Gaulle, who made the statements in an interview with the French Independent News agency, declared that France "is waging war like her allies in full sovereignty" and intended "tomorrow to make the peace also in full sovereignty."

De Gaulle said he would be honored to visit President Roosevelt, who has invited him to go to Washington, and "talk over with the President problems of common interest to the United States and France."

Gen. De Gaulle is the hero of that fringe of Normandy so far liberated, dispatches from the front said as the underground sprang to action in southern France.

De Gaulle "Only Leader for Us."

Frenchmen on the Normandy coast, some of whom were pressed into service to build the German Atlantic wall, have been telling the allies:

"Gen. De Gaulle, as well as Britain and America, has been our constant hope thru the darkest hours. He is the only leader for us."

N. U. Alumni Day

Chester A. Place, 82, of class of 1886, with banner he carried in Northwestern university alumni parade.

The Alumni medal, highest honor conferred by the Northwestern University Alumni association, was awarded to Dr. John A. Wolfer, director of the university medical school's tumor clinic, for outstanding cancer research. The presentation was made yesterday at annual Alumni day activities on the Evanston campus.

Winner of a contest to select the most inspiring letter written by alumni in service was Capt. A. J. Millar of 1610 N. Mason av., who is with an armored division in India.

In his letter Capt. Millar said that a "NU" pennant sent him by the university still waved from the general's command tank—"tattered and torn but still flying." The pennant will be returned to the university when fighting ends, the captain said.

Approximately 500 of the 25,000 members of the alumni were present, among them 25 of 32 graduates of the class of 1894, which held its 50th reunion.

P-38s BOMB AND STRAFE NAZI OIL BASE AT PLOESTI

At this important source of oil, the Nazis still had the Romana-Americana refinery in operation despite previous attacks by American heavies.

Romana-Americana formerly was a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Nearly 100 Nazi fighters pounced on the daring raiders when they finished the attack and started home. Several enemy planes were shot down.

Output Cut 90 Per Cent.

The long range assault was tried after Fortresses and Liberators in three earlier raids attempted unsuccessfully to bring the Romanian refining industry to a standstill.

All other major refineries in the Ploesti area have been rendered inactive by the heavy bombers and the total output of the Romanian producers has been cut an estimated 90 per cent.

The Lightning fighter-bomber formations slipped across Yugoslavia, skimming the trees and housetops, and remained at a low level until they reached Bucharest. Then they climbed, circled and swooped on the target.

Heavyweights Also Attack.

The 500-mile flight to the refinery by the Lightnings was the longest fighter-bomber mission ever flown in this theater. On the return flight the planes strafed locomotives and tank cars.

At the same time heavy bombers of the 15th air force attacked a refinery at Trieste which had been a target of R. A. F. night bombers a few hours earlier.

Other targets of the heavies today included oil storage tanks at Porto Marghera near Venice, rail yards in Trieste, an airdrome at Ferrera, and other points.

Upwards of 500 Fortresses and Liberators participated.

AMERICANS WIN 'INDIAN' BATTLE INSIDE CHATEAU

Nazis Beaten in Fierce Room-to-Room Fight.

BY RICHARD D. McMILLAN.

[Representing the Combined American Press, Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH BRITISH-AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 10.—Welsh Tommies chased the Nazis from the dining room of their chateau headquarters into the gilded Louis XIV. salon and then into the bedrooms.

They almost had control of the situation when German reënforcements arrived with 88 mm. guns and opened fire. The Welsh retired into the undergrowth outside the building. Their situation was critical.

Then, just in the nick of time, a battalion of veteran American infantrymen appeared. They swarmed into the chateau with machine guns, smashed a lot of furniture, and drilled a lot of holes in the walls and also in a lot of Germans. Soon there were no more Germans.

Troops Join West of Bayeux.

That was how the American and British invasion troops made their second junction today west of Bayeux.

The Welshmen had a hard fight to get to the chateau in the first place. Their thrust west from Bayeux was preceded by a night long barrage by British guns.

Shortly after starting out, the British turned a corner and ran into a formation of German 88s. A few bursts of gunfire destroyed the gun crews. This cleared a path across a stream for the British. Fording it, the British prepared to attack the German command post.

The chateau proved a tough nut. The battle was like Indian warfare. Posting themselves at windows, the defenders sniped at the Tommies. A machine gunner told me the Nazis first tried to make a stand in the cellar. Dislodged from there they made a fighting retreat upstairs. Then the room to room battle developed.

BATTLE SCENE FROM AIR

BY DON WHITEHEAD.

[Representing the combined U. S. Press.]

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, June 10 (AP).—I had seen enough of our beachhead from a foxhole so I went up in a Piper Cub today to take a look at the wedge driven into continental Europe. What I saw was beautiful and awesome as the Yanks attacked toward a forest where the enemy had hidden tanks and infantry. As our big guns pounded the forest dark green smoke rolled up from an ammunition or gasoline dump.

From the beach to the front lines we could see armored vehicles, convoys, and troops advancing in columns.

Off the beach stood our tremendous invasion fleet stretching as far as eye could see. Ships moved in to discharge their cargoes and small boats scurried around bigger ships which were pouring men, guns, and supplies ashore.

Invasion wreckage littered the sand. Vehicles, halftracks, armor, and small craft were piled up with a vast amount of equipment. Salvage crews were busy refloating damaged boats and putting many vehicles back in operation.

HIT-RUN TANK FIGHT

BY E. J. GILLING.

[Representing Combined Press: Distributed by Associated Press.]

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, June 10.—Tank clashes occurred today when armored columns moving south of the Bayeux-Caen road ran up against enemy tanks.

The Nazi tanks, operating in groups of about 20 supported by self-propelled guns, fought hit and run actions. Such an action cost them 10 tanks yesterday in this sector and only slightly delayed our forces.

This morning I watched two of our armored columns pressing toward a town east of Caen. German tanks in a wood opened fire. When our tanks began plastering the wood, three columns of black smoke spurted skywards, indicating hits on three enemy tanks.

Fierce infantry fighting went on last night. A little village changed hands several times in hand to hand, house to house fighting. By dawn the village had been cleared of Germans and counter-attacks beaten off.

IT'S A GUERRILLA WAR

BY DON WHITEHEAD.

[Representing the combined U. S. press.]

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—The Germans are fighting guerrilla warfare in a desperate attempt to stop the steady progress of stout hearted American doughboys.

The enemy is fighting from trees, hedgerows, buildings, farmhouses, and sending sharpshooters infiltrating our lines to harass the rear, but they have been unable to halt the advance. One sharpshooter was found garbed in the clothing of an American soldier.

The Germans are spotting our advance from dugouts. The German sharpshooting technique is to leave one or two men with machine pistols, rifles and ammunition hidden in the trees or along the thick hedgerows which border Normandy's narrow lanes. If a large body of doughboys passes, the Germans hold their fire. They wait for small groups of men, walking singly and in pairs, and then they open fire.

Yanks Stalk Them Down.

But the doughboys stalk them down, and few of the sharpshooters come back alive. Most of them are very young or men in their 40s and 50s. During the night the Germans send patrols to rough up our lines, but these tactics, while irritating, have not stopped the infantry.

The other night a German patrol slipped behind our lines and surrounded one unit's command post, where Maj. Frank Callicco of Utica, N. Y., was in command. It was about 1 a. m. They sneaked in and covered Callicco and his men with machine pistols.

"You are prisoners," a young German said in English, and ordered Callicco and his men to accompany them. Callicco grabbed the machine pistol from his captor and tried to shoot him, but the gun jammed. He beat the German over the head. Another German grabbed him from behind, and Callicco tossed this one over his head.

In the meantime the other boys were in action, too, and when the fracas was over, the major and his men had taken the Germans prisoner. Now the boys are calling him Maj. Muscles Callicco.

WHITE FLAG TRICKERY

BY LT. WELDON JAMES.

[Marine Combat Correspondent.]

ABOARD U. S. S. TEXAS OFF FRENCH COAST, June 8 [Delayed].—Wounded Rangers taken off the nearby beachhead today told how German troops ran up a white flag of surrender and then mowed down the first Americans who moved in to take them prisoners. Lt. James R. McCullers, 30, Columbus, Ga., said:

"Our men were trying to get a German machine gun nest, snaking along from one shell hole to another and closing in, when Germans in a strongpoint 100 yards away raised a two foot square white material on a bayonet and ceased firing. All of our men kept low for a minute. Then one of our machine gunners and a Ranger began to go forward. The Germans shot our machine gunner thru the head and hit the Ranger in the shoulder. It took us a little more time to clean those German, but when I say we cleaned them out I mean we did just that."

CHUTISTS SEIZE 800

BY ROBERT REUBEN.

[Representing the Combined Allied Press: Distributed by the Associated Press.]

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.—One unit of American paratroopers who landed deep in enemy territory has captured and is holding under guard 800 elite German parachutists who were dropped almost on top of them.

The Americans killed hundreds more. First contact was made this morning with remnants of the American battalion, which suffered heavy casualties.

The unit had been ranging the countryside in the flooded French marshlands for three days with only the food and ammunition they carried on their persons.

An additional 200 prisoners have been rounded up in near-by areas by other small groups of the parachutists.

SEA ATTACKS INCREASE

BY GENE CURRIVAN.

[Correspondent of New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 10.—Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz seems to have been ordered by Adolf Hitler to bestir himself at sea to help the German land forces. Brushes with German destroyers, E-boats and other small craft have become increasingly frequent and allied officers expect the Nazis to bring up what naval strength they have in an effort to sever the bridge of ships carrying supplies to the liberation army.

However, the allied naval forces and their air arms are not waiting for the enemy naval units to strike, but are seeking them out in their home bases. One naval scouting party flushed two groups of Nazi vessels this morning and got four out of seven.

EVEN TICKETS' COLOR GUARDED BY REPUBLICANS

Convention Officials to Balk Counterfeiters.

BY GUY GENTRY.

To prevent counterfeiting, tickets to the Republican national convention are being guarded as carefully as the timing of the European invasion and will be distributed to officials, delegates, press and radio, and visitors only two or three days before the opening of the convention June 26.

Harold W. Mason of Vermont, secretary of the Republican national committee and chairman of the ticket committee, will arrive in Chicago next Thursday, but the tickets, which are being printed in the east, will not be sent until later.

Republican headquarters here said only a few party officials know the size, color, and other identifying details of the tickets. These precautions are being taken because of the flood of bogus tickets distributed at the Philadelphia convention in 1940 with which Willkie boosters filled the galleries and played a major role in stampeding the convention.

Every Person Must Have Ticket.

Every person entering the Chicago Stadium must have a ticket. Officials, delegates, alternates, press and radio will need tickets as well as badges and will account for nearly 4,000 of approximately 19,000 tickets used daily. The remainder, going to visitors, will be distributed thru national committeemen and women of the various states.

National Chairman Harrison Spangler will move his immediate staff to Chicago Thursday and from then until the convention opening will operate from headquarters in the Stevens hotel. Meetings of the national committee and of the resolutions committee have been scheduled for June 21.

Workmen began yesterday putting the Stadium in shape for the convention. Thomas D. Garry, superintendent of sewers, is in charge of the large corps of workmen finishing the details for the Republican meeting and for the Democratic convention, which opens July 19.

Expenses Held to Minimum.

The main platform already has been completed, and a saw mill with five men operating it is busy cutting and shaping the lumber, much of it used material, for the various convention installations. Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said every effort will be made to keep expenditures within the $25,000 appropriated by the city council for the work of putting the Stadium in proper condition.

Installations for lights, radio equipment, and special apparatus will consume 3,200 miles of wire. There will be 160,000 feet of lumber in platforms, scaffolds, partitions, and benches. These will require 5,000 gallons of paint.

In the basement will be constructed five pressrooms for the Chicago daily newspapers, 32 rooms for out-of-town newspapers, 12 film loading rooms, 18 darkrooms for photo finishing, a room for the telegraph companies, a room for the Stadium switchboard, an express shipping room for photographers, a camera repair shop, and reception rooms for guests and the press to be maintained by the air lines and railroads.

LT. PATTERSON AND MISS CLARKE MARRIED IN N. Y.

New York, June 10 [Special].—Miss Dorothy Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Clarke of Ossining, N. Y., and 2d Lt. James J. Patterson, U. S. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Edward A. Hayes, before relatives of the two families and a few close friends.

Miss Clarke, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a portrait gown of white marquisette and a veil of illusion which was draped from a coronet of lilies-of-the-valley and French lilacs. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

The bridegroom was graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point on June 6 with the class of 1944. He is assigned to infantry armored forces and will report at Fort Knox, Ky. His best man yesterday was his roommate, 2d Lt. Casimir John Myslinski, captain of the 1943 West Point football team.

FDR Orders Myron Taylor Back to Post at Vatican

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, has been asked by the President to return as soon as possible to his post from which he has been absent since the fall of 1942. His reassignment was made possible by the allied occupation of Rome. Since his return to America, Taylor has served as vice chairman of the advisory council on post-war foreign policy in the state department.

DEWEY CLAIMS 391 CONVENTION VOTES IN LINEUP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gov. Dewey's pledged and publicly claimed delegate strength for the Republican Presidential nomination wound up yesterday at 391, or 138 short of the required majority, as Nevada named a six vote unpledged delegation to complete the party's national convention delegate roster of 1,057.

Next in a field of eight avowed, publicly receptive, or "silent" possibilities is Gov. Bricker of Ohio with 65, while 478 delegates are uninstructed and unclaimed.

Both the Dewy and Bricker camps expect generous aid from the free and unclaimed delegates constituting nearly half the convention total. These delegates are spread over 30 states and Hawaii.

Dewey Claim Challenged.

Dewey lieutenants say he will get from this bloc more than enough votes to give him a first ballot nomination. Bricker asserted there will be no decision on the initial roll call of states and his managers estimate he will enter the convention with between 250 and 300 votes, they also assert the Ohioan will have greater secondary strength than anybody else.

Dewey's delegate support, pledged and otherwise declared for him, comes from 24 states.

Free Pledged Votes.

The remaining five men mentioned for a place on the national ticket have only single state support, but two of these—Governors Earl Warren of California and Dwight Griswold of Nebraska—have freed their pledged votes in those states.

Subject to change in state delegation caucuses, here is the convention delegate lineup based on state actions, state leaders' announcements, and delegate statements:

Pledged to Dewey: Alabama, 7; Alaska, 3; Arkansas, 2; Delaware, 9; District of Columbia, 3; Georgia, 2; Indiana, 2; Missouri, 6; Montana, 8; New Hampshire, 2; Oklahoma, 2; Oregon, 15; Puerto Rico, 2; Tennessee, 9; Utah, 8; Virginia, 2; Wisconsin, 15. Total, 97.

Claimed for Dewey: Alabama, 3; Arizona, 8; Maine, 3; Maryland, 16; Michigan, 41; Missouri, 7; New Jersey, 35; New York, 92; North Carolina, 20; Oklahoma, 21; Pennsylvania, 2; South Dakota, 11; Tennessee, 7; Washington, 16; West Virginia, 10; Wisconsin, 2. Total, 294. Grand total, 391.

Pledged to Bricker: Ohio, 50. Claimed: Alabama, 4; Mississippi, 6; Tennessee, 2; Virginia, 2; Wisconsin, 1. Grand total, 65.

Pledged to Warren: California, 50.

Pledged to Stassen: Minnesota, 23; Nebraska, 6; Wisconsin, 4. Claimed: Nebraska, 1. Total, 34.

Pledged to Gov. Simeon S. Willis of Kentucky: Kentucky, 22.

Pledged to Griswold: Nebraska, 6.

Pledged to Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, Massachusetts, 3.

Pledged to Gen. MacArthur: Wisconsin, 2.

TO MRS. BRICKER CAMPAIGNING IS OLD, OLD STORY!

Accompanies Husband on Most Trips.

BY MARCIA WINN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., June 10.—Harriet Day Bricker sat down idly one day not long ago and began to figure. When she had it all down on paper she realized with a start that of the 31 nights in the month that had just ended she had spent 18 on trains.

Since last November her husband, John W. Bricker, three times governor of Ohio, has carried his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination to 37 states. On all but two of the trips Mrs. Bricker accompanied him. Now, barely home from a swing east, she is preparing to go out with him again.

Such incessant travel, with its attendant discomfort and strain, might perturb many women, but not Mrs. Bricker. For the last 12 years her husband has campaigned for some office or other, and she has always gone with him. With one exception, he always has won.

Joins Speakers' Bureau.

Recently some one asked her how it felt to be a candidate's wife. She looked her startled surprise. "Why, I don't know," she said, gently. "I've been one more than I haven't been."

It started as long ago as 1920, when after a campus romance at Ohio State university they were married. The next year he signed up on the Ohio Republican speakers' bureau, and she toured the state with him while he spoke for the ticket. It has never stopped.

In those years Mrs. Bricker learned to pack a bag in five minutes; to get to bed at midnight after a tiring day, be up five hours later to catch an early train to the next stop; get off the train in a new town and ready not only to stand in a reception line for hours without a grimace, but to shake 500 hands and remember the faces above them; and to like it all.

Charms Public.

"But this," she said, "is the most interesting and challenging of all. and we believe so in what we are doing."

Altho as first lady of Ohio since 1938 Mrs. Bricker has become widely known in political circles, her husband's current campaign brought her into the national scene for the first time. Everywhere she has charmed the public. Many have seen in her a resemblance to Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of the President.

This may be because of her graciousness. It may be her large brown eyes, her soft, gentle face, her mass of naturally curly brown hair which she sweeps into a low knot at the nape of her neck. It may be her voice, as gentle as her face; her quiet dignity, her hesitant gestures with lovely hands, her inner repose. Whatever the explanation, she has made friends wherever she has gone.

On both sides of her family she comes from old American stock. Her father, Rudolph M. Day, came from a line of teachers and professors. On the side of her mother, Maude Archer Day, she is descended from a long string of doctors, among them Edward Jenner, the English physician and discoverer of vaccination.

She was born here in Columbus but when 5, moved with her family to near-by Urbana, where her father was a wholesale candy and coffee merchant. Here, after graduation from the university, she taught high chemistry and English for a year. Now, back in Columbus in the 27 room executive mansion over which she has presided for six years, she lives just six blocks from the house where she was born and where her mother lived as a girl.

Candidate's Wife

MRS. JOHN W. BRICKER.

She is quick to correct any misapprehension that she campaigns for her husband. "I don't presume to," she says quickly. "I go along and enjoy myself very much, but not as a campaigner. Campaigning is incidental . . ."

"But constant?"

"Yes," with a smile. "But I don't do it that way. I'm very interested in what my husband is doing, of course, and I think the women should be interested, and they are, but I don't make speeches. I don't pretend to be a speaker. I campaign informally. I go only when I am asked. I haven't a speaker's voice."

"But you express yourself well," a friend interposed.

"Well, you have to do that sort of thing," she said deprecatingly. "After all, there are certain things that go along. I don't consider the political end of it my field. My husband is a candidate, and I feel I have a definite sphere in relation to his candidacy. We're each interested in the other's sphere, but we're not active. They don't overlap in activity.

Helped Two Judges.

"This political business is not new to us. It's been this way ever since we were married in 1920. I think the very next year he signed up on the state speakers' bureau, and we traveled all over Ohio while he spoke for the ticket. He's always been a good speaker. We've been over the state a good many times.

"Then he managed the campaign for two Supreme court judges. They were rather elderly, so he campaigned for them."

"Were both elected?" she was asked.

"O, yes," confidently. "Then in 1923 he became attorney and served for three years, and then for four years was a member of the board. Then came his two terms as attorney general and, now, three terms as governor.

"The early offices, of course, were not elective," she added, "so that his knowledge of state government and administration has come as a growing thing for a long time.

Just Another Chapter.

"It isn't strange that my husband is running for this office. It is just another step in his story. I've known always that he would be in public life. I remember the second year we were married that he was sent out west. I don't keep many letters, but I kept this one, for it seemed to sum up his philosphy.

"He said in it: 'As much as I would like to get along financially and professionally, there is something more I want to be able to achieve some time, I want to be able to help more people.'

"That has always carried thru," she added. "I have seen so many times the way he made decisions which would be apt to react adversely to him politically, but he made them regardless—and people know that. Some times they don't like it. But he does it."

Finally the conversation got back to Mrs. Bricker, and she said she enjoyed the trips because she likes people and likes to meet people from all sections of the country.

"But don't you ever get tired?" she was asked.

"I have a secret," she whispered. "No matter how long I stand at a reception, my legs never tire, nor does my right arm, but my left arm gets numb. When that starts, I hook it across the back of my belt and five minutes later it feels fine again."

Then, all at once, the conversation hinged around her husband again, and she was saying, in response to a question, that he never asked her advice.

"We often as a matter of course in our conversation talk things over," she amplified, "but I never feel that I am asked for advice, nor would I have any influence in any decisions."

Then, as a matter of course, she was telling why she thought he would be a good President of the United States:

"Because of his innate qualities of courage to do the thing he believes is the thing to do regardless of the reaction on him personally; because of his administrative experience over a long period of years; because of his accomplishments during his three terms as governor; because of his ability to get along with and understand people.

Makes Good Appointments.

"Along with that is his ability to pick out a good man and the right man for the job. He's never had an appointment to backfire.

"But his motive probably stands out in my thinking about his making a good President. It's not the job he's working for. It's the principle. He feels very keenly he should help preserve our American system of representative government."

And that is the way it goes when you sit down with Harriet Day Bricker to interview her. She talks about her husband. You have to catch crumbs of information about her from her friends or, reluctantly, from herself—that she has served faithfully and long on all sorts of social welfare boards; that she organized the Red Cross nurses' aids for Franklin county here and ran it, a full time, volunteer job, for two years until she started this traveling; that she belongs to the American Association of University Women, the D. A. R., the Mayflower society, the Symphony club; that when she is troubled she sits down at the piano and works out a particularly intricate piece of Chopin; that she says she is not an artist, yet several of her paintings hang in the art gallery here; that she likes the poetry of Robert Frost and Edna St. Vincent Millay; that she reads omnivorously on foreign and current affairs; has a son, John Day Bricker, who is 13 and in Columbus academy here.

Saves Money on Mansion.

On top of that, she does all sorts of strange things. She tries to answer by hand every letter she receives. She saves money on the biennial appropriation for the upkeep of the executive mansion and turns it back to the state; she had a huge war garden last summer, a half acre in the country and a house garden at the mansion, and by freezing the corn from 60 dozen ears, freezing quarts of lima beans, and canning 500 quarts of vegetables, didn't have to buy any vegetables [except potatoes; hers ran out] all fall, winter, and spring.

As for the executive mansion, she has changed everything about it, beginning with the dark oak woodwork, which she bleached. Formerly the social program there included at least two or three large receptions and dinners a week. After Pearl Harbor she abandoned all but official entertainment. And, as far as is known, she is the only person to have kept a daily tally for 15 months of guests at a governor's mansion.

One day, 15 months before Pearl Harbor, she said to the governor she thought she's keep a tally just for fun. She ended with 18,960 names. The only nice thing about Pearl Harbor was that it stopped that.

N. Y. COMMUNIST LEADER URGES F. D. R. 4TH TERM

New York, June 10 [Special].—The New York State Communist party formally reconstituted itself as the Communist Political association of New York at a meeting today of its state party convention. The action parallels that taken last month by the national Communist organization.

Reëlection of President Roosevelt as "an urgent war measure" was urged in a keynote speech by Gilbert Green, who had been secretary of the state branch and is regarded as the probable choice for president of the new association at an election to be held tomorrow. The 1,082 delegates will consider a resolution tomorrow indorsing President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

"Without even weighing the pros and cons of the potential candidates aspiring to the Presidency, we flatly declare that any change of commander in chief at this time would be tantamount of national calamity," Green said.

Kidneys May Need Help to Clean Out Excess Acids

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded. Seventeen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

3 Day Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need make this fair-play trial offer: Get a three-day supply of Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. Take it exactly as directed and see the results in your own particular case—if not delighted and really surprised, or if not satisfied for any reason at all, simply return the empty package, and your money will be refunded in full. This is guaranteed. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, so start your Cystex 3-day trial today.

Author's Note: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

5 JAP WARSHIPS FORCED TO FLEE BY ALLIED NAVY

Effort to Re-enforce Biak Forces Again Fails.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, June 11 [Sunday]—(AP).—The allied navy has thwarted the second Japanese attempt to reinforce invaded Biak in the Schouten Islands, headquarters reported today. Allied air power had smashed the first.

Headquarters reported that five Japanese destroyers were intercepted Thursday night by allied warships which forced the enemy group to turn and flee. One of the destroyers possibly was damaged.

Mop Up on Biak.

Yesterday's bulletin had told of the aerial sinking of four destroyers, the damaging of another and the routing of a cruiser and destroyer in the first enemy setback while attempting to reinforce Biak.

On Biak, where the Yank 6th army units invading the island May 27 now occupy an airdrome within bombing range of the Philippines, the invaders mopped up Japanese in caves along ridges near the air field. To the west of the invasion scene, near Manokwari, three small enemy merchantmen were sunk Friday by Liberators.

Palau Isle Bombed.

Seizure of Biak's Mokmer field also has put Palau in the western Carolines within fighter range of Gen. MacArthur's air arm. It already was brought within bomber range by earlier capture of the Wakde Island airdrome, 200 miles southeast, and today headquarters reported that Palau was bombed Thursday night.

This was the first announced land-based air strike at Palau, previously hit by carrier planes of a task force.

Headquarters today also announced a 44 ton bombing of Truk by Liberators from the Admiralty Islands.

This strike continued an intensifying two-way strike at Truk by southwest Pacific bombers from the Admiralties and central Pacific bombers from the Marshalls.

[Domei, Japanese news agency, reported that a seven day battle, starting May 27, resulted in the smashing of the American beachhead near the mouth of Tor river, Dutch New Guinea. Domei said 3,000 Americans were killed or wounded and that the remnants of a division "barely managed to escape" to near-by Wakde Island. There was no confirmation of this report from American sources.]

11 Raids on Islands.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, June 10 (AP).—The navy reported today 11 new air attacks on Japanese positions in the central Pacific. One was directed against Ocean Island on June 7, the first to be made against that point.

Truk atoll, Nauru Island, and Puluwat Island wese among the targets.

At Ponape Island hangars near the seaplane base and shops were hit. In the Marshalls piers and anti-aircraft batteries were bombed. At one objective a large explosion was caused near an anti-aircraft emplacement. Two Corsair fighters and a dive-bomber were downed by anti-aircraft fire near Maloelap. One of the pilots was rescued by a destroyer.

JAPS BOMBARD CHANGSHA; PUSH IN FROM 2 SIDES

Seek to Flank Army Defending City.

CHUNGKING, China, June 10 (AP).—Advancing Japanese forces have brought the Hunan province capital of Changsha under heavy bombardment and are hammering down from the northeast and northwest against this major goal, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Northeast of Changsha, the Japanese jockeyed for a position from which to outflank the defenders, and to the east were repulsed in an attempted new crossing of the Laotao river, last line of defense before the city.

Fight in Outer Defenses.

A bulletin reported fighting in the "outer defenses." Changsha's fall would open the way for complete enemy conquest of the Canton-Hankow railway route.

Northwest of Changsha, below captured Siangyin, 30 miles from the capital, fighting continued as the enemy attempted to obstruct possible flow of reënforcement for the beleaguered defenders of the capital, and 50 miles northwest of Changsha, the bulletin reported, the Japanese reached Yiyang's outskirts. The enemy was pressed back there and a battle raged six miles east of the town.

Chinese Occupy Town.

On the other side of Tungting lake, a supplementary bulletin claimed the Chinese completely reoccupied Nanhsien, 40 miles southwest of the north Hunan Japanese base of Yoyang [Yochow], and that several other strategic points south of the Yangtze river were seized.

Various Chinese units launched separate attacks on enemy forces at Ichang, Kingmen, and Tangyang, and "by this morning they made a considerable advance, capturing a number of strong points," the bulletin said.

To the north, in Honan province, Japanese in the area south of Lingpao and near the Shensi province border pushed westward toward the Shensi city of Tungkwan.

28 MONTHS IN CHINA, YANK IS ON WAY HOME

WITH CHINESE TROOPS ON THE SALWEEN RIVER, May 23 [Delayed]—(AP).—Corp. Donald N. Kitchin of Miami, Fla., came trudging into camp last night from an assignment with Chinese units west of the Salween. As he passed a cook fire, a voice rang out: "Hey, Kitchin, you're going home."

In 28 months overseas, Kitchin had heard that before. He replied, "Who do you think you're kidding?"

"He's not kidding—your orders are here," said Capt. Will Lee, ordnance officer with whom Kitchin has been working. Kitchin was so excited last night he neglected to put up any sort of shelter and had to sleep in the open during a night-long rain.

Jap Papers Emphasize Tojo Message to Hitler

New York, June 10 (AP).—Japanese Premier Tojo's "message of encouragement to Hitler yesterday on occasion of the allied invasion of France was "played up with banner headlines" in Tokyo papers, according to a Tokyo broadcast beamed to the United States today.

CHINESE STORM LUNGLING; CUT OFF BURMA ROAD

CHUNGKING, China, June 10 (AP).—Chinese forces threw a roadblock across the Burma road south of Mangshih, and 22 miles to the northeast stormed the northern and eastern gates of Lungling after occupying the southern portion of that base in Yunnan province, the Chinese announced tonight.

This Chinese offensive menaced the main Japanese base of Tengchung, 40 miles northwest of Lungling, and threatened to cut off large concentrations of enemy troops, a Chinese army spokesman said.

Storm Jap Garrison.

Other Chinese units were mopping up remnants of the outer defenses of Lungling, which first were pierced last Wednesday, the bulletin said, while troops to the southwest who had cut the Burma road near Mangshih surrounded Hsiangta, east of that town. Chinese troops were said to hold all but one of the enemy's strong points in that sector.

Northeast of Lungling, south of Chenanso, which was reported captured by Chinese troops yesterday, Japanese suffered heavy casualties and loss of stores and material when the Chinese stormed a garrison. Tapa was captured, the bulletin said.

Main Chinese Goal.

Lungling was described by Maj. Gen. Sung Hsi-Lien, commander of an army group on this front, as one of the major objectives of the Chinese Salween river offensive. It would be merely a matter of four days before engineers could link the ends of the Burma road with a truck ferry and ease the supply burden now borne by thousands of civilians and soldier-coolies, he said.

Lungling lies about 100 miles from the fighting in Myitkyina. Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn, Lt. Gen. Stilwell's deputy in China, said the Salween campaign already has been a positive aid to his chief's north Burma drive, since most of the enemy reenforcements have been drawn from Burma.

Pursue Japs in India.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 10 (AP).—Rearguards of Japanese forces fleeing the Kohima area in India fought pursuing allied troops eight miles southeast of the city as the enemy apparently abandoned villages along the road another six miles to the south, it was disclosed today.

Japanese forces made a stand at Vismema. A bulletin said that except for continuing operations north of Kanglatongbi and the repelling of two Japanese counterattacks 15 miles north of Imphal, where the allies occupied "important features," the rest of the Indian front remained unchanged.

Demoted General Quits Hospital for 30 Day Leave

Miami, Fla., June 10 (AP).—Col. Henry J. F. Miller, who was demoted from the rank of major general and relieved of his post as head of the 9th air force service command, left the army air forces regional hospital at Coral Gables today for a 30 day leave. His destination is unknown. The war department announced Gen. Eisenhower sent Miller home for giving a hint as to the date of the invasion in a remark at a cocktail party.

TWO SETS OF HARNESS STOLEN.

Two sets of harness were stolen from 852 N. California av., Abraham Manevitz, 2748 Iowa st., told police yesterday.

Frightened Soldier, WAC Leap to Death from Plane

Dayton, O., June 10 (AP).—A WAC and an enlisted man, frightened while on a routine mission, leaped to their deaths from a plane just north of Dayton today, the public relations office at Wright field reported. They were flying at low elevation in a B-26 Marauder bomber and attempted to bail out when a parachute, released accidentally, began flapping against the side of the plane. They were too low for their chutes to open. No names were disclosed.

BIG RED DRIVE ON NEAR LENINGRAD, SAY FINNS, NAZIS

Karelian Blow Repulsed, Helsinki Claims.

LONDON, June 11 [Sunday]—(AP).—The Germans and the Finns said last night that the Russians had launched a "general offensive" on the Karelian isthmus of the Finnish front above Leningrad, and one Berlin commentator suggested that it might be the opening blow of a soviet onslaught across the entire eastern front.

In a supplemental bulletin early today the soviets reported a small Russian gain north of Iasi in Romania and said red army units had broken up an attack by a battalion of German infantry and tanks southeast of Stanislawow in old Poland. Earlier the Russians had said there was no important change on the front.

Berlin said there was accelerated action on five sectors of the eastern front in addition to the new action in Karelia.

From Iasi to the northern theater suspense was heightened as the third anniversary of Hitler's invasion of Russia on June 22 approached, and it appeared that master soviet strokes could not be deferred much longer.

Reds Repulsed, Say Finns.

The Finnish army bulletin said the Russians early Friday started the general offensive on the Karelian isthmus with support by "particularly heavy artillery fire and strong air forces."

"Attacks made at various places were repulsed except for a few small and limited penetrations," the bulletin said. "The enemy sustained considerable losses. The battle continues."

A German Transocean commentator, Von Olberg, said over the Berlin radio that the blow might well be the initial swing of a soviet sledge hammer assault developing across the entire eastern front.

Russians Mass "in North."

Suggesting that "it may also constitute a diversionary maneuver to camouflage the real aims of the Russian summer offensive," Von Oldberg said German reconnaissance had "determined that main Russian concentrations are in the northern sector."

Von Olberg also said, Russian concentrations were observed also "toward Tarnopol and in the Carpathian passes."

In a broadcast to the Czech people, the president of the Czech government in London, Eduard Benes, said that "a new, powerful, and final" soviet offensive is imminent and that "we shall not have to wait long" for an allied attack from northern Italy on the Balkans and on German territory proper.

AIRCRAFT PLANT FIRES 600 WHO STAYED OFF JOB

Cincinnati, O., June 10 (AP).—The Wright Aeronautical corporation reported today that 600 employes had been discharged for participation in the four day strike which made 15,000 workers idle this week and halted airplane engine production for two days at its near-by Lockland plant.

The discharges conformed with a company ultimatum issued Wednesday that all who failed to return to work by Friday midnight would be dropped from the pay roll.

Robert Spitzmiller, president of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] local, said the union "is backing the company 100 per cent in this matter and those who left their jobs did so without the union's protection."

NEW SLAP AT OPA PRICE CEILINGS TAKEN IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—The house, by a vote of 157 to 31, wrote into the price control act extension bill today a ban against OPA's "highest price line" regulations.

Many members contended the regulations, which require retailers to limit stocks of goods to the highest priced line offered during a given period, were driving small ready-to-wear retailers out of business.

A final vote on the controversial measure may come early next week.

Rep. Hartley [R., N. J.], author of the amendment, told the house the ban would prevent discrimination, thru OPA regulations, against "old, established retailers" in favor of "newcomers."

Chairman Spence [D., Ky.] of the banking committee opposed the amendment on the ground it would force the OPA to place dollars and cents ceilings on every article sold and would not prevent the charging of high prices for low quality goods.

A standing vote of 86 to 39 rejected an amendment offered by Representative Rolph [R., Cal.] to permit evictions of tenants from rented property in cases where it can be proved that the tenants are abusing the property and are "obnoxious."

An overwhelming voice vote accepted an amendment requiring OPA to give 15 days' notice prior to the normal planting season before lowering price ceiling on agricultural commodities.

Administration leaders are marshalling their votes to beat down the Bankhead amendment approved yesterday by the senate to tie textile ceilings to a parity price for raw cotton and assure millers their operating costs plus "a reasonable profit." Some administration followers predicted a Presidential veto if the house accepted the amendment.

A veto would force congress to enact a new bill or a temporary extension of the existing stabilization legislation which expires June 30.

10 PCT. OF U. S. HAS ALLERGIES, DOCTORS AVER

Ten per cent of the population of the United States suffers from allergy and there are only 500 physicians trained to diagnose and treat these persons, Dr. French K. Hansel of St. Louis, Mo., president of the American College of Allergists, holding its first annual meeting at the Palmer House, said yesterday. The college, incorporated in November, 1942, now has 400 members in this country, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, and South America.

While the science of allergy is not widely known among laymen, allergists are discovering many things about people and the foods, dusts, and chemicals to which they are allergic. Dr. Hansel explained that allergies are the cause of many cases of sinus trouble and eczema and some cases of eye, nose, and throat infections. Many allergists believe some migraine headaches and cases of dizziness are caused by allergy.

Dr. F. W. Wittich of Minneapolis, Minn., secretary of the group, explained that immunology is the treatment used in allergy cases. First of all the cause of the allergy is eliminated; then a serum is injected into the patient to raise his immunity against the irritating factor.

ARMY AND NAVY DOCTORS REVEAL WAR MIRACLES

A. M. A. Convention to Run Five Days Here.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Physicians in army and navy uniforms dominate the five day program of the American Medical association's 94th annual session, which opens tomorrow in a group of downtown hotels and will emphasize the problems and progress of war time and post-war medicine.

It is one of the biggest conventions to be held in Chicago this year, and already every available hotel room in Chicago has been occupied, with manw delegates quartered in the suburbs. Spokesmen for the association predict that from 8,000 to 10,000 physicians will register for the convention and that the total attendance will run from 15,000 to 20,000.

Home front doctors trying to keep abreast of advancements by the medical departments of the army and navy learned last night that tantalum, which is World War II.'s new surgical metal, is being allocated for civilian use. Military surgeons have been using the inert chemical element, a blue gray metal three times heavier than lead, to restore mangled bodies, faces, and heads, avoiding the scars that have disfigured some veterans of other wars.

Restorative Miracles Wrought.

Almost invisibly thin wires of tantalum have been used as threads to sew wounds and to hold together the ends of severed nerves. Sheets and plates of the metal, as thin and pliable as paper, have been used in restoring normal shapes to skulls and other parts of the body. Faces, ears, and noses have been restored by spreading live skin over tantalum frameworks.

Men with facial paralysis, marked by sagging mouths, have had their appearances restored thru use of tantalum wires. Bodily tissues, including bones and muscles, cling closely to tantalum. Normally, living tissues try to keep away from foreign substances.

The surgeons general of the army, navy and public health service and similar officials from Russia, China and Canada are scheduled to attend on A. M. A. war meeting Wednesday evening in Medinah auditorium, Ohio st. and Wabash av. To this meeting the public is invited.

World Leaders to Speakfi

Speakers will be Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the United States army; Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy; Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States public health service; Prof. Vladimir Lebedanko, representative of the Alliance of Red Cross and Red Crescent societies of the U. S. S. R.; Lt. Gen. Robert Kho-sheng Lim, chief of the supervisory and planning commission of the Chinese army's medical service, and Maj. Gen. G. B. Chisholm, director general of medical services for the Canadian army.

Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer of Chicago, specialist in urology, is scheduled to replace Dr. James E. Paullin of Atlanta, Ga., as A. M. A. president. The association's house of delegates convenes tomorrow in the Palmer House. For part of the convention as many as nine sectional meetings, also auxiliary sessions, will be held at a time in hotels within and outside the loop.

Vital Problems Before Doctors.

War time problems to be discussed include tropical medicine, rheumatic fever, the care and restoration of casualties, operational fatigue in combat air crews, war neuroses, and psychiatric selection of men for war duty.

Penicillin, the new and widely discussed new drug, has been a certain cure for gonorrhea when given in sufficient dosages, the American Society for Clinical Pathologists was told by laboratory specialists when it met at the Drake hotel yesterday.

Maj. Charles R. Rein, one of the numerous army physicians in the city, discussed syphilis and its tests.

BOY, 16, REPORTED MISSING.

George Harms, 4228 Van Buren st., told police yesterday that his son, John, 16, has been missing since Friday.

Union Upholds Fines Imposed on Two Symphony Violinists

"The American Federation of Musicians convention voted unanimously yesterday to sustain the action of its executive board in upholding fines and suspensions assessed by the Cincinnati local No. 1 union against two members of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

Action was taken in a closing two hour closed session of the federation's annual national convention which opened Monday in the Stevens hotel.

The appellants were Rueben Lawson, violinist and personnel director of the orchestra, and William Morgan Knox, one of the country's better known violinists and chairman of the orchestra's committee. The penalties were originally fixed by the Cincinnati local union and its president Oscar Hill on charges of conduct detrimental to the union.

Charged with Conspiracy.

The union claimed that the orchestra members called a union meeting beyond their jurisdiction and that they conspired to get 10 members discharged from the orchestra so other members could get a salary raise.

Lawson was fined $750 and suspended for three months; Knox was fined $2,500 and suspended for six months. Their attorney, Claire Yarwood, of Cincinnati, who was allowed 30 minutes on the convention floor yesterday, said he has not decided whether to carry the case to a civil court.

Two other members of the orchestra, Conductor Eugene Goosens and Hobert Schoch, were assessed penalties by the local union, but neither case appeared before the convention. Goosens withdrew his petition and Schoch's case was not within the convention's jurisdiction inasmuch as his fine was only $250. The executive committee also had upheld penalties in their cases.

Charges Rights Curbed.

President Hill of the local argued the union's side of the case before the convention. Yarwood contended his clients had been "denied freedom of speech before the convention and that's something that even Hitler doesn't always get away with."

The results of Friday's election of officers were announced yesterday. The officers are James C. Petrillo, president; Charles L. Bagley, Los Angeles, vice president; Leo Cluesman, Newark, N. J., secretary; Thomas F. Gamble, Boston, Mass., secretary treasurer; Herman D. Kenin, Portland, Ore.; Oscar F. Hill, Cincinnati; Chauncey A. Weaver, Des Moines, Iowa, and John W. Parks, Dallas, Tex., members of the international executive committee, and Walter M. Murdoch, Toronto, Can., member of the committee from Canada.

President Petrillo and the national committee held a closed session last night to hear charges of communistic activity in the case of Antonio Lombardo of local 450, New Rochelle, N. Y. The federation has reaffirmed its stand against communism.

3 FOOD DEALERS SUSPENDED ON RATION CHARGES

Suspensions were ordered yesterday for two food store operators and a retail meat dealer by John R. Allen, hearing commissioner of the office of price administration. The defendants, all charged with overdrawing their ration bank accounts, are August Krauth and Erwin Seckelmann, partners at 4554 Ravenswood av., and Eugene Vogel, butcher at 7138 State st. Krauth and Seckelmann were prohibited from dealing in rationed meats and fats for 15 days, beginning tomorrow. According to the OPA, they had overdrawn their account 31,469 points since last Oct. 13.

FEDERAL COURT GRANTS HEARING TO 25 CONVICTS

Judge John P. Barnes of the United States District court announced yesterday that starting tomorrow he would hear applications for freedom filed by 25 convicts in state prisons. Warden Joseph E. Ragen of Stateville penitentiary was ordered to have five convicts a day in Judge Barnes' court up to and including Friday.

There are approximately 100 pleas for writs of habeas corpus on file in the federal courts here, Judge Barnes said. They are from men convicted in state courts and their petitions to the federal courts resulted from a ruling by Judge Barnes more than a year ago in the case of John Bongiorno, killer of a policeman and serving a sentence of 199 years.

Court Opens Way for Pleas.

Judge Barnes in January, 1943, ordered Warden Ragen and T. P. Sullivan, state director of public safety, to put no obstacles in the way of any convict who sought to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The writ is one of the most sacred rights of an American citizen, Judge Barnes said.

Since the Bongiorno ruling, nearly every convict in the five state prisons has filed one or more petitions for freedom, in state and federal courts, Ragen said. Judge Barnes spent weeks hearing the plea of Bongiorno, who said his punishment was "cruel and unusual," and therefore in violation of the Constitution. Judge Barnes denied Bongiorno's plea and his appeal is pending.

Few Convicts Win Freedom.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Hector Brouillet and Assistant State's Atty. James V. Cunningham said they had appeared before Judge Barnes and other federal jurists in more than 300 habeas corpus cases since the issuance of the Bongiorno writ. In only two cases did the convict win freedom, they said, and in those two cases appeals are pending.

Judge Barnes did not issue writs for the convicts to be heard this week, the attorneys said, but merely issued orders that the convicts be produced. He will decide if any of them are to have hearings. At the same time Federal Judge Elwyn Shaw will hear 12 applications for writs, without having the convicts in court.

Meanwhile, Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan heard arguments on writs sought for 11 convicts. He dismissed four applications and continued the others to July 10.

FINNS ACCUSED OF PRO-NAZIISM FOR PAPER BAN

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—The state department accused the Finnish government of "pro-German sympathies" today as a result of Finland's suppression of a newspaper showing pro-allied sympathies.

The statement indicated officials here faced a complete diplomatic break with Finland unless that Scandinavian country gets out of the war quickly.

An Associated Press dispatch from Stockholm yesterday said that the newspaper, Svenska Pressen, had been banned indefinitely because it favored the allies too much.

U. of C. Receives $131,000 Gift at Alumni Reunion

Alumni of the University of Chicago at their annual reunion yesterday in Mandel hall, on the campus, presented a gift of $131,000 to their alma mater. It was accepted in behalf of the university by President Robert Maynard Hutchins. Presentation was made by Harold J. Gordon, a Chicago investment house executive and a 1917 graduate. Citations of merit for distinguished service were awarded to 30 alumni.

SUN SPOTS AND LAKE LEVELS.

Our editorial page neighbor, Charles Collins of the Line o' Type column, has printed during the last two years a number of pleasant and erudite instalments of a history of the "Gold Coast," contributed by "Captain John."

Some of these little essays recorded the fact that long before man-made engineering works had been built to exercise any influence on the level of the Great Lakes, a few alert observers had discovered that the lake levels fluctuated more or less regularly over the years. The Indians knew this, and told some of the French explorers about it. A British army officer, Robert Glazer, sent to command Fort Mackinac after the French and Indian war, reported the fluctuations to his military superior. The Erie canal engineers noticed it.

The varying levels of Lake Michigan caused some of Chicago's most famous lawsuits over possession of valuable land north of the Chicago river that was bared by temporarily receding waters. Cap Streeter, of recent fame, was a Johnny-Come-Lately in this controversy. The first lawsuits arose soon after Chicago was settled and were contested until the Civil war. Abraham Lincoln was one of the lawyers in this famous Sand Bar case. "Captain John" noted that in the Sand Bar case one of the witnesses, Morgan Shapley, an experienced engineer, mentioned the regular fluctuations in the lake levels, but no one seems to have paid much attention to him.

"Captain John" is Col. H. A. Musham, a naval architect who earned his military rank in the army engineers. The references to the lake levels in the Gold Coast series were the fruits of a serious study of the subject which Col. Musham has made, on which he reported in a recent issue of the Journal of the Western Society of Engineers.

By study of hydrographic records, Col. Musham determined that the rhythm of the lake level fluctuations repeats itself in cycles of a little less than 23 years. There are alternate maximum and minimum stages at intervals of about 11 years, and between them intermediate highs and lows. The picture is not wholly precise, since there are also seasonal variations every year and variations traceable to man's engineering developments, but in general the lake levels have followed this 23 year cyclical pattern as far back as adequate hydrographic records exist, which is for less than a century.

This cycle, a fraction less than 23 years, coincides with the cycle of maximum intensity of sun spots. Whether there is a connection between the two phenomena cannot be established on present evidence, but sun spots are being studied today by many scientists, some of whom believe that when sufficient data is assembled they will furnish a means of long range weather forecasting.

Col. Musham's studies of lake levels indicate that the lake level case, in which Chicago's diversion of water thru the sanitary canal was severely restricted on the representation of other cities and states on the Great Lakes that Chicago diversion was lowering water levels and damaging their harbors, was decided on false evidence.

What none of the litigants seems to have realized, and least of all the counsel for the sanitary district, was that Chicago was being blamed for lowered lake levels which were in the major part caused by cyclical fluctuations, not by withdrawals at Chicago. Col. Musham finds that Chicago diversion might lower the lake levels by six or seven inches at most. The cyclical variation is as much as 3½ feet.

The lake level case was thus decided on false engineering evidence. Some of the very cities that complained most loudly in that case that their harbors were being ruined are today demanding that the federal government do something to prevent high water levels ruining waterfront property.

In his report in the engineering journal Col. Musham suggested that the 23 year cycle of lake level fluctuations be harnessed by a series of water control works. These works, if properly constructed and intelligently handled, would make it possible to maintain fairly constant levels on all the Great Lakes, eliminating a large part of the damage and economic loss that results from present fluctuations.

These control works would not benefit one Great Lakes interest, or one section of the Great Lakes territory, at the expense of another. Every one would be benefited. Such works already exist at the Soo locks, controling the level of Lake Superior. Additional works would be necessary on the St. Clair river above Detroit, to regulate the levels of Lakes Michigan and Huron, and on the Niagara river to regulate that of Lake Erie.

Chicago would benefit by such works since they would make possible a diversion thru the sanitary canal, without lowering lake levels, adequate to protect the city's drinking water supply from pollution and to maintain the nine foot level in the Illinois waterway.

The international power interests at Niagara would not suffer, but would be benefited. The present flow thru the Niagara river varies from year to year from as much as 270,000 cubic feet a second to as little as 190,000 second feet. The difference between maximum and minimum flows is unreliable, and therefore useless for power. Proper use of regulatory works would make possible a steady flow in excess of 200,000 second feet, which would make additional diversions for power possible without destroying the scenic beauty of the falls.

Fluctuating levels are responsible for much damage to waterfront property. Extremely low water is as bad as high water, since it exposes underwater piling to air rot. Regulatory works would stop this.

Great Lakes shipping interests have always contended that regulatory works in the St. Clair river above Detroit would impede navigation. Actually, they would gain much more than they would lose, if several locks were constructed to permit rapid passage of shipping. The locks would not be difficult to pass, since the change in level would be five feet or less.

The works would not be a massive structure like the Grand Coulee dam. They would resemble the present lock at the entrance of the Chicago river. The gain to the shipping interests would lie in the maintenance of uniform levels in the channels which at present limit the loading of ships. The loss of one foot in any channel on the Great Lakes means that every big ore ship using it can carry about 500 fewer tons of ore. Increased ship capacity would compensate many times over for a few minutes spent in clearing locks.

President Hoover said a number of years ago that the lake level problem was not a sectional problem, but an engineering problem. By the construction of properly designed and operated regulatory works, every one will be helped. Chicago, as the principal sufferer from the present discriminatory regulation, must do the missionary work.

AMERICA'S FUTURE IN THE PACIFIC.

In the Graphic section of today's TRIBUNE Col. Conrad H. Lanza, the authoritative military commentator, names 10 first class and five secondary bases in the Pacific which America must retain if it is to keep the peace in those waters and protect itself from future aggression. Col. Lanza tells why this is so, and his reasons are sound. The 15 bases he has named are, as he says, the minimum needed for an effective job of protection. It may be that we shall need others, but those on his list we must have.

Col. Lanza does not include any bases in Sumatra, Java, Borneo, or on the Malay peninsula in his study. He says that the agreements which have been reached on American aims in the Pacific war include the transfer of these former possessions to the British and Dutch after Japan has been defeated. Whether we are pledged to such a settlement or not, Americans are not likely to forget how helpless the British and Dutch were to hold these places and the great expense and effort it is costing us to win them from the Japs.

Certainly, it is not safe for America or for any of the nations who may be allied to her or on friendly terms with her in the future to leave these possessions in feeble hands again. Our duty to the Philippines and to ourselves requires that we keep the bases which Col. Lanza names, and very probably some additional bases in the Spice Islands and Malaya. The weaker countries—Holland, England, and Australia—should welcome our strong hand.

VETERANS' JOBS.

The CIO automobile workers' union has required the General Motors corporation to fire a number of employes who came back to the company after being honorably discharged from the army or navy. The dismissals were demanded because the men in question had failed after returning to work to pay their union dues as required in the maintenance of membership provision of the contract between the company and the union.

The company seems to have had no choice in the matter. A union official said that Rep. Rankin had discussed the dismissals in congress as part of a campaign against maintenance of membership. "There probably will be more such cases involving veterans in the future," the union spokesman said.

There can be little point in examining the merits of the union's position from a legalistic viewpoint. The union may be within its rights or it may not, but certainly what it has done and apparently proposes continuing to do can only serve to alienate public opinion. The CIO fancies that it is going to win the fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt. If it persists in policies such as this one, offending every patriotic instinct, the CIO is going to be a heavy liability to Mr. Roosevelt.

People aren't going to examine this question legalistically. They are going to say that a man is entitled to the job he left when he joined the army and that he can have it whether or not he pays his union dues. We do not doubt that the great majority of union men will remain in good standing with their unions after the return to civil life but whether they do or not public opinion will insist that their jobs belong to them and not to the union.

ANALYSIS OF INVASION

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

Our minds are all concentrated on the invasion. It is not for me to give you any invasion news but I may give you some background that will prove interesting.

For instance, we are attacking along the line upon which France has twice been successfully invaded. The first time was by the Normans, coming not from England but from northern Ireland. They entered the Seine river, mounted it to Paris and besieged that city. While they did not take it, they held Normandy from then on.

Having organized a duchy, William the Conqueror went from Normandy and conquered England. Some generations later, a descendant, Henry V., again entered the Seine river and attacked France. He was thrown back at Rouen, but later, winning a decisive battle at Agincourt, he conquered France and he and his descendant, Henry VI., held it until driven out by Joan of Arc.

Our people are attacking from Cherbourg to Le Havre. Success will come if they can occupy Le Havre and the Seine river as far as Rouen. If they do that, they will have 50 miles of river under their control, which will give them a hundred miles of landing space for supplies. All seacoasts are defensible—this part of the French seacoast is very defensible—and the country is rough and almost mountainous as far as Rouen.

If and when we reach Rouen, a wide plain extends all the way to Paris and beyond, so I feel safe in saying that, if we can occupy Rouen, the Germans will be compelled to retreat back to their old line of 1914 and 1918 with the Ardennes mountains and the Argonne and Chemin des Dames, and defensive positions like those.

Of course, we are not confined to the descent on Rouen. We can take any port, or attack any port along the western coast of Europe—and there are several.

To begin at the south, there is Bordeaux, a port we used in the last war. It was suggested before the actual invasion took place that an attack on Bordeaux and an attack on Marseille in the Mediterranean might take place at the same time. They could join hands, as it were, with the Gironde and Garonne rivers.

If they do not attack at Bordeaux, they can still attack at St. Nazaire, which was an American port in the last war, and one which I remember somewhat uncomfortably because I had a part in catching a woman spy there. She was afterward executed by a French court martial.

North of St. Nazaire, we find the port of Brest, in the extreme west of France, a great French naval station used by the British in the last war, and beyond there is Cherbourg, which we are attacking now. Cherbourg, as I recall, is somewhat the size of Boston and Charleston harbors, but, unlike them, it is not a natural but an artificial harbor, and might therefore be compared with Los Angeles. It has not got very good connections inland, but, of course, the possession of that port would be a great step on the way to the capture of Le Havre and Rouen.

North of Le Havre are a number of small watering places and small ports, including Boulogne and Calais, but the next big port is Antwerp. Many of you have been to Ostend. A landing could be made along that front to take Antwerp, which would give us as good a landing place as the Seine at Rouen and Le Havre.

A still better tactical place to capture would be Rotterdam and Amsterdam, for this reason: That even if we capture all of France and Paris, we will have the old barrier of 1914 and 1918 in front of us, while, if we succeeded in landing at Amsterdam and Rotterdam, we would have all of the German defenses taken in reverse—not only the mountains and the forest but the Rhine river besides—and that would be the great line of advance that the duke of Marlborough, the ancestor of Winston Churchill, used many years ago.

I am glad to say in connection with this speech tonight that I have been to the Ordnance show in Central park in New York and have been all over the Japanese, German, and American ordnance; and I will put them in this way: The Japanese are bad to poor; the Germans are exceedingly good, but our own are distinctly best.

What is going on in the actual battle I do not know. What the plans are of our command, of course, I do not know, and, if I did know, I would not say. But I will say this: I do not know which way we will move, but I do know we will win.

THE SEAWAY BOBS UP AGAIN.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

The St. Lawrence seaway has been firmly interred by every session of congress in recent years, but like Banquo's ghost it refuses to stay dead. Dispatches from Washington reveal that a series of moves has been undertaken recently to revive waterways and power development projects.

Secretary of State Hull and War Secretary Stimson have both asked the senate commerce committee for early action on the 1941 agreement between Canada and the United States, and it is reported that the ratifying bill for the agreement, introduced last fall by Sen. Aiken of Vermont, is to be dusted off and given a hearing by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Overton of Louisiana. Identical bills have been introduced in both houses at this session to make the St. Lawrence project a part of the nation's post-war program.

The emphasis in the 1941 agreement is on power development and calls for the construction of power dams in the St. Lawrence river designed to produce 2,200,000 horse power of hydro-electric energy at a cost of approximately $280,000,000. However, the agreement also includes the construction of an ocean going channel from the Great Lakes to the sea.

The sound reasons which resulted in the rejection of the original St. Lawrence treaty by the senate and which have blocked the ratification of the 1941 agreement still stand. The St. Lawrence seaway is not justified economically, it would surrender American sovereignty over Lake Michigan, which lies wholly within the boundaries of this country, it provides for the lion's share of the cost to be borne by the United States, and it would penalize the landlocked middle west.

In addition, there is the compelling consideration that neither the materials, man power nor money for the project can be spared while the war continues. The proponents of the St. Lawrence power development know this. Obviously their strategy is to secure approval of the seaway now while the nation's attention is fixed on the approaching invasion of Europe, so that the project may be included in the post-war public works program. The middle west should be on guard to defeat this strategy.

Some one asked the wife of the author of many of these notes if he was engaged in the war effort, and she said, "Yes, he's a paragraph trooper."—Christian Science Monitor.

SPARE YOUR HEART AND ENJOY LIFE.

THE other day, on a suburban train, I met an old friend. Ten or 12 years ago, he experienced a heart collapse. I was delighted to observe his youthful and alert appearance.

I well recall a conference with him and his physician a few days before he left the hospital. His doctor was one of those wise individuals whose medicine was mixed with common sense. With every dose of a valuable drug, he administered two portions of counsel on how to live.

The problem of this patient [a high powered executive] was to control a tendency to overeat, overexercise, overplay, and oversmoke. He ascribes his present excellent physique—and well he may—to the simple instructions laid down at that consultation. He has followed them religiously.

What was wrong? First of all, he was obese and he was stoking his personal furnaces with too much fuel [food]. The quantity was a thousand calories more than his body could utilize and he did not miss a mouthful. He was then carrying 35 extra pounds. His build is now such that his pump can supply efficiently every part of his body. He needed digitalis then, but that was a decade ago. He has not had recourse to it since.

He was cautioned to take his meals in a more leisurely fashion; not to overindulge in fluids; and not to use salt at the table. He finds that he can eat more meat and, in consequence, he has exhibited no swelling of the extremities. This protein intake has not speeded up his pulse. It has actually slowed the rhythm and has maintained the nitrogen level at the proper stage. He no longer craves excessive fats and starches. Fresh vegetables furnish most of his vitamins.

He is an excellent example of how one can save the circulatory system by declining to gorge. At one time, afflicted with numerous symptoms of indigestion, he now has no difficulty with the gastric apparatus or with the alimentary canal as a whole. His use of alcohol, tobacco, and coffee is moderate. At 66 years, one would have to look a long way to find a more normal specimen.

Apparently, some of us reason that since the heart is muscle and demands food so that it can toil, that the more nutriment we can take aboard, the better. This is true if starvation is in prospect but not under ordinary conditions. The fact is that the digestive fires within burn only about so hot. If we are obliged to oxidize a surplus, sooner or later the furnace will wear out. Furthermore, a surfeit of viands will choke the figurative flues, dull intellect, and render muscles flabby. We must recall that the exact amount of nourishment, and no more, rests the pumping organ because it has less work to do in transporting blood to the intestinal tract.

It is a mistake to think that just because our cells are largely water that we must drink two or three gallons daily. As every cardiac victim knows, if he can restrict fluid to his actual necessities, all of his vital structures will function better. Most of us can get along on a quart and one-half daily, if we have to. Two or three quarts will not be harmful but, beyond this, we are merely risking the accumulation of ponds within the tissues.

We parted at the station. As I wended my way to the hospital the thought came—why can't other chaps, equally valuable to society and to their families, protect themselves not only against routine illness but against those forced periods of inaction which are bound to accompany recurring episodes of heart failure.

DANGDABLE FARCE.

Northbrook, Ill., June 3.—As the operator and owner of a farm and the owner of only one car, I would like to go on record as a strenuous objector to OPA Form 535 [Application for Supplemental and Occupational Mileage Ration—Occupational Use of the Vehicle, etc.].

For a farmer to estimate accurately and honestly round trips a month, miles each day or trip to nearest one-half mile, number of minutes it would take each day if these trips were made by public [?] transportation, number of persons who regularly ride with the driver, estimated miles a month for the next three busy farm months, average, if fewer than 3 persons, why, specify the occupations, to what places do you drive, can you use other means of transportion, if not, explain every three months when you need gas, where are your marketing centers, how far, give the names and addresses of people who ride with you, how far, if neither of the above is yes, give reasons for applying to this board, and so on is a dangdable farce.

When it becomes necessary for a farmer to tell his ration board how many chickens, acres, baskets of vegetables, hours worked, etc. in order to get 5 or 10 gallons of gasoline a week to operate the farm it is time the following were considered: [a] Vote differently; [b] sell the farm; [c] sell the car; [d] eliminate Form R-535 and substitute a simple form for farmers stating estimated gallons of gas needed each week; [e] get a new ration board.

How many miles did you drive this time last year, why didn't you return your B-Book on the exact date it expires, we must have given you too much gas in February, we will have to cut you down in June [harvest month] is exceedingly exasperating, and it becomes entirely understandable why some people prefer black markets to ration boards.

I am not writing this letter in busy months to be funny. I believe we should attempt to conserve gasoline and as far as farming is concerned. "Full Speed Ahead, but Damn the Forms."

BUROCRATIC PAPER WASTE.

Chicago, June 6.—Along the line of thought in Wm. J. Dawson's letter of June 1, "No Shortage in Washington," the alien property custodian's office is just one of the hundreds of government agencies which are indulging in this waste. Consider the promotional material which is sent out to the different government agencies. There are envelope stuffers, questions and answers on the bond issues, posters, receipt forms, and all sorts of printed material which I am sure is just taken out of the envelope, glanced at, and dumped into the wastebasket.

The other day a paper salvage concern hauled away from one government office a half truck load of this unused promotional material left over from other drives, the paper for which could have been used by some printer in filling delayed orders because of inability to get paper.

And so it goes on and on, waste of man power, waste of farm materials, grinding up of millions of pairs of army shoes, etc., etc. Will the people ever stop it? FROM THE SIDELINES.

CONSIDER THE CAT.

Chicago, June 5.—A cry goes up if a cat takes a bird—yet no one seems to consider the cat. Most of the time he has to scratch for his own living. Many people move and leave the cat behind or carry him off to some prairie to freeze and starve. Many stray animals come begging at my door. I always feed them and have never seen a cat take a bird.

If we took better care of our cats, as in days of old, I believe they would soon rid the city of rats. Then there would be no need for the deadly rat poisons that are strewn carelessly and freely around and which have been killing many animals and birds and endangering the lives of young children who play outdoors. ANIMAL LOVER.

FREE PRESS IN AUSTRALIA.

Chicago, June 5.—The gratitude shown our American service men in Australia is utterly shameful. Americans have kept the Japs away and are now protecting the Australian homeland, but they are denied the one thing they live for—their own American newspaper, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. They might as well be denied letters from home. It amounts to the same thing.

Western Springs, Ill., May 31.—In a soldier's vocabulary the word strike is defined as a vigorous forward action against the enemy.

In a civilian's vocabulary the word strike is synonymous with the word quit. A. H. STANLEY.

WHAT TO DO WITH GERMANY.

Chicago, June 5.—During my lifetime Germany has instigated the two most horrible wars in world history; and right now she is planning the third one, which is prophesied as a war of cruelty beyond imagination. The history of Germany is one of aggression and warfare; her conquering ambitions are designed to continue in the future as her youth are right now being bred and educated for the sole purpose of being warriors. Is there any reason why we should encourage this nation and assist her to accomplish her fiendish ambitions?

By her deliberate cruelty and repeated efforts to enslave and destroy others, Germany has canceled her right to be a part of the civilized world. Yet as long as there is a Germany there will be German wars for us to fight. Germany should be divided among the surrounding nations, her people relocated and distributed thruout Europe so that Germany—as a nation—will no longer exist. After this war the German people will be hated and despised; but if they were distributed among other nations they would eventually become absorbed. Individually they would then have at least a chance of recovering their personal pride, earn the respect of others, and acquire a decent and useful place in the world. The breeding place of European warfare would be destroyed if German unity did not exist. Also, other nations would be discouraged from starting future wars if their continued existence as a nation were obviously at stake with the disappearance of Germany as the example. KAY.

BUS DRIVER REPLIES.

Chicago, June 5.—In answer to Claire C. Kennedy's letter on obnoxious bus drivers, who should be ashamed, does she know that courtesy is the world's best gift to mankind, which is not used enough? Does she realize it works both ways?

When the drivers ask the passengers to step to the rear of the coach, it's not for the drivers' convenience, but for the convenience of the passengers. Some people think and say the driver works on a commission and deliberately packs the bus. We work for a salary. We try to be courteous, but we also get aggravated.

A lot of passengers will ring the bell to get off and if it happens to be a skip stop, they get peeved and hang on the bell cord with both hands. As for ordering people off the bus, many a driver drove his bus against company rules during rush hours when it had a mechanical defect rather than unload his passengers and have them wait for 30 minutes or more trying to put them on an overcrowded bus.

When rear doors get out of order, which may happen any time, just listen to the majority of the passengers bawl out the driver. Why don't the shoppers and people with children refrain from riding during the rush hours so people that work all day can get home? I would like to see any person who could be pleasant day after day when he is bawled out and complained to three or four times every hour. Why not a cheery word instead of a grumble?

OBNOXIOUS BUS DRIVER.

WHERE REPUBLICANS WASTE THEIR EFFORTS.

Momence, Ill., June 1.—The campaign policies of the Republican party suggest that the votes of the Communists and internationalists in New York, who are going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt, carry more weight than the votes of all the rest of the people in the United States. Is the New York electoral vote more important than a return to American principles and ideals and a revival of the American form of government? A REPUBLICAN VOTER.

HOW TO GET RID OF TAX EATERS.

Watseka, Ill., June 6.—The OPA was created by the President in April, 1941, and consisted of an executive head [Leon Henderson] and 80 office assistants, a rather harmless looking organization. At the end of the first year of operation this bureau called for an appropriation of 110 million dollars and an organization of 90,000 federal payrollers. Congress compromised and gave the bureau 90 million dollars of the taxpayers' money to play with.

The second year's budget called for more than 177 million dollars, which is 25 million dollars more than it cost the United States to operate the entire navy in 1916. At the end of the third year we find that the OPA has nearly 56,000 federal payrollers and the best thing they do is get in people's hair and make a general nuisance of themselves.

You read a great deal about burocracy and the fact that a substantial portion of the federal tax money is going down the sewer via such agencies and we have come to think of them as being instituted by some supreme authority whose power cannot be revoked. This is an erroneous idea. The Constitution gives to congress alone the authority to provide funds for the perpetuation of such bureaus and while the congressmen rave and rant about federal agencies encroaching on the rights of the states and the people, yet they go on voting funds to sustain the agencies which they see as a great national evil. Congress could have killed the OPA entirely or at least kept it within reasonable bounds at the expiration of the first year of operation simply by refusing to provide 90 million dollars of the taxpayers' money.

This applies to any other bureau or agency which congress deems a nuisance or a needless expense to the people. There are no legal provisions for the people killing off burocrats and the wealth consuming horde of federal payrollers but, by godfrey, you can starve them to death simply by refusing to provide the funds necessary to keep in operation. AUSTIN MOSHER.

BUT HE DIDN'T ASK FOR THEM.

Chicago, June 6.—Mr. Wm. J. Dawson complains in Tuesday's TRIBUNE that this office uses large kraft envelopes in mailing lists of alien patents to "disinterested manufacturers." Perhaps he does not know that these are not circulars or advertising, no sheets are mailed out unless they are first requested, and also they are paid for in advance by the customers. Furthermore if only a few sheets are mailed out they are a supplement to a specific class which he already has and probably does not wish the added sheets to be folded.

The envelopes used may not always fit the sheets as closely as we would desire, but this agency also has its printing and supply problems, and sometimes it is thought better to send requested mail in odd sized envelopes rather than delay the shipment. It happens that the particular envelopes mentioned are taken to use up an old stock on hand and to avoid requesting a new and odd size of envelope which would be more expensive.

DENY SENATORS ACCESS TO MAIL SOUGHT IN PROBE

Kellems Intercepts Are Withheld by Price.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Byron Price.

Washington, D. C., June 10.—The senate postoffice committee prepared tonight for a showdown on the senate's authority to question government bureau executives and examine their records after being defied by Censorship Director Byron Price, an official of the state department, and a navy officer.

The showdown was demanded after Price and the state department official had refused to produce excerpts taken from the mails in the censorship of letters written by Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., manufacturer of war materials.

In view of testimony that several hundred employes of the state department have access to the documents denied the committee and the fact that Miss Kellems' private correspondence has been broadcast by radio and published in papers thruout the land, Sen. Reed [R., Kas.] told Price:

"Byron Price, the position you have taken today is actually funny."

Read Over Radio.

Chosen bits from Miss Kellems' letters have been read over the radio by Drew Pearson, Washington newspaper column smearman. They were read in the house by Rep. Coffee [D., Wash.]. In the investigation begun by the committee they were widely published.

But Price, who already has indicated a state department leak was responsible, declined to trust senators with the material. Price explained that his intercepts [portions copied by censors from letters in the United States mail] have symbols and other secret data which cannot be revealed for security reasons.

Senators Ferguson [R., Mich.] and Eastland [D., Miss.] promptly questioned the system which made such secrets available to Pearson but denied them to the United States senators.

Price offered the explanation that he suspected "a government official" had copied the published parts of the letters which fell into outside hands.

Hurriedly Summoned.

Price was hurriedly summoned to the hearing today after a state department official had refused to produce the excerpts, on orders, he said, of Price.

The censorship director refused to advise the state department official to surrender his copies of the excerpts. Price then refused to produce the originals.

"Have you sought legal advice?" demanded Ferguson.

"No." Price replied.

"Then I suggest you do." said Ferguson sternly.

Suggests Use of Subpena.

Price finally said the proper procedure for the committee would be to subpena the excerpts, altho the state department official had a set of duplicates with him.

Reed, acting chairman, called another meeting for Monday.

Senators McClellan [D., Ark.] and Ferguson recalled stories that the intercepts are so common that Washingtonians who are not American citizens carry them around in "pocket editions."

"Weren't you sufficiently interested to investigate?" asked Ferguson.

"Do you mean asking people around cocktail parties?" retorted Price.

"Is that how you investigate—around cocktail parties?" replied Ferguson.

The refusal which prompted Price's appearance was by George P. Shaw, assistant chief of the state department division of foreign activity correlation. He testified that no record is kept as to who gets the 9,000 to 12,000 mail intercepts which Price's office supplies the state department weekly.

"The intercept itself is the record." He said, "if we can't find an intercept, we don't know where it went."

Lt. Theodore Koop, Price's navy assistant, was another who declined to testify. He explained he would have to get navy permission.

"You'd better get it—right quick." Reed snapped.

Koop hurried to the telephone, but was saved from testifying by Price's speedy arrival.

I. B. M. OFFICERS.

For the first time in many months, the navy has issued a new, limited quota for international business machine supervisors who are qualified to supervise and control the operation and maintenance of I. B. M. installations at naval training centers. The present quota is not large and probably will be quickly filled. Candidates must be between the ages of 24 and 50 and have had at least two years of accredited college work. A minimum of three years of experience in a supervisory capacity of an I. B. M. installation is a basic requirement. This experience must include familiarity with the operation of key punch, sorting, tabulating machines, and alphabetic equipment. Familiarity with multiplying machines and collators is desirable altho not essential. Applicants must, of course, be physically qualified for appointment as reserve officers. Interviews and further information can be secured at the office of naval officer procurement, Board of Trade building, Chicago.

V. M. writes: "My husband has been in the naval air corps since September, 1942. At that time he was single and made his mother beneficiary of his insurance. We were married in March, 1943, and he changed the beneficiary to me. Neither his mother nor I have ever received any policy altho deductions are regularly made from his pay. Where and to whom could we write or does he have to do it?"

ANSWER: Write to the director of insurance, veterans' administration, Washington 25, D. C. at once, giving the service man's name, serial number, rank or grade and request the certificate be forwarded to you. It is not at all advisable to wait more than six months after a man enters service before demanding this certificate because there have been many cases recently where the service man and his relatives have assumed that he was covered only to discover when he is killed that no payments are forthcoming because of some technicality.

H. M. writes: "I have two in the war, one now a prisoner for 15 months of the Germans, the other has just returned from 27 months with four stars for major battles. I would like to know if his pay while in the United States will include the 20 per cent given for overseas service or is this taken away from him?"

ANSWER: The 20 per cent addition to base pay for overseas service will be taken away from him from the time he arrives in this country until he leaves the country again. The reason is that he actually does not receive a furlough but a reassignment or transfer to a camp or post in this country.

KEEP U. S. FREE, SCHULZE'S PLEA; HE'S 80 TUESDAY

Paul Schulze, head of the Schulze and Burch Biscuit company, who will observe his 80th birthday Tuesday, urged Americans yesterday to prevent "one man rule" and preserve the United States as the "beautiful, independent, and promising country" of 61 years ago when he immigrated from Germany.

"The danger of changing from a republic to a dictatorship is here and it is up to us, all of us, to prevent it," Mr. Schulze said. "We must not allow a one man rule. Most Americans are younger than I am. I hope they realize how much is at stake for all of us."

Mr. Schulze, who will celebrate his anniversary with a party for employes and friends at the biscuit company, first worked as a bookkeeper in Minneapolis. He came to Chicago as a representative of the Washburn-Crosby company and in 1893 organized his baking company. His son, Capt. Walter H. Schulze, was killed in a plane crash in 1919 while flying over Germany to drop leaflets to the army of occupation informing it of the signing of the peace.

GERMAN KILLED BY CHICAGOAN WITH BANDOLEER

In the Italian campaign last winter a Chicago infantry man, Pvt. Chester Floyd, 22, of 4511 Jackson blvd. killed an enemy soldier with no weapon but a bandoleer, it was learned this week. A bandoleer is a cloth shoulder sling in which cartridges are carried. Floyd was helping to defend an American strongpoint that was under German attack. When a burst cartridge jammed his rifle he threw hand grenades, but one German soldier got thru. Floyd seized a bandoleer, swung it with full force against the enemy's head, and killed him instantly.

24 HOSPITAL SHIPS TO HAVE CAPACITY FOR 14,000 PATIENTS

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—A fleet of 18 hospital ships will be in service by the end of June, several of them leaving east coast and gulf ports to bring back wounded from battlefields in France, the war department said today.

Six more ships will be added to the mercy fleet by the end of the year. The 24 vessels will have a capacity of more than 14,000 patients.

The ships are operated under direction of the transportation corps of the army service forces. Eight are now in operation and 10 more soon will be commissioned. The latter are being converted from former army transports and cargo vessels.

MURDER-SUICIDE THEORIES CLASH IN DEATH INQUIRY

Inquest into the death of Mrs. Edith M. Kelsey, 73, who was found slain in her apartment at 4114 Clarendon av. Friday afternoon, yesterday was continued until July 11. The body bore stab wounds about the heart and bruises on the head.

Dr. Thomas A. Carter, coroner's pathologist, expressed belief she had been murdered. Policemen contended she had committed suicide. To substantiate their theory they exhibited several penciled notes in the woman's handwriting mentioning her fear of insanity and giving burial directions.

Evidence that Mrs. Kelsey had attempted suicide by drinking poison last Tuesday was given at the inquest by Dr. S. A. Weiss, 525 Cornelia av., and by the woman's daughter, Mrs. Herbert Ette, 4046 Clarendon av.

Navy Limits Sales in U. S. to Get Cigars Overseas

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—The navy today announced that sale of cigars on military establishments within the United States will be limited to insure a sufficient supply for men overseas. On May 5 the war department reported that a total of 750 million cigars had been allocated to the armed services under an agreement with cigar manufacturers.

Mrs. Josephine Carroll, 76, of 911 Belle Plaine av., died yesterday in the American hospital of injuries suffered June 1 when she was struck by a street car at 4124 Broadway as she was crossing the street.

PRE-INDUCTION ASSIGNMENTS IN DRAFT HALTED

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—Selective service announced tonight that after July 1 inductees no longer will be earmarked for either the army or the navy after their pre-induction physical examinations but will be placed in a common pool to be drawn upon according to the needs of the services.

"The revised procedure will enable local boards to continue to fill each call by selecting available volunteers and childless men ahead of fathers, and induct men in accordance with their order number, as provided by law," the statement said.

After July 1 all registrants ordered to report for induction will go to an induction station where they will be assigned to the army or to the navy and will be inducted immediately. It least 21 days will elapse between the pre-induction physical examination and the induction, as a present.

Medical Major in Army Ends Life in Hotel Room

Maj. Ross Newman, 38, an army physician, shot and killed himself yesterday in his room in the Del Prado hotel. He left a note requesting authorities to notify his father, Charles Newman of Springfield, Mo., who is staying in the Stevens hotel, of his death. Army officers said that Maj. Newman, whose home is in Kansas City, Mo., had been ill. He had been assigned to the staff at Gardiner General hospital and recently had been on duty only a part of each day. He was unmarried.

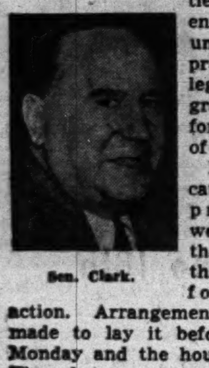
HOUSE, SENATE COMPROMISE ON VETS' BENEFITS

Agree on 52 Weeks' Pay for Jobless G. I.'s.

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—A joint congressional committee settled all its differences today and unanimously approved a broad legislative program of benefits for the veterans of this war.



Sen. Clark.

Expected ratification of the compromise next week will send the legislation to the White House for Presidential action. Arrangements have been made to lay it before the senate Monday and the house Tuesday or Thursday.

Sen. Clark [D., Mo.], chairman of the senate conferees, said, "I think we've got a good bill."

Under the bill, men and women returning from the war will be entitled to hospitalization, educational assistance, aid in getting jobs, and unemployment compensation. The cost has been estimated at $3,000,000,000 to $6,500,000,000.

Dispute Over Jobless Pay.

Only one provision, dealing with job placement, was in dispute when the senate-house conferees got together this morning. Fearing a deadlock over that, American Legion representatives had sent an "SOS" to Rep. Gibson [D., Ga.], one of the conferees, at his home at Douglas, Ga., to cast what might be the deciding vote.

Gibson arrived by plane early this morning. There wasn't the stalemate the Legion thought, for the first ballot was 13 to 1 to accept the senate's idea of putting job placement under the United States employment service to avoid setting up a whole new agency in the veterans administration.

The conferees accepted a house proposal that any benefits a veteran gets under the "G. I. bill of rights" be deducted from any bonus granted him after the war.

Provisions of Bill.

1. If the veteran should be out of a job during the first two years after his discharge, he could draw $20 a week unemployment compensation for 52 weeks.

2. If his education was interrupted when he put on a uniform—and the bill establishes a presumption of interruption if he entered service before the age of 25—he could get a year's schooling and in some instances a complete college education. The government would pay $500 for the year's tuition, laboratory fees, books and similar expenses, and $50 a month for subsistence plus $25 for dependents.

3. If he needed a job, he could enlist the help of the federal employment service.

4. If he needed hospitalization, he would get it thru the veterans' administration.

VETERANS BACK PLAN TO REOPEN BONUS FILINGS

Election of Daniel M. Smith, Oak Park, 124th artillery, as president, and adoption of a resolution asking the state legislature to re-open filings by World War I. veterans for state bonuses featured the annual reunion yesterday of the 33d Division in the Morrison hotel. Oscar E. Carlstrom, chairman of the resolutions committee, explained that several veterans of the first World war failed to file for their bonus before the deadline in 1933.

A resolution to admit into the organization all World War II. veterans serving with the federalized troops connected with the 33d division was adopted. The organization also went on record favoring retention of the G. A. R. memorial in the north end of the Chicago public library as a memorial hall for all veterans. Under existing conditions, the memorial would cease as such, when the last member of the G. A. R. succumbs, Carlstrom explained.

REPORTS CASH, VALUABLES TAKEN. Burglars took a child's bank containing $100, two watches, and a camera from the apartment of Aaron Engel, 2949 W. Walton st., he told police yesterday.

ASSERT PUBLIC ATTITUDE VITAL IN HELPING VET

To the many men discharged from the services because of mental or nervous troubles, the kind of treatment they receive from families, friends, employers and society as a whole is of great importance. Their chances of recovery can be increased and their progress hastened if people will follow a few simple rules in their dealings with them.

This is the opinion of psychiatrists interviewed recently by THE TRIBUNE. Their warnings that mental disturbances should not be considered a reflection on the individual or his family were contained in an earlier article in this series.

Three Vital Rules.

Help the discharged veteran find his place in civilian life as quickly as possible, avoid treating him as if he were an object of pity, and encourage him to seek professional psychiatric treatment if he needs it. These were the principal rules of conduct recommended.

"What the veteran wants and has every right to expect is absorption in the economic, governmental and social life of the nation as rapidly and painlessly as possible," said Dr. Rudolph G. Novick, medical director of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

Delay Opposed.

He opposed any unnecessary delay in beginning the process of rehabilitation and added that the quicker an ex-service man could regain his place in the community the better it would be for his morale.

"He thus will be convinced," he said, "that rejection for military service does not constitute a rejection by society as a whole and that he is still an essential unit in society."

Dr. Novick cautioned against an overemotionalized, overly sympathetic attitude.

"Such an attitude can result only in harm to the service man."

Psychiatrist May Help.

An important way a discharged veteran's family can help him is by encouraging him to see a psychiatrist if he is emotionally disturbed or presents neurotic symptoms, said Dr. Harry Nierenberg, director of the Chicago Community clinic. Extremely rapid results in psychiatric treatment should not be demanded, he warned.

He explained that whereas a physical illness often clears up after two or three visits to a doctor, a mental one in some cases may require many hours of treatment distributed over a long period of time. Others require only a few hours, he added.

Life Guard Tests

Chilly temperature did not prevent women candidates for life guard posts with the park district from flocking to Washington park swimming pool yesterday for tryouts. Joseph Mansfield, superintendent of beaches, park district, and Frank Walker, swimming instructor and examiner, helped put the girls thru deep water tactics. Jeanette Rubelo, 22, of 3152 Fifth av., and Mary Furman, 18, of 8251 Coles av., found a blanket comforting as they rested between tests.

Pvt. Charles Schasane Dies in New Guinea Blast

Pvt. Charles Schasane, 38, was killed May 31 in an explosion at Finschhafen, New Guinea, according to word received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Clara Schasane of 1826 Park av., North Chicago. Pvt. Schasane, who entered the army two years ago, formerly was a civilian employe at the Great Lakes Naval Training center.

BOY, 10, KILLED AS HE AND CHUM PLAY WITH GUN

Ralph Cramer, 10, of 4735 N. Central Park av., was fatally shot yesterday by a playmate, Leon Rotter, 10, in the Rotter home at 4733 N. Central Park av.

Returning from a movie, the boys found a .38 caliber revolver which had lain unused in a dresser drawer for 18 years. In another drawer, Leon found two cartridges, which he put in the chamber of the revolver.

In some manner, the weapon was discharged and the bullet struck Ralph in the chest. Leon attempted to administer first aid, then he summoned Dr. R. M. Gillman, 3605 Lawrence av., who pronounced Ralph dead.

Leon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rotter, were at work in the grocery at 3655 Lawrence av., in which Rotter has an interest.

Ralph, a pupil at Haugen elementary school, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cramer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 10. — The chronic weakness of Charley Grimm's furnace room occupants caught up with them again this afternoon in their replay of last night's 3 to 3 deadlock. Three members of the Chicago Cubs pitching department were called on for help of one kind or another, but the response of each was so timid that the Pirates splattered their home premises with base hits and thus fabricated a 9 to 4 success before a rousing house of 1,710 cash customers.

The first thing the Pirates did to give the Cubs a clew that they were in for a tough afternoon was to shower three opening inning runs on Paul Derringer after the eighth placers had kicked off with a pair. Before retiring in the next inning, the ex-Red was frisked for another but the Cubs tied it soon thereafter to put the affair entirely in the hands of Rescuer Bill Fleming. Altho he allowed only four hits in three innings, he was charged with the loss, subsequent three run damage in the eighth being a matter for Dale Alderson's earned run percentage.

Starr Falls in Debut.

The Cubs were able to knock out Ray Starr, the ex-Red who was making his first start as a Pirate, but the tail-enders weren't exactly violent in their handling of the old boy. He was present for four innings and they made eight hits, as well as all their runs during that period. But half of these hits were of the infield variety and the Chicago lads received additional assistance in the shape of two Pirate errors. However, all merriment of this sort was abruptly halted when Preacher Roe arrived at the start of the fifth. He yielded only two hits and one of these was another infield scratch.

All the Cubs contributed to their fleeting two run lead in the first

RACING FOR THE TAPE IN NATIONAL COLLEGIATE TRACK MEET

SOX AND TIGERS IDLE; PLAY TWO GAMES TODAY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox called off the single game scheduled with the Detroit Tigers yesterday, generously and courteously enabling the Tigers to employ little used Comiskey park for a practice drill. What they were practicing for was a closely guarded secret but there were rumors that the Sox and Tigers may play a double header this afternoon.

Manager Jim Dykes announced after the postponement of yesterday's scheduled single game that he will employ Pitchers Bill Dietrich and Thornton Lee if it develops the clubs can and will play this afternoon. Manager Steve O'Neill has indicated he will assign Dizzy Trout, who has been on tap since Wednesday, and Johnny Gorsica.

Success of Postponement.

Dietrich has whipped the Tigers once this season and Lee suffered the one loss to the Tigers, 2 to 0, in 12 innings on April 27. Later, in Detroit, Lee held the Tigers to two runs in six and one-third innings—thanks somewhat to Sox double plays in four successive innings. Gordon Maltzeberger was the eventual winner of this one, in which Gorsica was the loser. The Sox have not had a whack at Trout as a starter since the exhibition season.

The Sox have made a success of postponements to date. At the beginning of the present home stand they got out of the cellar by remaining idle while Cleveland was losing and toppling into the dungeon. And in the present layoff they have gained a full game on the league leading St. Louis Browns, who have lost twice to Cleveland since the Sox last pulled on their girdles.

Double Header Aid Sox.

This technique can't be carried on indefinitely but the reckoning will come later on—in the form of profitable double header.

The double headers, in addition to being good business arrangements, may favor the Sox on the field inasmuch as they are more copiously supplied with able pitchers than most teams. For instance, they have two gents who haven't been needed thus far for a starting assignment, but who have won seven while losing one—Maltzberger is 5 and 1 and Johnny Humphries 2 and 0.

Nice Loafing Setup.

The Sox have been loafing at an even .500 and with an unfinished run of eight straight victories. Since they weren't especially sizzling in winning No. 8, against the Tigers Wednesday night, this is obviously a nice loafing setup. At any rate, they shouldn't be tense if they go about prolonging that winning streak this afternoon.

Even if they play today the Sox will be in good shape to receive the league leading St. Louis Browns. They are scheduled to play the Browns Monday and Tuesday afternoons but may not get around to playing until Wednesday night.

The Sox and the Yankees now have played the fewest games in the American league, each having engaged in 42. The Sox have stacked up six postponements despite the fact they had a remarkable record of no postponements in the east and only two in the west away from home. They were rained out of one in St. Louis and one in Detroit. Tho they have played only once since last Sunday this was due to a freak-

Michigan Wins 2 from Purdue to Take Big 10 Baseball Title

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 10 (AP).—Michigan clinched the Western conference baseball title today by defeating Purdue, 4 to 2 and 3 to 2, in a double header.

Elroy [Crazy Legs] Hirsch gained his sixth pitching triumph without defeat in the second game when Elmer Swanson scored from second in the ninth inning on Left Fielder Ray Murphy's error. The Wolverines won somewhat easier in the opener.

Southpaw Bliss Bowman of the Wolverines spaced nine hits for his sixth victory in seven starts in the first game. Charley Ketterer doubled and Bruce Blanchard tripled for what proved to be the winning run off Ed Timm in the fifth inning.

The first game victory clinched Michigan's fifteenth Big Ten title and ninth in 24 years under Coach Ray Fisher, former New York Yankee and Cincinnati Reds' pitcher. In addition, it was the eighth conference championship won this school year by the Wolvenines, who missed only in basketball.

WILDCATS WIN, 7 TO 6.

Northwestern university's baseball team ended its season by defeating Notre Dame, 7 to 6, in 11 innings in Dyche field in Evanston yesterday. Outfielder Bob Lindberg drove a single to deep center to score Jim Homco from second with the winning run.

The Irish went into the lead in the third inning by scoring four runs on one hit, two walks and three errors. In their half of the same inning the Wildcats scored two runs on singles by Lyall Johnson and Burt Kresie plus a walk and two errors.

Northwestern bunched four more hits, one of them a double by Ben Schadler, to take a 6 to 5 lead in the seventh inning, but the Irish scored in the eighth to tie the score:

CARDS POUND 5 RED PITCHERS IN 18-0 VICTORY

Cincinnati, O., June 10 (AP).—Bill Lohrman, who used to beat the Cincinnati Reds regularly as a New York Giant, was no help today in his first effort for the Reds as the St. Louis Cardinals blasted him in the second inning and coasted ahead to an 18 to 0 victory on 21 hits and 14 walks.

The game was the most one-sided shutout victory in the National league since June 7, 1906, when Chicago defeated New York, 19 to 0.

All Without Extra Bases.

Six runs were scored in the second inning with the Cards chasing Ed Heusser as well as Lohrman. Buck Fausett, versatile minor leaguer whom the Reds brought up as a third baseman this year, finally got the last two outs.

Oddly enough, not an extra base hit was registered in the inning and even tho Eddie Miller set up the first score by throwing the ball to an unoccupied base, all the runs were earned. Seven singles in all could be counted.

Triple Dead Heat Occurs at Aqueduct

New York, June 10 (AP).—A triple dead heat for first place, the first in New York's racing history, marked today's running of the $10,000 seven furlong Carter handicap at Aqueduct before 26,386.

Crossing the finish line as one were William Woodward's favored Bossuet, running as an entry with Apache; Joe W. Brown's Brownie, and William Ziegler Jr.'s Wait A Bit. They were timed in 1:23 2-5 over a track made sloppy by early afternoon rain.

Bill Sickle Is Fourth.

Three lengths behind in fourth place came W. L. Ranch's Bill Sickle followed by Jack S. L., the top weighted Apache at 132 pounds, Alquest, Ariel Lad, and Doublrab. Smart Bet was scratched.

Bill Sickle led until the head of the stretch when Brownie went out in front. Bossuet was a head behind. Wait A Bit, next to last at the quarter mile pole, closed very fast in the stretch to catch Brownie and Bossuet under a furious drive. The three ran as one during the final sixteenth.

Each won a purse of $3,650. In the mutuels, Bossuet paid $2.40, $2.30 and $2.30, Brownie $4.30, $3.90 and $3.90, and Wait A Bit $3.50, $3.40 and $3.70.

It Happened in Detroit.

The last previous recorded triple dead heat, outside of New York, occurred Oct. 6, 1942 in Detroit when Sabra, Cutloose and Queen Echo couldn't be separated at the finish.

For the first time in several weeks less than $3,000,000 was wagered on a Saturday. A total of $2,503,204 was bet on eight races.

BLACK BADGE WINS

Detroit, Mich., June 10 (AP).—Abe Hirschberg's Black Badge, beaten only once in two years in Detroit stakes, splashed home to victory over Charles T. Fisher's Amber Light in the $7,500 Belle Isle handicap today before 13,282.

Black Badge, outrun by Amber Light a fortnight ago, stepped the six furlongs over the heavy track in the good time of 1:13 for his seventh victory in eight starts here. Amber Light was two and a half lengths back and Johnny McShane's Navy Cross was another four lengths behind in third place. Black Badge and Amber Light went to the post as 7 to 5 co-favorites. The victory was worth $5,000 to the San Francisco owner of the black colt. Black Badge paid $4.80 straight.

MINTLOCK REPEATS

Boston, Mass., June 10 (AP).—Charlie Rufi's Mintlock, winner of the Tomasello handicap here on Memorial day, came back to win the $5,000 added Plymouth Rock handicap of six furlongs today at Suffolk Downs before a crowd of 19,748.

Well ridden by Jockey Jimmy Brennan, Mintlock just lasted to win by a nose over Mrs. Helen P. Bonner's Defense. Third, a half length back, was Pine Tree farm's Valdina Alpha, which had three-quarters of a length on H. Guy Bedwell's Sollure, the 6-5 favorite. W. I. Lunt's Valdina Punch brought up the rear.

The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5 and paid $15.60, $5.40, and $3.40. Defense returned $4 and $3.20 and Valdina Alpha, $3.60 on show.

$5,000 LA SALLE IS JUST A ROMP FOR VALDINA FOE

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Chicago owned Valdina Foe from the stable of John Marsch, fleet 4 year old son of Sun Briar, ran away from his field in the seventh running of the $5,000 added La Salle handicap, feature event on yesterday's Lincoln Fields program at Hawthorne.

A crowd of 16,871 was awed by the ease with which the big bay colt swept by the judges' stand eight lengths in front of Equifox, co-favorite with Shot Put, another old timer of the turf. Equifox, whose sire was the great Equipoise, was hard put to take the place from the 3 year old Paragram, getting the call by a nose. Shot Put finished fourth, a head back in the field of eight.

Takes Lead at 6 Furlongs.

Otto Grohs, who seems to be in his element when the chips are down, rode a perfect race on Valdina Foe. He was second to F. A. Smith on Soverton for six furlongs and then moved Valdina Foe up in front and let him draw into a lead which he increased with almost every stride.

Equifox, from the stables of Howard Wells and ridden by Al Bodiou, was under restraint early, but came along thru the stretch to catch Mr. and Mrs. Ed McEvoy's Paragram.

Shot Put, owned by Mrs. Marie Evans and ridden by Jess Higley, was away slowly, reached a contending position in the back stretch, but then weakened at the finish. The winner's time was 1:59 2-5 for the mile and three-sixteenth on a sloppy track, just three seconds off the track record held by Mad Play.

Rated at 5 to 1.

Shot Put, winner of the event in 1941, and Equifox, victor in 1942, went to the post at odds of 5 to 2, while Valdina Foe was held at 5 to 1. The winner paid $13.20, $5.80, and $4.00. Equifox returned $4.40 and $3.40, and Paragram $6.20.

The secondary feature of the afternoon's eight race program, the $2,500 Garfield Boulevard handicap, went to C. U. Yaeger's Corona Corona, winner of the $5,000 added Steger last Saturday.

Yesterday's mutuel handle was $985,904, second largest betting day of the meeting, and for a change the backers of favorites got several chances to see their choices in the winner's circle.

Double Pays $30.80.

Native Fox, which paid only $4.80, took the opening event and Ci Light won the second at $8.60 to provide only $30.80 for daily double players. Flying King won the third at a price of $7, and then the entry of Bell Song and The Man came in one-two in the fourth for a $3.60 mutuel.

Camp Ellis Nine Takes 10th Straight Game, 15-1

Camp Ellis, Ill., June 10 (AP).—Behind the four hit pitching of Bill Frazier, former Chicago White Sox pitcher, Camp Ellis won its 10th straight victory, a 15 to 1 decision over the army air corps team of Springfield, Ill., today. Frazier fanned 13 and collected four hits in five trips to the plate. Score:

Springfield ......001 000 000— 1 4 4
Camp Ellis ......002 820 35*—15 15 3
Batteries—Torgerson, Fisher and Joyner; Frazier and Vravlik.

BUDDY YOUNG TAKES SPRINT CHAMPIONSHIP

Notre Dame Second, Michigan Third.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 10.—Team standings in the national collegiate track meet tonight follow:

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 10.—Buddy Young is the sprint champion of Intercollegiate track and he and his teammates are the best squad in National Collegiate competition this year. They won these honors tonight in Marquette university stadium in the 23d annual games. Tonight's meet marked the third N. C. A. A. title for the Illini.

The Illini scored four individual championships, two of them by Young, shared in another, and secured nine more scoring positions to total 79 points. Notre Dame, with 43 points, nosed out Michigan, champion of the western conference, for second place. The Wolverines had 40 points founded principally on the dead heat in the mile by Ross and Bob Hume. The latter also was second in the half mile.

Young Suffers Second Defeat.

Three other western conference universities—Ohio State, Northwestern, and Purdue—followed in the team standings before Morgan State broke the parade. Twenty-four teams scored.

Illinois' team victory was fashioned around Young as was expected for the freshman star backed up his two sprint triumphs by a second place in the broad jump. This was the second defeat in the jump this year for the western conference champion as he had been beaten earlier at Michigan by Elroy Hirsch.

Tonight Young barely cleared 23 feet and the title went to Ralph Tyler of Ohio State who had lost the Big Ten broad jump by half an inch. This licking and the knowledge that Illinois needed no more points caused Buddy to scratch in the low hurdles, the concluding event, altho he had qualified. Even so, Buddy's 28 points won individual honors.

Young Defeats Conwell.

Young soundly whipped Ed Conwell of New York university, I. C. 4-A champion, to take the 220 yard sprint title by four yards. There was no doubt of Buddy's superior speed from the time the sprinters left their marks on the east side of the track. Young built up his advantage on the turn and Conwell failed to narrow the gap.

The publicized meeting between the men at 100 yards did not materialize because Conwell made two false starts and was disqualified by Dr. W. J. Monilaw. Thus, Dick Madden of Northwestern was second, beaten by eight yards. Young's mark of :09.7 was excellent for the track which was slow from yesterday's rain.

8,000 Watch Games.

Eight thousand watched the games. They cheered Young and Burly Elmore Harris from Morgan State, Baltimore, Md., who won the quater mile and the low hurdles to tie Young with two individual titles. But they reserved their loudest applause for Marquette's own Ken Wiesner who dethroned Fred Sheffield of Utah, defending high jump champion.

Wiesner's leap of 6 feet 7 3-16 inches, his all time best, was the outstanding performance of the games. Sheffield jumped 6 feet 8 inches last year at Northwestern but tonight he was 2 inches short of Wiesner's winning height.

Capt. Bob Kelley of Illinois was trounced by Harris in the quarter mile as the easterner ran the lap in 47 9-10 seconds, the best collegiate time of this season. But Kelley redeemed himself by a stirring victory in the half mile.

Nichols Wins High Hurdles.

Dave Nichols, Illinois' conference high hurdle champion, took this event in a closely waged duel with Harold Fisher of Miami, O., university. Fisher, winner at the Drake relays, had a mark of 15 seconds in the afternoon trials but in the final test tonight he was whipped by a stride by Nichols. Bob Ruther, Nichols' teammate, was a foot behind Fisher.

Illinois also got a share of the pole vault title when Bob Phelps tied with Phil Anderson of Notre Dame, John Schmidt of Ohio State, and William Blackwell of Oberlin for first place at 13 feet.

In winning the mile tonight in a dead heat, Ross and Bob Hume of Michigan ran their third fastest outdoor race at the distance. Alternating in the lead, the twins went the quarter 1:02.5, covered the half mile in 2:08.5, and three-quarters in 3:15.5. Their mile mark was 4:16.6.

Frank Martin of Notre Dame was content to take third place more than a hundred yards back for Martin reserved his strength for the two mile run in which he easily outdistanced all competitors. His time of 9:38.4 stamped him as the nation's best and he thus contributed 18 points to Notre Dame's second place team total.

Bangert Takes Discus.

Bill Bangert of Missouri, Big Six discus champion, had no difficulty taking the N. C. A. . title with a toss of 149 feet 5 inches, but he was forced to runner-up position in the shotput. Norman Wasser won this event with an acceptable put of 49 feet 1 inch.

Tom Boswell of Evanston High school, Illinois State interscholastic sprint champion, won a special 100 yard race against Milwaukee youngsters. Boswell's time was 10 1-10 seconds. Summaries:

The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

CHICAGOLAND industrial golfers will be out in force today for the first preliminary round in the Industrial Amateur Golf association's summer tournament schedule. Teams will play on three courses, according to the location of the industries which they represent.

The set-up this year will show a tremendous growth over the I. A. G. A.'s first effort last fall, when 29 teams of four men each competed in a fall tournament for the Claud S. Gordon trophy. The exact number of industries which will compete in this year's enlarged organization will not be known until a week from today, when the second half of the first preliminary round will be played. At that time plants desirous of entering but unable to line up their teams by today will start play.

North Side Teams Expect to Carry Off Honors Again.

North zone teams, which carried off most of the honors in the 1943 tournament and are planning on repeating this year, will tee off on two courses today. Those on the far north side will play at the Suburban Country club, Waukegan, while near north side plants will send their teams to Blackheath, on the Waukegan road. The west zone players will converge on St. Andrews while the south siders will hold forth at Glen Eagles.

Roy Healy, executive director of the association, said yesterday that, tho he had no exact figures on the entries, he expects from 400 to 500 players to report at the four courses today, depending on the weather. To this number will be added at least 100 late starters who will open their competition next Sunday. Because of the impossibility of completing the organization of the summer program by today, the entry deadline has been extended. This was to have been effective Friday but industries wishing to compete still may contact Healy at the Claud S. Gordon Co., 3000 S. Wallace st., or telephone him at Victory 6525.

Six softball teams will do their part to increase the friendly spirit which exists among the four Chicago plants of the J. P. Seeburg corporation. Jerry Zei, manager of the 1943 champions, says he has lost six of his regulars thru the draft [Uncle Sam's, not the baseball variety] but expects to be right among the leaders again. Receiving won the championship in the 20 team Seeburg bowling league this year, with individual honors going to Irv White. Phil Barile was president of the league, Vince Infante, secretary, and Wally O'Connor, treasurer and the prize list was one of the highest offered in any Chicago industrial league.

THO it had rained much of the day and the temperature was not within 40 degrees of the level usually considered as most conducive to the sale of pink lemonade, the second Illinois Tool Works country fair Thursday night was a success. Six hundred I. T. W. workers or members of employes' families, plus a number of guests from the J. P. Seeburg corporation braved the weather and had a big time in Rock-Ola stadium, 4200 N. Central av.

There were two softball games between representatives of the two firms. The Illinois Tool girls beat the Seeburgs, 20 to 12, in the seven inning opener, after which the I. T. W. men proved they were good entertainers and perfect hosts by losing to their Seeburg guests, 18 to 15 in a nine inning contest in which the lead changed hands almost as frequently as the runners crossed the plate.

Want to Try It Again When Summer Comes to Stay.

The softball games were only part of the entertainment. There were a number of games of skill—not to mention others in which chance may have played at least a small part. Four hundred pounds of hams and bacon, along with a considerable quantity of candy, blankets, and other awards were carried away by the skilful or lucky I. T. W. and Seeburg workers.

The latter, along with the host company, have enjoyed the two country fairs put on by Lyle Bennett and others of the Illinois Tool recreation department so much that they already have requested that another be held later this summer, with the Seeburg teams again playing in the softball part of the program. The I. T. W. teams will return to a straight softball program Thursday of this week, when they will meet the men's and girls' teams of the Schwinn Bicycle company in Rock-Ola stadium.

21 Teams Play in 2 Sections of North Av. Y League.

After two rounds of warm-up games, the 14 men's and seven girls' teams of the North Av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. softball league were all set to go into action last week. They managed to get in five games on Thursday night in Weber park but were rained out Friday.

The league roster has increased somewhat since a tentative season lineup was announced in this column several weeks ago, additions being Motorola Radio and Gits Molding. Four industries are represented by both men's and girls' teams, these being Oak Manufacturing, Chicago Latrobe, Stewart-Warner, and Haber Screw Machine Products.

Haber Company Adds Golf Instruction to Schedule.

The Haber company, which this spring started building up a diversified athletic and recreational system in coöperation with the North Av. Y, will open a golf school in the association building Tuesday night. A north side golf pro has been engaged to give group instruction weekly for the next three weeks, after which a tournament will be arranged for both men and women players. Later there will be further instruction. Fifty workers, men and women, have signed up for the instruction.

HALSTEAD PLAYS VASH TODAY FOR STATE NET TITLE

Finals in the Illinois State Open tennis tournament will be played this afternoon at the Fullerton Tennis club with veteran Thane Halstead of River Forest, former state title holder, meeting Gene Vash of Sherwood at 3 o'clock for the men's singles championship.

In the women's singles match at 2 o'clock Mitzi Radek of the Lawnchester Tennis club will meet Helen Fulton Shockley of the Chicago Town and Tennis club.

Halstead, seeded No. 1 in the pairings, advanced to the final round by defeating Gene Quinn of Fullerton, 6-3, 6-3, in a semi-final match yesterday afternoon. Quinn was seeded No. 3 in the tourney.

Vash, seeded second, dropped the first set in his semi-final match with Sol Gould of Fullerton, but rallied to win, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. Gould had been seeded fifth.

In the women's semi-final play Miss Radek defeated Marian Hart of Sherwood, 7-5, 6-1, and Mrs. Shockley defeated Elaine Passow, 6-2, 6-1, to win finalist positions.

Veterans, led by Halstead, who won the state singles title in 1934, have dominated play this year. Vash is the only member of the men's semi-final group below the draft age and he has been a familiar figure in state competition for several years.

NATIONAL CLAY COURT MEET TO OPEN TOMORROW

Detroit, Mich., June 10 (AP).—Pauline Betz, the strawberry blonde from Los Angeles, and Little Francisco [Pancho] Segura of Miami, Fla., were top-seeded today in the 34th National Clay court tournament opening Monday at the Detroit Tennis club.

Miss Betz, who added the clay court title last year at Detroit to her two national lawn championships, was placed atop a list of eight rated players. Nancy Corbett of River Forest, Ill., 1943 runner-up to Miss Betz, was ranked seventh, indicating the high quality of the feminine field.

Talbert Rated No. 2.

Segura, dashing Ecuadoran with the two-fisted drive, drew the top spot ahead of Billy Talbert of Indianapolis, who lost a four-set final match last year to Seymour Greenberg of Chicago. Greenberg, now an army air force lieutenant at Lowrey field, Colo., was unable to arrange leave to seek his third successive clay title.

Doris Hart of Miami is No. 2 behind Miss Betz, followed in order by Dorothy May Bundy, New York; Mary Arnold, Los Angeles; Shirley Fry, Akron, O.; Catharine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind.; Miss Corbett, and Constance Clifton of Miami.

Segura and Talbert are followed by Rex Norris of Lansing, Mich.; Ray Gibson, Hobart Wrobbel, and Hubert Manire of Detroit, and Richard Warner and Robert Lewis of Salt Lake City.

Bigger than 1943 Meet.

Segura and Miss Betz have first round byes. Miss Hart is paired Monday with hard hitting Joanne Dunn of Des Moines, Ia., in the day's feature match. Talbert's opening opponent is Edward Donovan of Detroit.

The tournament has an entry of 73 players, 46 in the men's division, representing an increase of nearly 50 per cent over last year. Eleven states are represented—California, Florida, Georgia, New York, Utah, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, and Michigan.

While the field is much stronger, Miss Betz is an overwhelming favorite. She swept thru the 1943 tournament with the loss of only six games while taking eight straight sets.

PIRATES BUNCH HITS TO DEFEAT OUR CUBS, 9 TO 4

Derringer Yields Seven in Two Innings.

inning was a pair of infield hits. After two were gone, Phil Cavarretta beat out a roller to Frankie Gustine, Bill Nicholson walked, and Andy Pafko also beat out a grounder to Gustine. Dom Dallessandro lined to right and Barrett failed to make the catch, the scorer terming it an error. Whatever it was, it sent Cavarretta and Nicholson home.

Holm's Slip Helps Foe.

The Pirates started their three run opener with a bunt by John Barrett and a single by Gustine, both advancing on a passed ball by Bill Holm. The mistake put Barrett in position to score on Jim Russell's fly. Bob Elliott singled and Gustine skipped across the plate. After Babe Dahlgren had singled, he was forced at second on Vince Di Maggio's tap to Roy Hughes, but in attempting what should have been a double play Don Johnson heaved the ball past Cavarretta and Elliott scored for a 3 to 2 Pirate lead.

Frank Zak's single and steal in the second followed by Barrett's single gave the Pirates a two run edge, but in the third the Cubs used Lou Novikoff as a means of starting toward a tie. With two gone, Johnson and Holm singled and Novikoff, batting for Derringer, pasted a one baser into center to transport Johnson across the plate. Then they tied it at 4 apiece in the fourth altho they should have done better, in view of the fact that the bases were filled with none out. A single by Hughes, Gustine's error on Cavarretta and Nicholson's infield hit created the full house. The long run registered on Pafko's fly.

A Third Proves Costly.

Despite some difficulties, Fleming got by nicely in the third and fourth only to be floored by one hit in the fifth. It was Elliott's triple to center, scoring Russell, who had led off with a pass. Elliott counted on Dahlgren's fly and thus Uncle Frank Frisch was made happy with a 6 to 4 advantage. It became 9 to 4 in the eighth because of four hits and a pass off Alderson, one of the hits being Zak's fourth single of the matinee.

PLAY PAIR TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 10.—If Lefty Bob Chipman, acquired from the Dodgers several days ago for Eddie Stanky, shows up tomorrow, he'll make his Cub debut in the double header that will conclude the Chicagoans' present visit here. Paul Erickson will operate in the other half. The Pirates will start Max Butcher and Nick Strincevich.

Ed Hanyzewski, who pulled a muscle in his right elbow more than three weeks ago, did some real throwing before today's game and reported he was quite happy about the developments. He was able to cut loose with his fast ball for the first time.

During batting practice today Mickey Kreitner requested that Dale Alderson serve him a curve. Alderson responded with a twister so sweeping that it plunked Mickey under the left eye. He was removed to Doc Andy Lotshaw's repair shop.

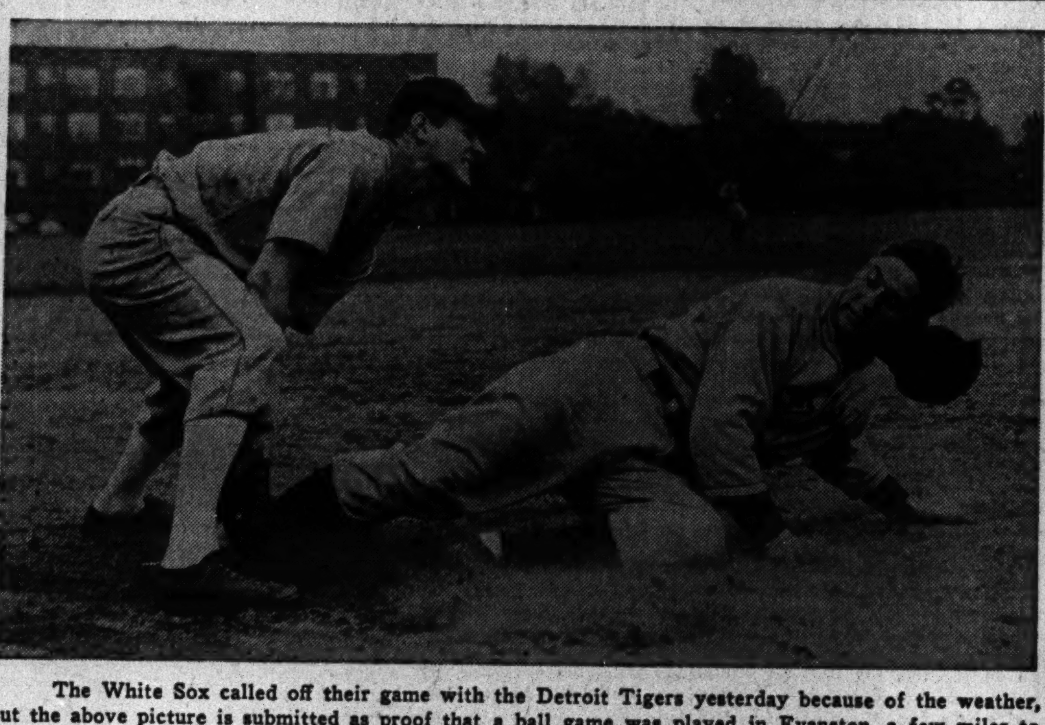
AND EVANSTON IS NORTH OF COMISKEY PARK!



The White Sox called off their game with the Detroit Tigers yesterday because of the weather, but the above picture is submitted as proof that a ball game was played in Evanston, a few miles to the north. Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame loses his cap and the decision at third base in the sixth inning, with Larry Savage of Northwestern making the putout. The Wildcats won, 7 to 6.

TRAFTON GOES OVER TO ENEMY—THOSE PACKERS!

BY EDWARD PRELL.

George Trafton.

If it weren't for Lt. Comdr. George Halas being thousands of miles away, maybe George Trafton would not have done what he did yesterday. Mr. Trafton, who was the original center of Halas' Staleys, forerunners of the Chicago Bears, has gone over to the enemy. To Halas, this means the Green Bay Packers, if you eliminate the lieutenant commander's current enemy, the Japs, which is what George and a few hundred thousand other Americans are doing.

Trafton, 47, isn't going to play for the Packers, but he's going to show Curly Leambeau's linemen how to deploy. There's one consolation for the Bears—they've changed their system and their ways considerably since big George finally quit after the 1932 season, ending 13 seasons as a National leaguer. This still stands as record longevity for a lineman, altho it is topped by a half back, Johnny Blood, who lasted for 15 seasons. Johnny, like Halas, also is a Jap hunter now.

Manages Willie Joyce.

It's hard to imagine Trafton making this connection if his old boss, Halas, still were in the loop. And this move by Trafton also poses a problem for the rabid citizenry of Green Bay. When George was at the height of his career, he was a public enemy up in the north country.

Big George's new connection will separate him from the boxing industry. He is proprietor of Willie Joyce, the Gary Negro who was given a decision the other night over Henry Armstrong in the Coliseum, his second victory in three bouts with the former triple champion. This was a more pleasant adventure in boxing for George than two previous efforts. But that was back when Trafton fancied himself a fighter.

Also Tried Wrestling.

In December of 1929, Trafton fought Whataman Art Shires, the White Sox first baseman. The decision went to Trafton after five brawling rounds and 5,000 people paid $15,000 in White City to see it. Later, Trafton became more ambitious and entered the ring in Kansas City against Primo Carnera. George went down three times in 54 seconds, the last time for good.

Later, big George tried the wrestling business. He won eight straight matches in Pennsylvania coal mining towns. The triumphal tour moved into Ohio where George's opponent was a character billed as the African Tiger. After they had tugged for 15 minutes and the Tiger was still working earnestly, George whispered, "When are you going down?" The Tiger replied, "I'm supposed to win in an hour and 25 minutes!" Six seconds later, the Trafton mat career was finished.

Started in Oak Park.

Trafton played football at Oak Park High school. He joined the army in 1918 and was captain of Camp Grant's football team. He was so good he attracted the attention of several college men who told him he should go back to school and play football. He chose Notre Dame and played with the Irish in 1919. Then he hooked up with Halas, who was embarking on his pro career as player-coach of the Staleys.

Trafton was line coach at Northwestern in 1922 under Glenn Thistlethwaite between assignments with the Bears. He was a colorful player, strong on offensive and defense, and spirited. The latter quality was the deciding factor when Lambeau considered 26 applications for the job as successor to Red Smith. Green Bay fans will learn to like big George. But Halas won't like it.

Ab Wright, Reinstated by Millers, Sold to Braves

Minneapolis, Minn., June 10 (AP).—The Minneapolis club tonight announced the sale of Ab Wright, veteran outfielder, to the Boston Braves in a straight cash deal. In 1933 he was with the Cleveland Indians. Under suspension for the last several days as a disciplinary measure, Wright was reinstated today.

Negro League Lists 2 Games on Card Today

George [Mule] Suttles, one of the leading home run hitters in Negro baseball, will be honored in Wrigley field this afternoon. Suttles manages and plays left field for the Newark Eagles of the Negro National League who face the Memphis Red Sox in the second game of a three team double header. Memphis takes on the St. Louis Stars in the 1:30 p. m. opener.

Suttles is an idol of Chicago fans, having been one of the greatest stars in the American Giants' history. His long home runs at Comiskey park in 1933 and 1935 won games for the West in the annual East-West all-star series. One of the players opposing him in the Memphis lineup today is Neal Robinson, center fielder, whose homers won the 1935 and 1940 games for the West. Robinson is currently leading the Negro American League in home runs, total bases, runs batted in and stolen bases.

Memphis will pitch Porter Moss against St. Louis, who will counter with the veteran, Chip McAllister, Verdal Mathis, brilliant southpaw, will hurl the Red Sox' second game against Newark's Jimmy Hill. The lineup:

Star Class Race Won by Boy Skipper

William Goss, 16 year old junior at Elgin academy, won the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's Star class race yesterday with his father, former Commodore Sam Goss, and a schoolmate, Tom Phillipsborn, crewing for him. They sailed Commodore Goss' sloop North Star, covering the 10 mile course off Wilmette harbor in 1 hour 45 minutes and 32 seconds.

Sharon, Philip Nickerson's sloop, won the club's Arrow class event over a six mile course, with Boatswain's Mate Aaron Evans, U. S. C. G. R., finishing second in his Alady.

Alert IV. Triumphs.

Dr. T. J. Morris' R class yacht Alert IV. won the Chicago Yacht club's 12 mile race off Belmont harbor in 2:07:34. Yankee, Ed Schnabel Sr.'s entry, trailed by 19 seconds. Yankee led the fleet the first 10 miles of the course, but in rounding the last buoy to head for the finish line the spinnaker halyard became caught at the masthead and could not be hauled down. Seaman Ed Schnabel Jr., son of the owner and a V-12 student of Northwestern university's navy school, climbed the mast and cleared the halyard. Alert IV. and Harry Nye's Gale had passed the Yankee during maneuver, but Skipper Schnabel caught Gale before the finish.

The Chicago Yacht club's new fleet of Weekender yachts, 34 foot cutters built for both cruising and racing, raced yesterday for the first time. Harold E. Stafford's Albatross was the winner, covering the eight mile course in 1:22:26. Summaries:

RUTH IMPROVES AFTER HAVING KNEE OPERATION

New York, June 10 (AP).—Babe Ruth was reported doing nicely today after an operation for the removal of cartilage from his right knee. The injury was incurred during his baseball playing days.

"Maybe I can get a few years back and be able to play some golf," said the former home run king before entering the hospital. He was 50 last February.

PHILLIE HEAD CHASES BOOK IN ANATOMY STUDY

Sgt. Robert R. M. Carpenter.

Camp Grant, Ill., June 10 [Special].—A husky soldier dressed in fatigue clothes emerged from a classroom in the 32d battalion area of Camp Grant, where physical reconditioning instructors are trained for assignment to army hospitals.

"Are you Sgt. Robert R. M. Carpenter, president of the Philadelphia National league baseball club?" he was asked.

Sgt. Carpenter replied that he was and revealed that he had arrived at Camp Grant last Monday after a brief stay at England General hospital in Atlantic City, N. J.

As there are only a few minutes between breaks in classes, Sgt. Carpenter soon was on his way with the rest of his platoon, for the large group in the current reconditioning program are kept continuously busy studying anatomy, teaching calisthenics, drilling, marching, and exercising.

"Where can I get some books on anatomy?" Carpenter asked before departing. "They really give plenty of work on that subject and I don't want to flunk out."

Still Searching After Hours.

So an appointment was made with Sgt. Carpenter to come to the camp public relations office for an interview after duty hours. He still was on the trail of books on anatomy when he reported early in the evening. He had scoured the post library, but all books on that subject had been loaned out. He spied a shelf of books in the public relations office, but the book he was seeking was not there.

In the meantime, Sgt. Robert L. Carpenter, New York Giant pitcher until he joined the army, walked in and the two Sergeants Robert Carpenter were introduced.

The Phillies' Carpenter looked over the Giants' Carpenter admiringly, wishing perhaps that his National league club had the pitching services of such a strapping right hander.

Opinions on Baseball.

Sgt. Robert R. M. told Sgt. Robert L. that he frequently had been mistaken for the New York Giant pitcher. While posing for a picture, the two discussed baseball and the chances of the two National league clubs with which they are connected.

Sgt. Robert R. M. thinks his Phillies—the nickname Blue Jays didn't stick—will finish fifth in the present National league race and that under the direction of Manager Fred Fitzsimmons and General Manager Herb Pennock, both former major league pitchers, the Phillies will be pennant contenders within five years.

Sgt. Robert L. believes the St. Louis Cardinals, as presently constituted, will run away with the 1944 National league title and clean up on the American league champion in addition.

Duke Football Star.

Before assuming control of the Phillies last November, the 28 year old Carpenter was president of the Wilmington, Del., club of the class B Interstate league for four years. His home is in Wilmington, where his wife and two small children reside.

He played high school and semi-pro baseball around Wilmington and attended Duke university, where he played end on the football team for three years. He weighs around 200 pounds and is more than 6 feet tall.

SAM BYRD LEADS IN $17,500 GOLF MEET WITH 202

Philadelphia, Pa., June 10 (AP).—Except for the formality of playing an 18 hole round of golf tomorrow, Sam Byrd of Detroit was prepared today to collect $6,700 in war bonds.

The former New York Yankee outfielder, who gave up baseball to join professional golf ranks, held a seven stroke lead at the end of 54 holes in the $17,500 Philadelphia 72 hole medal play invitational tournament—and with him in his present putting form, there seems slight chance that anybody will catch him in the short stretch drive.

Cards Under Par.

Sam sloshed over the Torresdale-Frankford 71 par layout today in 69 strokes in a heavy rainstorm. That round, second best of the day, gave him 202 for 54 holes, or 11 under par for the route.

Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., skidded to 73 today from his sensational 66 of yesterday, but clung to second place with 209. The blond star lost four strokes to par on the last three holes.

Deadlocked in third place with 210 were Byron Nelson, former National Open and P. G. A. champion from Toledo, O., who came in with a 69 today, and Sgt. E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of the army and Little Rock, Ark., who fashioned a three under par 68 today, the best score of the rain drenched round.

McSpaden Finds Trouble.

Harold [Jug] McSpaden, Philadelphia's heavy money winner of the winter tour, ran into a flock of three putt greens and took a 73 for a 213 total, and Bob Hamilton, North-South winner from Evansville, Ind., also had a 73 for a 214 count.

Byrd reached the tournament peak with his magic putter, having used only 88 shots on the greens instead of the regulation 108 for the 54 holes. He has had 22 one-putters, 30 two-putetrs, and only two three-putters.

Ill Luck Stymies Turnesas.

The Turnesa boys, Joe and Mike, had a tough time in the rain. On the par five 13th Joe blew himself to a 10 and on the par four 18th Mike had an eight. Both were topped, however, by a huge 11 on the par five 16th by Amateur Roderick Bullen of Wallingford, Pa.

The tournament winds up tomorrow, with the 21 low scores sharing in the $17,500 war bond prizes. The pay-off ranges from the $6,700 top prize to $125 for 21st place.

BREEZING ALONG

More than 1,300,000 fans have watched the ponies in competition at two meetings in New York . . . 665,502 witnessed the races at Jamaica and 651,800 turned out for the Belmont Park meeting. . . In 49 days of racing—25 at Jamaica and 24 at Belmont Park—the fans poured $108,694,333 thru the mutuel machines, a record unequaled in the history of the sport. . . . Jamaica handled $50,933,391 for a daily average of more than $2,000,000. . . . Belmont Park's total for 24 days, one less than Jamaica, was $57,760,942 for an amazing daily handle of $2,406,706.

Ted Atkinson.

Ted Atkinson Leads Jockeys with 109 Winning Mounts.

Ted Atkinson leads the national jockey race by four. . . . The latest official standings show the Toronto, Ont., saddle smith has booted home 109 winners since the first of the year. . . . Harry Pratt and Robert Permane are tied for second place with 105. . . . Platter, the 3 year old star who was injured in the running of the Belmont Stakes, will be out of action for several weeks, at least, according to reports from the stable. . . . As a result Owner George D. Widener will depend on Who Goes There and Lucky Draw in the $50,000 Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct. . . . The race will be held June 24.

Among the many prominent horsemen who will be on hand for the 70 day Arlington-Washington Park meeting, which opens a week from tomorrow, are Howard Oots and Howard Wells, uncle and nephew respectively . . . Reservations are made for 33 horses . . . Wells owns Equifox, 7 year old son of Equipoise and winner of the first running of the Equipoise Mile in 1941 . . . In all probability Equifox will make another try for the event on June 24, when the C. V. Whitney challenge cup will be up for the first time. For Oots it will be a return to the training ranks after several years devoted to the operation of his 1,577 acre ranch in Shasta county, Cal. . . . Some years ago Oots sold his farm in his native Kentucky, went to California, where he managed Louis B. Mayer's farm for a while, later purchasing Brown Shasta which formerly belonged to the late Curly Brown, who built Arlington Park in 1927. . . . Oots has 15 horses for the Arlington-Washington meet.

Ryan, Shaw has Allied Command and Star Gino eligible for the Arlington Futurity and the Washington Park Futurity . . . It was Shaw who trained the celebrated Beau Pere in Australia and brought the stallion to America . . . He was engaged by Louis B. Mayer, the motion picture big wig, and laid out the magnificent breeding farm at Perris, Cal. . . . The Australian campaigned at Washington Park last season with marked success.

C.D.G.A. FOLLOWS NO. 1 RULE; KEEPS EYE UPON BALL

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

What makes the wheels of the Chicago District Golf association go 'round?

That is a question which has baffled less hardy organizations of the game since the C. D. G. A. announced in the early winter of 1942 that it would do all in its power to sustain the game as long as its interests were commensurate with the war. While other associations were abandoning the competitive phase of the game, officers of the C. D. G. A. were determined that they would not drop out of the picture, insofar as they make a definite contribution to the game and the war.

Within the last two years, the C. D. G. A. proved its point. While many other clubs, members of regular associations, were standing in the corner, so to speak, reluctant to go on the tee, the Chicago group, led by Scotty Fessenden, Tommy McMahon, Larry Rutherford, and Ted Quinn, came out swinging. They conducted the Hale America National Open in 1942, resulting in a contribution of more than $25,000 to the Navy Relief society and the United Service organizations.

Started Victory National.

Last year they inaugurated the Chicago Victory National tournament which they will repeat at Edgewater from June 28 thru July 2. They invented the dime-a-round system, by which every player in the section was asked to donate 10 cents before beginning any round. This produced more than $12,000 for the Chicago service men's centers. The first Victory National resulted in a net of more than $6,000, which is now being used to build recreational facilities for hospitalized veterans in the Chicago service hospitals. The same purpose will be the goal of 1944 Chicago Victory National at Edgewater.

This would seem to be sufficient evidence that the C. D. G. A. has done a fine job. That task has been accomplished by their duly elected officers. But what of the member clubs who constitute the body of the association? The Tribune is currently conducting a survey, thru questionnaires sent to all of the 59 club presidents, on what each individual club is doing to attack the problems confronting it in this third war time season.

Gives Reason for Success.

The questionnaire requested replies from each president on a number of points. Among them were the following:

What are you doing to solve the golf ball shortage?

Will you keep your dining room open all week thruout the season?

What is your answer to the caddy problem?

What is your club doing on transportation?

Are you suspending or continuing your regular invitational tournament?

How has the man power shortage affected you?

Is your membership up to 1943 par?

Out of the early reports of the survey has emerged the reason for Chicago's successful continuation of the game, not only in the competitive conduct of golf, but also in the various club's solution of the problems of club operation and course maintenance.

These clubs are still pitching in, even as they did in the troubled winter of 1941-'42. One of the main problems, of course, was that of caddies. A number of them instituted advertising campaigns in their local papers. Others kept in close contact with school principals, scoutmasters, and parent-teacher associations in order to interest the younger boys who now make up the bulk of the club-toters.

Members Pitch In.

On maintenance and clubhouse operation, the clubs generally have answered the questionnaire with a common reply—they're doing the best they can. In some cases, the members themselves have pitched in. In others, employes have been hired from southern resorts for the summer months. Another solution has been to use either older men or high school boys. Many are offering their help board and room. In any event, all seem determined to make out until beyond Labor day.

As far as transportation is concerned, 75 per cent of the C. D. G. A. clubs are fortunate in their proximity to methods of public transportation. Others have found car-pooling effective. The only answer to the golf ball shortage, one of the most acute situations in 1944 golf, appears to be to turn in old balls for reprocessing.

Membership in 90 per cent of the C. D. G. A. clubs is far over the 1943 average, with as many as 50 and 60 new members joining during the last winter.

SKOKIE INDIANS MEET PETRONES IN MIDWEST FRAY

Krier's Skokie Indians will play host to the Petrones in Skokie's Oakton Park, where the 1943 Midwest league champions will bid for their fourth victory in five starts. The battle is a co-feature with the unbeaten Oak Lawn-Chicago Pirate clash in Oak Lawn, in which the home team will be out to extend its winning streak to six in a row.

Two of the seven league games are booked for city diamonds, with Admiral Radio of Chicago meeting the Ace Fasteners in Welles park, and the Chicago Firemen facing the Fernwood All-Stars at the latter's home park, 104th st. and Wallace av. THE LOCKER ROOM

ROUND-OF-THE-WEEK
Allan Loeb's 76-37-113 in Champion of Champions tournament at Park Ridge.

SHOT-OF-THE-WEEK
Hole-in-one by Lt. C. J. Miller, Army Air Corps, at Mid-City's 155 yard third.

Beginning next Sunday, Chicago golf enthusiasts, of whom there seem to be more than a few, will enter upon two of the greatest weeks of fairway competition Our Town has seen in a long time. . . . One week from tomorrow, the Women's Western Golf association, under the presidency of Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia, will tee off on its 15th Open tournament at the Park Ridge Country club. . . . The big show will be preceded by a Sunday match involving 2d Lt. Patty Berg of the Marines; Mrs. Mildred Didrikson Zaharias, Pvt. Chick Harbert and Storekeeper 1st Class Mike Stolarik. . . . Following the conclusion of the Open on June 24, the field for the Chicago Victory National championships, to be held at historic Edgewater on June 28, 29, 30, and July 1 and 2, will begin to assemble. . . . A number of the stars in the women's tournament are entered in the foursome contest which President Larry Rutherford and his C. D. G. A. associates will inaugurate this season. . . . Both events would be sufficient to attract large galleries in peace time, but in this third war year, their real purpose is a vital one. . . . The C. D. G. A. will again turn over the proceeds of the Victory tournaments to a fund for hospitalized veterans of World War II., and the Women's Western is directing the proceeds of the Open and Amateur shows [the latter will be held at Onwentsia the week of Aug. 7] to the recreation fund of the new Vaughan General hospital. . . . The Locker Room suggests that you get your season tickets now.

Westward-Ho Junior Members of 1910 Plan Annual Reunion.

Bill Langford of Mid-City advises that the annual reunion of those golfers who were junior members of the old Westward-Ho club before 1910 hopes to double last year's field, which numbered four. . . . That quartet consisted of Stuart Templeton, Frank Swirles, Bud Albro, and Bill himself. . . . Qualifying round for the president's trophy and a mixed foursome event head the program at Itasca this afternoon. . . . Elmhurst Country club, one of the district's veterans, will hold its annual Blow-Out tournament Wednesday. . . . A record field is expected. . . . Harvey Kemp of Flossmoor made a hole-in-one last Sunday at the difficult 135 yard 13th hole of the south side club. . . . He was playing with the club president, Charles Palmer; Past President Dave Lamoreaux, and Tom Wagner. . . . Tip: Don't be too surprised if Edgewater's present eighth hole, 133 yards, and its 17th, 157 yards, are transposed for the Victory National tournaments. . . . The change has been suggested in some quarters to relieve the anticipated gallery congestion.

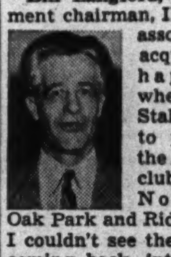
The Inquiring Golfer

THE QUESTION.

When did you first become interested in golf? [asked during Illinois Seniors' tournament at Oak Park, June 9].

THE ANSWERS.

T. C. Butz, Exmoor, past president, Western Golf association—I had joined the Exmoor Country club for social reasons and for some time before I actually played the game. Then a threesome of friends—Jimmy Martin, George Childs, and Hank Gildden—induced me to play in the year 1912. The 32 years since that time have been happy ones for me as a result, particularly in my association with the W. G. A. and its work for caddies.



Bill Langford, Glen Oak, tournament chairman, Illinois Seniors' Golf association—My first acquaintance with golf happened in 1899, when the late S. C. Stallwood invited me to play with him at the old Westward-Ho club, then located on North av., between Oak Park and Ridgeland av. At first, I couldn't see the game, but I kept coming back, intrigued by the enthusiasm of the younger members of the club for it, and I certainly am glad I did.

John Timmons, Flossmoor Country club—I had caddied at the old Washington Park race track course as a boy, but baseball was my game until one Sunday afternoon in 1911, when two friends, Harry Curry and Jim Hamill, persuaded me to follow them on a round over the old Jackson park course. The following week, I found myself with four clubs and going at the game seriously. As a result I played at the old Wheaton club, then joined South Shore and Midlothian before coming to Flossmoor.

Don Cameron, unattached—My first memory of golf dates back to 1903 on a visit to Battle Creek, near my old home town of Climax, Mich., where I saw the game for the first time as a caddy. Two brothers named Cleveland and myself soon decided to build our own golf course in the back pasture of our home in Climax. We sank tin cans in the turf, and shared a wooden cleek and an old gutty ball.

The Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association will gather at North Shore tomorrow in a 36 hole medal play fight for the five places allotted their section in the Chicago Victory National tournament at Edgewater. . . . Among those who will strive for the five berths in the Big Show are Sam Bernardi of Old Elm, George Smith of Onwentsia, Eddie Bush and Art De Mane of Oak Park, Charley Penna of Elmhurst, Byron Harcke of Twin Orchard, Johnny Gibson of Westmoreland, Jack Grout of Greenacres, Jim Carberry of Phillips Park, Aurora; Bill Brown of North Shore, Bill Gordon of Tam O'Shanter, Bob Stupple of Skokie, Gunnar Nelson of Rockford, Joe Jemsek of St. Andrews, Mike Sipula of Ottawa, and Bert Montressor of Idlewild. . . . Tomorrow also will witness another excellent tournament — the annual event of the American Medical association at Flossmoor. . . . More than 200 doctors, many of them high ranking army and navy officers, will compete. . . . Mrs. Albert M. Pike, president of the Illinois Women's Golf association, anticipates a large entry for the eleventh annual tourney at the Bloomington Country club July 10-14. . . . W. H. Durkin, 72 years old, was the only player to make a hole-in-one at Westgate Valley last year. . . . On his first trip around this season, he came within inches of duplicating his feat at Westgate's famed 85 yard water hole.

Medinah Caddy Had Ideas but They Were Costly to Golfers.

Wally Womeldorf, manager of Medinah, submits the following as an example of youthful enterprise. . . . A novice caddy, toting clubs for the first time, offered the following rates for his services: $1.50 for each 18 holes caddied, and 50 cents for each time he had to go in the water for a ball. . . . Needless to say, the half dollar diving charge was eliminated from his bill for services rendered. . . . Henry McElroy of Flossmoor is currently shooting the best golf of his career, being consistently in the 70s. . . . The 38th annual Lumbermen's tournament, oldest trade event in the game, is scheduled for June 23 at Elmhurst. . . . Tom Walsh regards the 1943 and 1944 seasons the toughest on greenkeepers he has seen in his 30 years in golf. . . . Packey Walsh, Tom's brother, is now stationed with the army in New Guinea. . . . Because so many of his top caddies have joined the services, Pro Bill Gordon of Tam O' Shanter has had to hire 84 new boys. . . . Inexperienced caddies among the newcomers will receive instruction two evenings each week until the close of school, and more intensive training thereafter.

Soccer Teams Meet Today in Kelly Cup Play

BY OFFSIDE.

Three games, including the Mayor Kelly soccer cup finals and a playoff between the winners of the Junior A and B divisions, will be played in Hanson park stadium, 5600 W. Fullerton av., today. The Kelly cup games were originally scheduled for April 30 but were postponed due to inclement weather.

Today's opener finds the Vikings, A division winners, facing Oak Park, B division champions, in a battle for the junior title. Medals, donated by the Chicago Sports association, will be presented to the victors.

Vikings Minus O'Hare.

The cup finals find the Hakoah-Centers clashing with the Vikings at 1:30 and the Schwabens meeting the Necaxas in the second game.

The Vikings will be without the services of Al O'Hare, who is still on the injured list, and Jimmy McDermott and Gus Whilborg are doubtful starters. The Hakoahs will field their strongest team, with Max Kassner, Dr. Julius Brant, and Eli Field at the half back positions. Eric Klaber has recovered from his long illness and will team with Maxi Pearlman on the right wing.

Lineup Changes.

Several changes will be made in the Schwabens' lineup, finding Henry Rapp returning to the middle line and veteran Frank Kutsch at center forward. Ernie Schaaf will pair with Emil Thiet at full back and Joe Gaonka will be in the goal. Lineups:

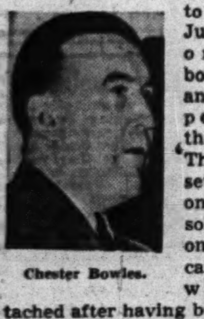
USED CAR PRICE CEILINGS ARE FIXED BY OPA

Dealer and Private Sales Affected.

The office of price administration yesterday ordered price ceilings for used automobiles to go into effect July 10. The order applies both to dealers and to private persons selling the family car. There will be two sets of ceilings, one covering cars sold "as is" and one applying to cars sold with a warranty attached after having been put in good condition. Prices will be on a level of those existing in January, 1944.



Chester Bowles.

Since the war stopped the manufacture of new automobiles prices for used cars have soared. OPA Director Bowles in issuing the order said that in some parts of the country "used cars three years old bring today two or three times more than similar cars bought before the war."

Pressure to Raise Prices.

"I think that indicates what pressures there are today to push prices up and what might have happened in other fields if there had been no controls," he said.

The OPA order lists the prices for 23 makes and about 6,000 models built from 1937 thru 1942. Cars built before 1937 may not be sold at prices higher than corresponding 1937 models.

Ceilings are fixed at different levels for three broad geographical regions. Region A covers all states east of the Mississippi. Region C covers Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, and Arizona. Region B covers all other states. Ceilings are lowest for region A, highest for region C, and approximately half way between the two levels for region B.

Ceilings on the "as is" cars will drop at the rate of 4 per cent every six months. All persons who are not dealers must sell at the "as is" price, but dealers who maintain repair facilities may sell on either basis.

Transfer Certificate Required.

When a sale has been completed the buyer and seller must fill out a transfer certificate and turn this in to the buyer's local war price and rationing board.

Altho the ceiling prices generally are based on the January, 1944, prices there are some deviations. For 1942 models the ceilings are the same as the maximum prices for new passenger cars as of Feb. 29, 1944. Ceilings for the 1937 thru 1941 models were calculated by relating the used car market levels of the first quarter of 1944 to the original factory list prices [new] for the three most popular cars and applying the percentage thus obtained to the original factory list prices [new] for all cars.

There are some permissible additions to ceiling prices to cover extra equipment such as $10 for any heater and $20 for any radio.

Automobile dealers were not much surprised by the order.

Warns of Black Market.

Lynn S. Snow, Oak Park dealer, first vice president of the National Automobile Dealers association, said:

"If the used car price ceiling does not work better than the ceilings on used trucks, it will channel good cars out of the hands of dealers into the black market. I do not believe you can put a price ceiling on used cars any more effectively than you could on men."

E. L. Cleary, general manager, Chicago Automobile Trade association, said the order will be a hard blow to many dealers who have tried to get along without new cars to sell. He said, however, that some dealers believe that if the order is enforced it may help their situation for prices of used cars have been going so high they have been embarrassed in offering them to customers.

"Under the ceiling it will be much harder to get used cars unless the buyer goes to the black market," Cleary said. "The price increases have been the incentive that induced many persons who own cars to sell. Now many will just hold on to their cars."

Estimates of the used car total in dealers' hands vary to a large extent. A leading Chicago trade authority estimated the supply at not more than 500,000 for the whole country. However, the sales vice president of a large automobile producer in Detroit recently estimated the total at 1½ million.

Motor Stocks Are Active at Higher Prices

New York, June 10 (AP).—Heavy demand for motors and accessories, low priced and otherwise, developed in the stock market's brief session today. Several favorites touched peaks for the year or longer with gains of fractions to more than a point and prices in general were higher.

Blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares crowded the ticker tape and turnover of 727,170 compared with 385,540 last Saturday, the largest volume for a short session since March 18, which showed the highest Saturday total since July 31, 1943.

Stock Average Rises.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.2 at 53, but on the week showed a net decline of as much.

At 1944 tops were Chrysler, Willys-Overland, Packard, Continental Motors [most active of the list], Murray corporation, Gar Wood, Hayes Manufacturing, Graham-Paige, International Telephone, Evans Products, Stewart-Warner, Briggs Manufacturing, and Nash-Kelvinator. Improved were Union Pacific, Austin Nichols A, United States Steel, General Motors, Westinghouse Electric, Standard Oil [N. J.], Dow Chemical, and United States Rubber. Lower were Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, and Eastman Kodak.

The short interest on the stock exchange rose 90,712 shares in May, the exchange's monthly report said.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB.

New York, June 10 (AP).—Continuing yesterday's rebound from the steep drop earlier in the week, rail loans in the bond market moved up fractions to about 2 points in moderately active trading today. Trading was light in utility, industrial, and foreign issues. United States government liens were steady. Transactions totaled $4,134,400 against $4,130,500 last Saturday.

CHICAGO STOCKS RISE.

Prices were mostly higher yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in lightened turnover of 16,000 shares. Active issues included Chicago corporation and Electric Household Utilities, both up ⅛. Studebaker closed at a new 1944 high of 18, up ½.

MILLION BOOST IN COCA-COLA'S SHARES IS ASKED

Atlanta, Ga., June 10 (AP).—Increase of the authorized common stock of the Coco-Cola company from 4 million to 5 million no-par shares was recommended today by the directors to stockholders, who will pass on the proposal at a special meeting Aug. 5.

The company said if the increase was approved approximately 12,000 of the new shares would be used to acquire the entire capital stock of La Salle Securities, Inc., a Delaware corporation owning substantial majority interests in 24 middle western corporations engaged in bottling and distributing Coca-Cola.

The remaining authorized shares are intended to place the company in position to meet needs that may arise from future expansion.

ICKES RELEASES KOPPERS MINES AFTER PAY PACT

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—Secretary of the Interior Ickes today released from federal control the 18 southern Appalachian mines of the Koppers Coal division of the Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, one of the largest soft coal producers. The action followed the company's execution of the new wage contract with the United Mine Workers of America in the southern Appalachian fields. The contract for

Ralph C. Cameron has been appointed director of merchandising for the Airtemp division of Chrysler corporation, Paul B. Zimmerman, vice president and general sales manager, announced yesterday. Cameron will be in charge of all advertising, sales promotion, and sales training activities of the division. Before coming to Airtemp, he was sales manager of the household division of Nash-Kelvinator corporation.

The Indiana Harbor plant of Inland Steel company was notified by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson that it had won the Army-Navy "E" for the third time. Wilfred Sykes, president, announced receipt of a letter from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB, congratulating the company in its new ingot production record for May.

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company was winner of the first Victory shipbuilding safety contest sponsored by the National Safety council and the United States maritime commission for the calendar year 1943. Pullman-Standard had 4.2 lost-time accident per million man hours worked, which was 15 per cent of the national average of 31.2.

The Mid-West Forging and Manufacturing company, Chicago Heights, producer of armor piercing shell forgings, has been awarded the first white star for its army-navy "E" pennant.

Hubert J. Jirka and Wilbert H. Rohlff, controlers of Kropp Forge company and Wilson Brothers respectively, were elected to membership in the Controlers' Institute of America.

COURT UPHOLDS LABOR DISPUTES LAW'S VALIDITY

Lexington, Ky., June 10 (AP).—Federal District Judge H. Church Ford today upheld the constitutionality of the war labor disputes act, under which five men were indicted by a federal grand jury at Richmond, Ky., April 24 in connection with strikes in Bell and Harlan county coal mines operated by the federal government.

Judge Ford delivered his decision along with enrollment of an order quashing the indictments returned by the grand jury at Richmond and directed submission of the cases to the grand jury to be convened in federal court here Monday.

The original indictments charged the defendants with conspiring to interfere by strike with the operation of mines in possession of the United States government.

WFA WILL CEASE CURRENT SUPPLY EGG PURCHASES

The war food administration announced yesterday that egg production had decreased sufficiently to discontinue WFA purchases of current receipts after June 17 without breaking the farm price.

Chicago WFA officials said the current receipts buying program will be continued here after Saturday, if needed. Buying of graded eggs, the 27 cent support price in connection with the graded program and the dried egg purchase program will be continued.

Egg futures contracts on the Chicago Mercantile exchange weakened yesterday. October and December refrigerator extras closed at 39.10 for a 20 point loss.

Taft Opposes Promises on World Money

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—Republican opposition to any commitments on a world currency stabilization program at the forthcoming world monetary conference flared up again today with an assertion by Sen. Taft [R., O.] that American involvement would be "like pouring money down a sewer."

Taft, who heads the Republican post-war advisory committee on finance and the Republican steering committee of the senate, told a reporter he is opposed to the principle of setting up any fund "to which we contribute all of the money and somebody else dispenses it."

Says Stabilization Incidental.

"The question of currency stabilization is only incidental to the rehabilitation of foreign countries after the war," he said. "If you stabilize currency without taking all of the other steps necessary to get a country on an exporting basis, as the treasury's plan apparently contemplates, it would be like pouring money down a sewer."

The broad outlines of a proposed 8 billion dollar world stabilization fund will be laid before international delegates at a conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., beginning July 1.

As announced by the treasury, the outline provides for the United States to contribute about 2½ billion dollars to the fund. Britain would put in about 1¼ billions, Russia about 1 billion and the rest would be made up by other nations in accordance with a complicated formula.

U. S. Fund Chief Security.

Taft said he believed the practical effect would be that the United States, by using dollars, would put in the only gilt edged security.

Taft, who had been mentioned as a possible choice for one of a congressional delegation of four to the meeting, suggested, instead, that the United States make separate agreements with Great Britain, Russia, and other countries.

It appeared, meanwhile, that Sen. Tobey [R., N. H.] may be one of the two senate delegates to the meeting, despite reported administration attempts to by-pass a member of congress who has been severely critical of New Deal policies in the past.

Chairman Wagner [D., N.Y.] of the senate banking committee and Representatives Spance [D., Ky.] and Wolcott [R., Mich.] are expected to be the other members.

NAVY IS ORDERED TO SAVE FUEL AT ITS SHORE UNITS

Washington, June 10 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal has ordered a strict fuel conservation program at all naval shore establishments.

The navy said today that the secretary told the shore bases "drastic measures" are necessary because of "critical shortages" resulting from increased industrial requirements, movements of increasing quantities of fuel to overseas theatres of war, decrease in production in some areas, and in some cases insufficient transportation facilities.

"On the Pacific coast the demand for oil is much greater than the producing ability of the supplying oil wells," he said. "In the Appalachian area the supply of natural gas is particularly critical. Along the Atlantic seaboard it is anticipated that during the next heating season the supply of screened or prepared sizes of bituminous and anthracite coal will be extremely short."

BIG STEEL PLANT SOON TO BE IN FULL OPERATION

All facilities at the 90 million dollar electric furnace steel plant operated at 116th st. and Burley av., by the Republic Steel corporation will be in operation this week, M. E. Goetz, general manager, said yesterday. The plant, one of the Chicago area's new war operations, is owned by the Defense Plant corporation.

Included among the divisions that will be in operation this week are the big new blast furnace, 75 coke ovens, a by-products plant, the 36 inch rolling mill, and the 32 inch rolling mill.

Goetz said that a story in THE TRIBUNE recently on the plant's need for workers has been helpful in bringing many to the company's employment office.

BOOST OUTPUT OF LIBERATORS AT WILLOW RUN

Four-Fold Increase in Year Effected.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 10.—A four fold increase in the production of Liberator B-24 bombers has taken place at Willow Run since early June, 1943, when the monthly rate was in the lower three figures.

More than 4,500 of the big aircraft have been flown away by the army since production started. Efficiencies arising from experience have made possible a reduction of about 12,000 persons from the original working force.

This achievement was described today by a spokesman for the Ford Motor company which runs the plant as one of the nation's largest war operations.

Near Mass Raid Figures.

Total monthly production figures, which may not be disclosed, approach in size the numbers of bombers taking part in a big raid over Europe. It can be said that one bomber moves off the assembly lines approximately every working hour.

Two major factors have made possible the production record which has exceeded army schedules for eight consecutive months, the Ford spokesman said:

1. Production has been constantly analyzed with the object of breaking down subassemblies so they can be moved farther back from the major lines. This means a larger part of the subassembly work is done in advance of the time that parts of the plane are brought to the major lines, thus permitting faster final assembly.

Education Is a Factor.

2. Education and experience, particularly in the large supervisory force, have done much to eliminate unnecessary motion and to speed the entire operation.

"A year ago when you visited this plant Willow Run's working force was like a good football team that lacked the coördination obtained only thru months of hard play," the spokesman said. "Our workers now have that experience and the results speak for themselves."

To the casual visitor Willow Run appears much as it did a year ago. Actually there have been many changes. Large amounts of subassembly work have been transferred to other Ford plants. For example, the big tail section has gone to the Rouge plant and the outer wing to Highland Park.

Time Trimmed to Hours.

A year ago it took 17 days to build the center wing section, the massive structure placed cross-wise of the plane, which carries the fuselage, contains the fuel tanks, and supports the bomb racks and the four big engines. Now the job is done in 17 hours.

A year ago planes were coming off one final assembly line, and now there are two. The time required to put a bomber thru its test flights has been reduced because of the high production standards. Sixty-four per cent of the planes are accepted on their maiden flights.

M. L. Bricker, superintendent of the Willow Run plant, said that as the efficiency of production has gone up costs have gone down. He was not permitted to give the percentage of reduction.

New Job to Start.

Bricker disclosed that Willow Run is about to start another big assignment which will increase employment. The new job will be completion of standard modification work which hitherto has been done elsewhere. Modification centers fit war planes with accessories and equipment designed for the needs of the particular theater in which they are to operate.

High spots in Willow Run's history are clearing of the big site, started March 4, 1941; steel construction, started April 15, 1941; first assembled job, Oct. 15, 1941; first all-Ford built bomber, Sept. 10, 1942; first bomber flown away, Nov. 28, 1942. Monthly production at first could be counted on the fingers of the hands, and it was not until late in the spring of 1943 that it entered the three figure rate. Peak employment was about 42,000 persons, and there are now about 30,000 on the pay roll.

WFA Will Buy Corn Supplies in Argentina

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—The war food administration announced today that it had arranged for importation in July of 6 million bushels of corn from Argentina to help relieve the acute domestic shortage. The corn will be brought in under shipping arrangements made with the war shipping administration and private importers.

The WFA said the plans are being made for additional shipments until this year's domestic corn crop becomes available in November. No figures as to the total amount to be imported were given in the official announcement, but some officials said 40 million bushels was the present goal.

Officials said the Argentine grain will be allocated among industrial users and feeders.

WHEAT PRICES SINK

A department of agriculture report issued late Friday estimating the wheat crop at 1 billion 35 million bushels, a new record, led to general selling of wheat yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and prices declined about 2 cents a bushel at one time. Rye, however, averaged higher because of a war production board order requiring distillers to use at least 10 per cent of that grain in production of industrial alcohol.

Wheat closed 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents lower. Rye was unchanged to ¾ cent higher, with prices ranging 2 to 3 cents during the morning. Oats were ⅜ to ¾ cent lower.

Short covering lifted rye futures 2⅜ cents at the opening but commission house selling developed and at one time the early upturn was lost.

Hedging sales appeared in wheat futures, altho the movement of the new crop in the southwest was slowed down by showers in Texas and Oklahoma.

POSTPONED SALE OF ALASKA SEAL FUR SET JUNE 19

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—Auction of Alaska sealskins, postponed from April, will be held in St. Louis June 19, Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced today.

The Fouke Fur company, as agent for the government, will offer for sale 21,745 dressed and dyed Alaska sealskins. The top price is $45 per skin, compared with $53.50 at the last saile in 1943.

The supply of skins is not expected to meet the demand and consequently bids probably will be at the ceiling price, Ickes said. They will be awarded buyers on a preference system based in part on past purchases and thru use of a specially designed mechanical device which will assign chance positions to buyers, Ickes said.

Chicago Bank Clearings Increase to 445 Million

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $445,100,000, compared with $406,900,000 in the preceding week and $436,100,000 a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures:

BOOST IN OIL PRICES RECEIVES TENTATIVE APPROVAL OF HOUSE

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—An increase of approximately 35 cents per barrel in crude oil prices was provided in an amendment tentatively agreed upon today by the house for inclusion in price control extension legislation.

By a vote of 123 to 57, the house sitting as a committee of the whole, accepted the proposal by Rep. Disney [D., Okla.] that the OPA should fix ceilings on crudes at not less than 80 per cent of parity, but not exceeding parity.

Rep. Monroney [D., Okla.] opposed the amendment. He contended it would open the door to an upward swing in prices on steel, electric power, and dozens of other commodities.

Tho the house could reverse its position when final action on the bill comes up next week, supporters of Disney expect the amendment to be retained.

Lighter Yarn to Resist Fire Is Developed

New York, June 10 (AP).—A new asbestos yarn which makes asbestos clothing only half as heavy as formerly was announced today by the United States Rubber company.

The yarn is made by blending asbestos fibers with a small percentage of cotton, which gives more strength and weaving qualities.

Used in Fire Fighter Clothes.

This asbestos yarn makes the fire fighting suits, helmets, shoes, and gloves of the air forces, army, navy, and engineers. The entire output, which is centered at Hogansville, Ga., is going to the military.

After the war this fabric may be used to make ironing board covers on which a hot iron can be left without starting a fire, the announcement said. Other uses are pot and pan holders, gloves to protect a cook's hands from oven heat, jumper suits, aprons, and other protective garments for steel mills and foundries, and bags for sweepers that pick up hot coals.

Water Does Not Damage It.

The fabric also will form upholstery for seats in lounge and smoking cars and for other furniture cover purposes. It will make asbestos awnings. The fabric is not damaged by water.

The navy is using the fabric for insulating tape for electrical cables. It is used for fuel hose in combat tanks, and for a variety of heat conducting, or fire prevention jobs in planes.

ARMY WILL TAKE CARE OF ITS OWN AIR TRANSPORT

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—All army air transport service within the continental United States will be taken over by the air transport command before the end of the year and contract service terminated, the war department said today.

Contracts with commercial companies for overseas operations will be continued. The change over on the domestic operations already is under way.

RAILS BLAMED IN FALL OF N. Y. CANAL TRAFFIC

Bargemen Censure Government Also.

BY ROY GIBBONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 10.—Veteran bargemen here today attributed a progressive decrease in water borne traffic over the New York state canal system to "selfishness" on the part of the railroads and to "bureocratic meddling" by the federal government at a time when the nation is in critical need of every transportation facility.

John H. Muller, secretary of the Canal Carriers association, said the 525 mile state owned inland waterway system is not carrying "anywhere near its total capacity."

Muller charged the railroads "have done everything in their power" to take tonnage away from the canals while proclaiming their own overburdened condition to the public.

Added Interference.

At the same time, Muller said, various government bureaus have added their interference by scattering canal barges and motorships into coal and other traffic along the eastern seaboard.

Two motorships, chartered last year by the Illinois Atlantic corporation, a Chicago Tribune subsidiary, have been turned over by the war shipping administration to the Mexican government for use in that country's banana trade, Muller reported. When the vessels were in THE TRIBUNE'S custody under lease from the Federal Motorship corporation here, they were used on the canal, for which they were especially built, to carry bauxite ore to Canadian ports. The ore is used in the manufacture of aluminum. On the return passage they brought back war rationed newsprint.

Muller said the government also has failed to give the canals anywhere near the oil load they could carry to relieve the gasoline shortage in the east.

A "Cockeyed Order."

Moreover, he said, many products that normally passed westward thru the canal from New York City now are being shipped by rail and up the Mississippi river, to reverse the distribution procedure into what Muller termed "a cockeyed order."

The railroads, blamed by many barge line operators for the "famine" on the canals, sponsored in 1942 a bill in the legislature to nullify a provision in the state constitution guaranteeing the canals would always remain toll free.

The measure was defeated after a fight in which labor, civic, and

WAR WORKERS MOVE INTO BIG HOME PROJECT

Section of Princeton Park Completed.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Twenty-six war workers' families tomorrow will begin moving into dwelling units in Princeton Park Homes, at the northwest corner of 95th st. and Wentworth av., officials announced yesterday. The remainder of the 230 homes under construction will be occupied as fast as the roads are paved. The federal housing administration said it is the largest privately owned housing project for Negroes in the country.

Designed by Holsman and Holsman & Klekamp, Chicago architects, the project ultimately will cover 80 acres and have 1,000 homes, all in row house buildings containing four, six, and eight units each. It will represent a total investment of about 5 million dollars, it was said.

All to Be Rented.

Each dwelling unit has two floors and a basement, with living room, dining room, and kitchen on the first floor, and two or three bedrooms on the second. The basement contains a coal fired furnace [to be converted to gas if possible later on], gas water heater, and laundry. The first 230 units are as near fireproof as war conditions permitted, but the remaining 750 will be entirely fireproof owing to a recent war production board order allowing use of steel rods for reinforcing concrete.

All of the units will be rented to war workers, approved by the war housing center, 39 S. La Salle st., of which Leonard R. McDonald is director. Rents will be $50 and $56.50 and will include gas refrigerator and gas cooking stove.

Provide for School.

The project is laid out with winding roads. It will have seven acres of recreational space, provision for a school and a community center, and a parking area. The entire 80 acres will be landscaped.

The development is being built by the Community Development associates with Reconstruction Finance corporation mortgages insured by FHA. Henry K. Holsman is trustee, and the managing trustees are Donald O'Toole, William T. Holsman, John T. Holsman, Preston A. Higgins, Alvin G. Hubbard, Thomas L. Brisch, and Lawrence B. Perkins. The project will be under the management of Donald O'Toole & Co., realtors.

N. W. AIRLINES RENTS MICHIGAN MONROE CORNER

In anticipation of greatly expanded air traffic thru the Chicago gateway and in preparation for enlarged post-war activities, Northwest Airlines leased the first floor corner space in the Monroe building, Michigan and Monroe, for its Chicago district traffic and ticket offices, Croil Hunter, president and general manager, announced yesterday. The premises, formerly occupied by Capper & Capper, were leased thru Aldis & Co. for a term of years beginning Sept. 1.

The space, comprising 4,292 sq. ft., more than eight times larger than NWA offices in the Palmer House, will be remodeled into one of the laregst and best equipped in the country, James J. Fauteux, district traffic manager, said. Plans have been drawn by Holabird & Root, and bids are now being taken.

EASE RESTRICTIONS ON TENANT EVICTION BY NEW HOME OWNER

Three changes in federal rent regulations for housing, designed to liberalize existing provisions relating to the eviction of tenants for occupancy by purchasers, were announced yesterday by John F. McCarthy, director of Chicago defense rental office.

The changes, which become effective at once, follow:

1. The provision requiring 20 per cent down payment on a house purchased by a buyer who wants to occupy it, has been eased so that the purchaser may use borrowed money under certain conditions for part of his deposit.

2. Area rent directors no longer are required to grant eviction certificates with the choice of either no waiting period or a three month waiting period. They may now, at their discretion, grant eviction certifications with waiting periods for less than three months.

3. The three month waiting period after issuance of an eviction certificate by the rent director now will start from the day the petition for the certificate is filed by the owner with the rent director. Previously the waiting period began with the issuance of the certificate.

CANAL TRAFFIC FALLS IN N. Y.; RAILS ACCUSED

maritime groups thruout the state joined to halt its passage. Canal operators assert it has been customary practice for years for the railroads to reduce their rates, coincident with the annual opening of the canal season, on grain, pig iron, and other bulk commodities in which the canal boats specialized.

Report Shows Decrease.

The following report, issued by the New York state department of public works, shows tonnage handled on the canals for the years 1927 thru 1943. The report segregates total tonnage carried over the system into east and west bound movements. The largest decrease is shown since Pearl Harbor.

Muller said railroads were given such preferential treatment in the handling of steel and wheat at Buffalo, head of the canal system, that bargemen hesitated to make the westward passage for fear they would have to return with no loads at all, as many of them did.

Will Refuse New Business.

"Now that they have been forced into coastal, coal, and other trades in order to pick up an honest dollar, it is my understanding that most of the bargemen are going to let new canal business just go out the window," he asserted.

Muller said the government insisted on shipping steel and wheat by rail "altho the steel for which every one was yelling stayed piled alongside the tracks for months."

He said the canals could ease the burden of the railroads if the railroads, and state and federal governments would "give the canals half a chance." Conditions are so bad, he reported, that some of the biggest operators are refusing to send their barges out this season.

Refer to Pier Transfers.

In what they say is a substantiation of Muller's charges, other barge owners refer to the recent transfer of six state barge canal terminal piers and warehouses here to the New York City government and the port of New York authority.

In relinquishing the sites, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey recalled that, altho the state has spent almost 10 million dollars on the properties, they had been losing about $100,000 a year since 1926.

Fred J. Byington, general manager of the Quebec and Ontario Transportation company, Ltd., another Tribune subsidiary, said the peak Canadian year in 1938 was the result of a vast grain movement.

Grain Moves by Rail.

Since that time, Byington said, Canadian tonnage has decreased gradually because grain has been moving from Georgian bay ports to Montreal and the eastern seaboard by rail.

Byington asserted another reason for the decrease is the large number of Canadian vessels that have been taken from the canals and pressed into war work, "altho at the present time there is more tonnage offered for carriage than there are boats to load it."

STEADY DIVIDEND PAYERS.

Studies completed recently by the New York Stock exchange and the New York Curb exchange disclose a remarkable number of corporations which have paid dividends year in and year out despite wars, panics and economic depressions.

Thirty-five equities listed on the "Big Board" have paid dividends without interruption for 50 years or more, 70 have paid continuously for more than 40 years, 108 for more than 30 years, 180 for more than 20 years, and 235 for 15 years or longer.

Among the curb stocks 14 have unbroken records of 50 years or more, 24 have topped the 40 year mark, 55 have paid for 30 years or more, 73 for 25 years or more, and 133 for 15 or more years.

In certain cases, it is true, dividends were maintained at times when profits had disappeared, and the distributions sometimes were reduced to mere "token" payments in order to maintain an unbroken record. The fact that finances were sound enough to permit even a token payment during the early 1930s, however, is noteworthy. Many other long records for steady dividend payments were interrupted during the early 1930s.

Railroad, public utility and fire insurance stocks predominate among the issues that have paid regularly for a half century or more. The New York Stock exchange calls attention to the fact that the "industrial age" of American business did not begin until 1900, and prior to that time there were relatively few big industrial corporations with thousands of stockholders. Yet, 26 corporations organized during the 1900-'06 period, largely thru mergers, have kept dividend records intact.

[A list of 124 New York Stock exchange issues on which dividends have been paid each year since 1916 or earlier, and 73 New York Curb exchange stocks that have paid for 25 or more consecutive years, will be sent on request to readers who inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

TRUCK AND BUS TIRE SHORTAGE WILL CONTINUE

Washington, D. C., June 10 (AP).—A shortage of tires for heavy and medium trucks and for bus replacements will continue thru July, August, and September, Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation, said today. He estimated the shortage of heavy tires amounted to 25,000 a month.

Col. Johnson urged truck and bus operators to conserve rigorously or else to expect curtailment of essential motor transport services.

56 CHICAGO AREA COMPANIES GET NEW WAR ORDERS

Fifty-six Chicago area companies last week were awarded 60 war contracts totaling $987,000, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, reported yesterday. Three of the companies appeared on the war contract list for the first time.

Since the war production program was started, 15,517 prime contracts have been assigned to 2,294 Chicago companies, exclusive of a large number of orders not disclosed for military reasons.

BREAK IN CATTLE LAID TO SUBSIDY SAVING EFFORTS

The severe break in most classes of cattle last week was interpreted in the trade as an attempt of the packing industry to lessen the squeeze of processors between live costs and OPA beef ceilings, and an effort to protect federal subsidy payments which approached the vanishing point in many instances last month.

Many packers lost a large part of their May government payments because they paid above the war food administration ceiling levels for many of the cattle they bought, it was disclosed at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday.

Most Prices Top Ceiling.

Nearly all prices of live cattle for several weeks have been above the ceiling. Individual packers lost subsidy money to the extent that their monthly average costs exceeded the WFA maximum. The department of agriculture said recent prices of some lower classes have exceeded the maximum by almost $2 a hundred pounds.

The department of agriculture said the average cost of choice and prime steers in the Chicago yards for May was $16.61, exceeding the ceiling by 61 cents. Good steers averaged $15.73, or 48 cents above the maximum; the medium class was $1.47 high at $14.47, and common steers $1.58 above the ceiling, at $12.58.

Early June Costs Higher.

The position of packers was weakened by additional price increases in the first few days of June. The department's averages showed common steers exceeding the maximum by $1.83, medium by $1.92, good by 97 cents, and choice and prime by 97 cents for the week ended June 3.

WORRIED BY OPA INQUIRY, FARMER KILLS HIMSELF

Widow Tells of Quiz After Tractor Sale.

Reading, Mich., June 10 [Special]. —The story of how a 64 year old Hillsdale county farmer, worried about the office of price administration demands for payment of overcharges on a tractor he had sold at auction, committed suicide in despondency was disclosed here today.

Mrs. Ray Van Wert, 68, widow of the farmer, who died May 26 after taking poison, related incidents leading to her husband's death in a statement notarized June 3 by Carl H. Thieme, a Reading bank official.

Mrs. Van Wert's statement said her husband sold his farm a mile north of Cambria, Hillsdale county, on Feb. 15. He sold his personal property and farm machinery, including a tractor, at an auction March 10.

Visit to Farm Described.

Ten days later, the statement related, OPA officials from the Hillsdale office called at the Van Wert farm and questioned the farmer about the tractor being sold for $436.90 more than the ceiling price.

Van Wert was summoned to the Detroit, Mich., OPA office, along with Auctioneer Conrad Wirick of Cambria, on April 17, and told by OPA officials to pay three times the $436.90 overcharge, or $1,310.70, the statement asserted.

He was given an option, however, of paying $873.80 if he settled out of court, the widow's story related.

Husband's Fear Told.

Mrs. Van Wert's statement disclosed that her husband was asked by his attorney, L. D. Walworth of Hillsdale, to appear in his office May 25 concerning the case.

The attorney later disclosed he intended asking Van Wert for more information about the case. The widow said, however, that her husband—already worried—feared his attorney was going to confirm OPA orders to pay the overcharge.

"This had been a constant worry and drove Mr. Van Wert in a despondent condition," the widow's statement asserted. "It broke him down in health and mind and, as a result, caused his death by taking poison on the 26th day of May, 1944."

BUTTER HIGHER, CHEESE DOWN IN NEW PRICE RULE

Higher prices for butter and reductions in cheese are among the changes in the new price ceilings for the Chicago metropolitan area announced yesterday by Paul A. H. Shults, acting area OPA director. The ceilings are effective tomorrow and cover approximately 1,300 dry grocery items.

The butter increases range from ½ to 1½ cents a pound, depending upon grade, packaging and class of store. Some butter is unchanged in price. Cheese prices are reduced 1 to 3 cents a pound, altho American cheese in two pound boxes is raised 1 cent per box in class 1 and 2 stores.

Shults said that under the new provisions, the year 1943 instead of 1942 is used as the basis for figuring annual gross sales, which determine store classifications. The retailers must refigure all his ceiling prices by the opening of business June 15 if he finds that his store is in a different group as a result of this new provisions, he said.

More than 4,500 summer jobs offered by 250 employers are awaiting men and women teachers, he said. 500 TRUCKS PICK UP WASTE PAPER AT CURBS JUNE 24

A fleet of 500 trucks will be deployed against Chicago's accumulating waste paper piles in the second city-wide waste paper curb pickup on Saturday, June 24.

The trucks, furnished by the waste paper industry, the city, and the army and navy, will be distributed thruout the city's 50 wards, and 50,000 members of Boys' clubs, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Junior B'nai B'rith, and other junior groups will provide the groundwork for the truck pickup.

Householders are asked to separate their paper into the four leading classifications. Newspapers should be spread as they are sold on newsstands and then tied in bundles 12 inches high. Magazines should be handled the same way. Cardboard cartons should be flattened and tied in bundles 10 to 15 inches high.

Waste basket paper, which is the most important of the four classifications, should be put in paper bags and placed between the tied cartons.

William L. McFetridge, general chairman of the city's salvage programs, has placed a goal of 3,000 tons for the June 24 collection. The pickup on Jan. 15 was 2,733 tons.

FATHERS PLEAD FOR PLASMA TO SAVE WOUNDED

Chicago fathers are backing their sons at the front by taking over the job of urging neighbors and friends in their blocks to visit the Red Cross Blood Donor Service sometime between June 12 and 17, the week before Father's day.

Now that the invasion is on Chicago's weekly quota must be met and fathers whose sons are in uniform will see to it that the necessary 6,000 pints of blood are forthcoming.

Many of the fathers who will urge neighbors and friends to give blood to help save the life of a fighting man, are veterans of the last war.

"Giving blood for victory at the Red Cross Blood Donors Service is much easier than giving blood on a beachhead or battlefield as our boys are doing," Gordon Alston, one of the fathers, said.

Prospective donors may call Wabash 7850 and ask for the Blood Donors Center for appointments.

CAPITAL EYES BRITAIN'S CURB ON BUROCRATS

Seeks Means to Halt Dictatorship.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 10.—Members of congress are studying with deep interest British parliamentary moves to curb the war powers of Prime Minister Churchill and other officials so that war time dictatorship will not be carried over into peace.

It was reported in several quarters on Capitol hill that steps similar to those in Britain may be taken here to withdraw delegated authority in order to reëstablish the power of the people as vested in congress.

The British press reported that the British government, which had been opposed to the surrender of delegated authority, had yielded gracefully to the demands for a curb on burocrats. Members of congress, however, do not anticipate a graceful retreat on the part of the New Deal, but are determined to press for action to prevent the burocrats from going beyond the limits congress intended.

British Watch Power Use.

The British house of commons has established a "scrutinizing committee" that keeps vigil for parliament over rules and orders which ministers make under blanket legislation. The committee will decide whether delegated powers have been carried out in the spirit of the original act and will report any excessive seizure of power to the house of commons.

Members of congress were divided in their opinion whether similar committees should be set up in the senate and the house or whether a special joint committee should be created.

According to copies of the London Daily Mail, which were in congressional hands, the announcement of the British government's acceptance of the check on delegated legislation, made by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, was greeted with cheers.

A year ago Morrison turned down similar demands from the house of commons.

Explains Attitude Shift.

"It is our adaptability which has saved our democracy more than once," Morrison said in explaining the shift of the government's position. "I feel certain that we shall have added not a brake on our parliamentary institutions but one of those additional safeguards which will serve the nation and parliament in good stead in future activities."

Members of congress noted that the position of the British minister stands in sharp contrast to that taken by Atty. Gen. Biddle in federal court at Chicago during the Montgomery Ward case.

Biddle then said the President has "a great constitutional reserve of power" and that "no business or property is immune to Presidential order." He also asserted that the courts "ought" not to interfere with the executive.

SERVICES HIRE A CIVILIAN FOR EACH 6 IN WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 10.—There is one civilian employe in the war and navy departments for every six men in uniform, records of the civil service commission disclosed today.

There are 1,203,947 civilian employes in the war department and approximately 7,500,000 are wearing army uniforms. The navy has 648,693 civilian employes and 3,400,000 are in the navy, marine and coast guard.

The civil service commission reported the total paid employment of civilian personnel in the United States government continued to increase in April. As of April 30, there were 2,850,585 persons on the federal pay roll, which constituted an increase of 13,033 over the 2,837,552 on the roll as of March 31.

Employed Overseas.

In addition there are 415,100 civilian workers employed overseas. There are also 291,224 uncompensated employes on the lists of federal workers. Of these, 8,503 are serving as dollar a year men and 282,176 are serving without any compensation.

Including those serving in and out of the country and those serving without compensation the total number of federal workers is 3,556,909. This total is almost four times as high as the World war total of 917,760, reached Nov. 11, 1918.

The total is six times greater than the total number of federal employes on the pay roll when President Roosevelt took office March 4, 1933. At that time there were 563,847 persons drawing pay.

Postoffice Is Third.

The war and navy departments have the largest number of civilian employes. The postoffice is third with 351,300. The treasury follows with 91,258 and the department of agriculture is fifth with 74,841 and the office of price administration sixth with 58,592.

There are 263,696 civilian employes in Washington. On November 11, there were 117,103.

PROPOSED AMERICAN FIRST CLASS BASES
PROPOSED AMERICAN SECOND CLASS BASES
POTENTIAL AMERICAN SEAPLANE BASES, AUXILIARY AIR BASES, OR EMERGENCY AIR FIELDS.
Map by Van Swearingen

Map of the Pacific area discussed in the accompanying article, showing proposed American first and second class island bases and potential seaplane bases, auxiliary air bases, emergency air fields. Locations of two proposed bases in Aleutian Islands are only approximate and do not necessarily coincide with sites of bases already there, positions of which are secret. Altho its possibilities are not discussed here, New Caledonia is indicated as a proposed base because of its strategic position as the key of the South Pacific.

Bases We Need to Maintain Peace

By COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

(Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.)

AGREEMENT has been reached that when the present war in the Pacific is over the American aims will include:

1. Disarmament of Japan, with additional measures to render that country forever incapable of again waging a major war.

2. Establishment of Korea as an independent country and establishment of the Philippine Islands as an independent country.

3. Transfer of Formosa to China.

4. Return of Manchuria to China and return to the British and the Dutch of their former possessions.

This article will discuss only that part of this heavy program which pertains to the United States doing its share in maintaining peace and order in the Pacific. Necessarily this includes the defense of the United States itself.

No plan for defense can be drawn which is not based upon consideration of possible enemies. No base should be selected, fortified, and garrisoned without a definite idea as to against whom it is to be a protection or guard.

Nobody knows when the next war will occur, nor how much time will be available to construct bases. Neither is it known which nations will participate in a war to come, nor which ones will be enemies, friends, or neutrals. In providing for the national defense the only safe method to avoid future disaster is to be at all times prepared to meet any nation or combination of nations which might tackle us. While providing for American defense, measures can at the same time be taken to co-operate with any international force which the United States may decide to join. Bases can be selected and built which will keep this idea fully in view.

The absolutely necessary preliminary to providing bases is to determine who could attack them. Whether nations that could do so would do it cannot be determined now. No one can foresee what will happen in the years to come. It takes time to establish bases. Once established, they are difficult to change.

Besides the United States, there are bound to be at the end of the war in the Pacific the great powers of the British empire, Russia, and China.

Russia holds the Northwest Pacific mainland. She has a first class base at Vladivostok. Because this is not an ice-free port, its value is reduced. At the end of the last century Russia occupied Manchuria and established a better base at Port Arthur.

Originally Manchuria did not belong to China. For centuries the Chinese maintained the Great Wall to keep the Manchus out. The Manchus got over the wall and conquered China. Their emperor became also emperor of China. Emperors never permitted Chinese immigrants to enter Manchuria. That came after Japanese occupation.

At the present time Manchuria is encircled on three sides by Russian territory. The Mongolian soviet republic is on the west and Siberia on the north and east. It would shorten Russia's lines of communication and improve her economic and military situation to once more hold Manchuria. It is only natural to assume that this may happen.

The position of Russia in the Northwest Pacific after this war is certain to be strengthened. The south half of Sakhalin probably will be returned to her, and the Kurile Islands may be given to her. It would better the American position to have a base in the Kurile Islands. But to establish one would certainly antagonize Russia. For this reason the Kuriles may either be unfortified or given to Russia.

Korea may become an independent country. Russia attempted to occupy that little country in 1904. This brought on the war with Japan.

China is a power by courtesy only. A more impotent colossus would be hard to imagine. It was contacted by American traders more than a half century before Perry visited and woke Japan. But China did not wake up. With a population at least five times as large as that of Japan, with resources immeasurably superior, and with more time, China has been unable to win a war for centuries.

Things may change, however. The Chinese are a hard-working people. They have the numbers, and they have the most wonderful lot of raw materials. They may develop. And if they do China will be a nation surpassing anything that Japan ever dreamt of.

The great industrial development of Russia has been accomplished under difficult circumstances within 20 years. There is no reason, if China sets herself to it, why she may not accomplish as much within the same period of time as her neighbor. She is in a position to raise armies, navies, and air forces and provide the industrial development to support them.

If and when this occurs China will be the greatest power in the Pacific.

The United States needs a base in the Philippines. Corregidor was an important fort. It needs to be reoccupied and completely rebuilt on new lines. It cannot be held unless the adjacent peninsula of Bataan is also held. Together they close the entrance to Manila bay. To the personal knowledge of this writer this was pointed out over 30 years ago, without having any effect on limiting the fortifications to the island alone. When MacArthur retreated to Bataan, without fortifications it was able to hold for only a short time.

The American naval base in the Philippines was at Cavite on Manila bay. Corregidor and Bataan block a sea approach to Cavite. They do not block a land attack. We need a new naval base within the lines of Bataan. Fortunately, there is an available site at Olongapo on Subic bay. Our new base, which needs to be a first class fortress, must include Corregidor, as protecting the south end of Bataan and closing the entrance to Manila bay. It must also include all of Bataan peninsula to beyond Subic bay. Such a base should be able to hold out for a long time —more than long enough to allow for a relief expedition to arrive.

It is presumed that the new government of the YOUTH ASKS FOR HELP!

By MAUREEN DALY

(Author of "Seventeenth Summer" and "Smarter and Smoother.")

This is the second of a series of two articles on the subject of juvenile delinquency as seen from youth's side. Last Sunday Miss Daly cited case histories to show how much home conditions have to do with delinquency.

OUT OF 425 juvenile delinquency cases reported in one key city recently, only a small percentage of the delinquents were from transient war working homes, only 19 had mothers in war plants, and only three of the offenders had fathers in service. The rest came from apparently prosperous and respectable families. Their offenses ranged from cutting school and stealing fruit from an outdoor stand to robbery and carrying concealed weapons. Home environment, physical handicaps in some cases, emotional maladjustment, and the old standby, "tension and hysteria of war," were blamed as causative factors.

If the young people themselves had been questioned they might have pinned the causes down to more definite, wholly peace time reasons. But the current wave of delinquency is considered an almost unavoidable result of the war. Youth has flamed before, and the average adult, with thoughts listing back to the first World war's babe and bottle era, is satisfied to accept the facts that the modern juke box crowd is just a little hot under the collar and youth has flamed again.

And with typical candor the young people are now ready to divvy up the blame, taking part of the responsibility themselves and shifting the rest onto parents, teachers, schools, and social groups that might have come to their aid. They know there is no single-cause explanation for juvenile delinquency, and they suggest no single-remedy cure. But they recognize that a serious situation does exist, and they have asked for help.

MAUREEN DALY

That is the important thing. They have asked for help. They don't want to have to walk up and down the streets for amusement, they don't want to stand on street corners to meet friends, they don't want to hang around pool halls, drug stores, and night spots to find fun—but they do want something to do with their spare time. They are willing to work hard in school and at part-time jobs, but they want after-hour interests. They want to be treated as thinking individuals. These young people want to know not only what they cannot do but what they can do.

"Parents," they say, "are mostly to blame for juvenile delinquency, and it lies within their power to remedy the situation if they choose!" And if parents will listen, parents who are teachers, bankers, grocers, and defense workers, but mothers and dads first, a solution might be worked out. Here are some thought-provoking ideas on juvenile delinquency from the juveniles themselves. These are not statements of accusation or even suggestions for remedies, but just opinions from teen-aged fellows and girls—maybe not the same fellows and girls who swelled the delinquency total for last year, but those still young enough to know the problems to be faced.

"No wonder it's easy for soldiers like me to pick up 13-17 year old gals on a Saturday night. These girls are innocent youngsters who never had the chance to learn the dangers and degradations of indiscrimination—they have some cock-eyed idea that this is war and they're doing us a favor. Who is going to set the girls straight if their own mothers and dads don't bother?"

"Whenever I hear about juvenile delinquency it reminds me of something I read once about a woman who asked a doctor when she should begin to teach her small 5-year-old son manners, good habits, and all the things that mothers teach their children. The reply was very simple, and that was to go right home and begin, because she had already wasted five years. And the answer to juvenile delinquency hinges on the doctor's answer—don't waste the first 14 to 18 years, but start explaining what's right and wrong from the beginning."

"I believe parents are for the most part responsible for wayward youth because of their own example in social life, and in many cases the neglect of religion. Parents who stay out till all hours of the night drinking, etc., cannot expect their teen-age sons and daughters not to do the same thing—and not get into trouble."

"My mother had to leave my sister and me alone at the ages of 6 and 4 to work in a neighborhood dime store. My stepfather was too young himself to have the responsibility of a family. I used to shine shoes when I was older, and at 11 I went around singing in taverns because I had a good kid's voice. I got used to having a little money, and when I was 16 I quit school, had a lot of jobs, and finally wound up playing piano at 18 in a tavern. I started drinking and drank so much that they kicked

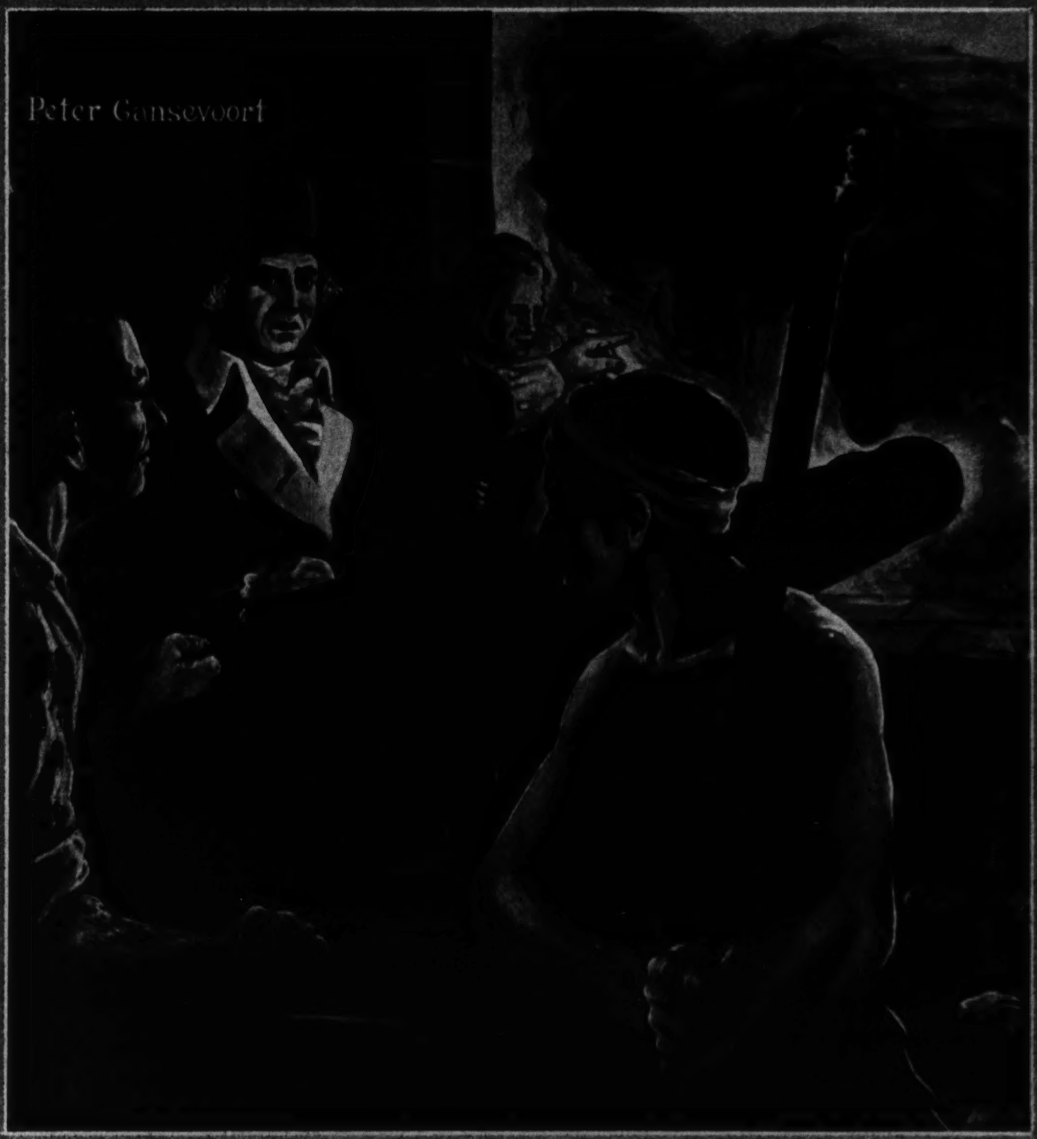
ROMANTIC FIGURES of AMERICAN HISTORY



The dramatic illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vornek, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches. Watch for this feature every Sunday.

HEROIC DEFENDER of Fort Stanwix, a remote American outpost, Peter Gansevoort contributed a large share toward the defeat of the British in central New York in the Revolutionary war.

He was born in Albany, N. Y., early in July, 1749. Biographies do not give the exact date of his birth, but agree that he was baptised on July 16 of that year. His parents were of an old Dutch family that had been conspicuous in Albany for three generations, a number of its members having been brewers or merchants.

Appointed a major of a New York militia regiment in June, 1775, he served in Gen. Richard Montgomery's ill-fated invasion of Canada. In 1776 he was elevated to lieutenant colonel and then colonel, and in the spring of 1777 he was appointed to the command of Fort Stanwix, on the site of the present city of Rome, N. Y. The name of this military post had been changed a short while before to Fort Schuyler, but it is as Fort Stanwix that it is better known in history.

Burgoyne's invasion of New York from Canada came in 1777, and simultaneously with it, and a part of the British general plan, was an advance from Lake Ontario of an enemy force of about 1,700 men under Col. Barry St. Leger. This force consisted mainly of Tories and Indians under Col. John Johnson, Maj. John Butler, and the Mohawk chief, Joseph Brant.

St. Leger's army, according to the plan, was to sweep down the Mohawk valley and join Burgoyne's force at Albany. On its route of advance lay Fort Stanwix. Early in August St. Leger invested Fort Stanwix. On the 6th of that month Gansevoort, who had only about 750 troops to defend his position, dispatched a part of his force under Col. Marinus Willet to strike at the enemy in an effort to create a diversion and relieve the pressure on Gen. Nicholas Herkimer, who was advancing from the east with a small army of New York militiamen to try to lift the siege of Fort Stanwix.

Herkimer's force was stopped by the enemy at Oriskany creek, badly cut to pieces, and compelled to withdraw. After this St. Leger demanded the surrender of the fort, but Gansevoort refused. Supplies and ammunition were running low and the commander of the fort was about ready to attempt to cut his way out at the head of his garrison when, on Aug. 22, the siege was raised. Benedict Arnold by this time was advancing to the relief of the fort with a small army of volunteers. By a ruse he had led St. Leger to believe that he commanded a large force, and the British colonel had no desire to face what might turn out to be a hard battle.

After the siege Gansevoort was in command a short while at Albany and later returned to Fort Stanwix. In 1779 he led a successful attack against a stronghold of the Mohawk Indians, and in 1780 he was given command at Saratoga, N. Y.

On his retirement as a line officer on March 26, 1781, he was commissioned a brigadier general of militia. At the close of the war he was made a major general of militia, and in April, 1809, he became a brigadier general of the United States regular army. He died July 2, 1812.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Must, O, must you play up the wicked, horrid stepmother in "Snow White"? Some day I hope to see just one movie or read just one story wherein the stepmother is a human being with decent motives. Many a poor stepmother is confronted with the task of doing a lot that has been left undone and undoing a lot that has been done. It is well-nigh hopeless sometimes. I know, for I am a stepmother. May I add I am not feeling sorry for myself? There is always another side to everything, and I happen to be on the side that doesn't get the light.

ONE OF YOUR FANS.

Dear Fan: I didn't know that I played the lady up. It's all in the story, you know.

My dear Mae Tinée: Let's call it a technical error! In your review of "A Guy Called Joe" reference is made to a graduate of Boston Tech. Evidently the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is meant. That school is located in Cambridge, Mass., across the Charles river from Boston, and has been there for the last 28 years. Even when it was located in the Back bay district of Boston its alumni and all connected with it resented the use of any such title as Boston Tech. If the Hollywood supervisor used the abhorrent title he should have known better. They are supposed to be all-wise.

What business is it of mine? I am of the class of 1887—just 57 years ago—and by appointment of President Compton have held the office of alumni secretary of the Chicago district for the last 15 years. There are only 840 Tech graduates in Chicago, and but few outrank me in age. I inclose some prints as proof of my statement. Sincerely,

LONSDALE GREEN, M. I. T. '87.

Dear Mr. Green: I stand corrected—and thanks for putting me straight. Your inclosures were very interesting. Please visit our corner again. You've been loyal to it many years, I know.

Dear Miss Tinée: We would appreciate it very much if you would tell us who played the part of Roy in "The Million Dollar Kid." Where could we send to get an autographed picture of him? Thanks and good luck to your column.

LUCILLE AND PAULINE.

Dear Girls: Johnny Duncan. He's with Monogram Pictures, Hollywood. I can use the luck. Thanks—and you're welcome.

IRENE'S DUNNE ALL RIGHT!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

IRENE DUNNE

The famous hat scene from "The Awful Truth," with Cary Grant.

With Alan Marshall in "White Cliffs of Dover."

Hollywood.

POKING FUN at our hats is even superseding the mother-in-law jokes these days, but, masculine scoffing to the contrary, to women hats are the staff of life. You'll see I'm not the only zany female in Hollywood. Ask Irene Dunne.

She owes her career to a hat. If it hadn't been for a big one in pale blue, Florenz Ziegfeld would never have noticed her; she'd never have won the lead in "Show Boat"; Hollywood would have missed her; and but for a hat the cinema capital would have kept her in musicals instead of giving her the plum role of Sabra in "Cimarron," a picture which changed the entire course of her life.

Yes, but for a hat the charming heroine of "The White Cliffs of Dover" would have been a charming housewife instead of a star.

Hats were important to Irene Dunne even as a child. So were hunches. But the hats started their influence earlier than the hunches.

She'll never forget the day she earned her first money singing hymns in the Indianapolis Baptist church choir—hymns taught her by the nuns at the Loretto convent in St. Louis. Her reward was a crisp new $10 bill, and just enough to purchase her heart's desire—a new hat.

"The hat was large, of silky straw, a pale blue affair with long streamers and extravagantly painted flowers under the brim. It cost exactly $10, and I truly believe that from the day I wore it I subconsciously decided that I might really earn my living by singing. The hat did it," says Irene.

Perhaps she was thinking of that hat when en route to Gary, Ind., to become a schoolmarm. On the train she read an announcement of a voice contest at the Chicago Musical college, where she'd been graduated a few weeks before. She had a hunch, stepped off the train, taxied to the college, and then was almost too panicky to sing. She was until she noticed her former teacher standing behind the judges. Just as she started to warble "The Swallow," favorite of all coloraturas, he winked.

In "Back Street," with John Boles.

"That broad wink gave me just the confidence I needed," she laughs.

Thanks to wink, hunch, or hat, she won the coveted scholarship, and the ambition which had lain dormant since childhood crystalized into a genuine aim to become a singer.

A year later, after hard study, she was singing the lead in the road show of the musical comedy "Irene" at a salary of $150 a week—staggering to a girl who was just young enough and enough of the small town girl to wire an SOS to her mother to come along, too. The prima donna traveled with mamma for the entire 20 week tour of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

Back in New York after her experience on the road, she expected every producer in town to offer her star parts. They didn't. Eventually Henry W. Savage gave her a chance to understudy Peggy Wood in "The Clinging Vine." When Peggy's father died Irene stepped into the lead for a single Broadway performance! It was enough to win her a chance at a summer of light opera sponsored by the Chandlers in Atlanta, Ga., a similar stint in St. Louis, and the lead in "The City Chap" for the Dillinghams, which was followed by the lead in "Sweetheart Time."

This called for a new hat and a party—the party was at the New York Biltmore, with John Valentine as an escort. But it was a strange gentleman who noticed the hat first.

"Whether it was the pink rose or the blue veil I don't know," admits the star, "but the gentleman requested an introduction."

Three years later, on the hottest day of the year, July 16, 1928, this same gentleman chose another hat for the lady. Only this time it was white tulle and orange blossoms. She married him—Dr. Francis Griffin—and promised to give up her theatrical career!

With this in mind, the bridal couple boarded the Berengaria, sailed for a European honeymoon, and the stage was forgotten. But neither Dr. Griffin nor the newly wedded Irene Dunne Griffin counted on the potency of hats.

"The day after I returned home wearing a beautiful new blue hat purchased in Paris," recounts Miss Dunne, "was the day I met Flo Ziegfeld in an elevator."

Now, any one connected with the theater held Ziegfeld in awe. When she found herself in the same elevator she couldn't help scrutinizing the gentleman. He did some scrutinizing himself. But she was headed for another floor. He stepped out, and Miss Dunne continued to her destination. She was almost out of the building when she was hailed by a breathless young woman.

"Stop, stop!" called the girl. "Mr. Ziegfeld wants you—the girl in the blue hat!"

Because of that hat, Edna Ferber's glorious "Show Boat" was Irene's for the asking.

"Yet I had promised my husband," she continues, "to forgo anything connected with the theater."

Dr. Griffin, New Englander, a next-door neighbor to the Calvin Coolidges in Massachusetts, wasn't interested in actresses.

"But I reckoned without my lucky hunches," she goes on, "the hunch that told me Dr. Francis Griffin was my sort of people. His smile when I told him about the Ziegfeld offer was as brilliant as my hope. Our honeymoon had eradicated all prejudice against the theater. I took the role, and never since that time has there been any question about my career between us."

The opening night of "Show Boat" marked the starting of a rich and varied career for the pretty girl with a voice and pretty hats. Ziegfeld, a man who never wrote when he could wire, sat in the second row and sent backstage 100 word telegrams of congratulations to his new star. It wasn't long before offers of Hollywood contracts came pouring in. Bewildered, the new star, who had figured that Broadway offered all she had ever aspired to, wasn't just sure what to do, especially after Rufus Le Maire warned her:

"Irene," said he, "you're too tall for pictures."

She's exactly 5 feet 5 inches.

Hollywood, however, won out, and she came out for the musical version of "Present Arms."

"It was panned unmercifully, and rightfully so," truthfully admits Irene.

She was about to return to New York when the search for the heroine of "Cimarron" began. It rivaled that of today's Scarlett O'Hara, and many actresses were tested. When Irene inveigled a test there was an astounded gasp from producers. Sabra, a straight dramatic role, the emotional plum of the year, to a musical comedy actress? Nonsense!

Nonsense or not, she wanted it, and she got it—thanks to a hat. Recalling that day, she says:

"My makeup was perfect, my wig was beyond reproach, but there was something missing (the test showed Sabra as the elderly congresswoman). Sitting in the makeup chair, I remembered seeing the woman who designed the wigs wearing the exact hat I wanted for Sabra. I ran around the lot and a few minutes before the test found her hidden away in a corner of the workroom. I borrowed her hat, and I'm convinced as much today as I was then that the hat turned the trick!"

Richard Dix, too, comes in for his share of thanks for helping her win the choice role.

"Cimarron" started an entirely new cycle. "Magnificent Obsession," "Back Street," "Symphony of Six Million," "The Secret of Madame Blanche," "The Silver Cord," and so on. By this time her hunches started working again. She had a hunch it was time to try comedy. Her agent fainted. Her friends fled. They begged her not to leave sure success for sure failure. Despite Cassandra warnings, Irene accepted the harum-scarum girl of "Theodora Goes Wild." "The Awful Truth" followed, and she found herself hailed as a comedienne. Henceforth she's switched from laughter to tears and back again.

Critics are again pointing with pride to her as an emotional actress for such roles as the romantic girls of M-G-M's "A Guy Named Joe," opposite Spencer Tracy, and that veritable cavalcade of a woman's lifetime, "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Irene Dunne, accompanied by Dr. Griffin, went east for the premiere of the latter picture. She's back home now, ready for either drama, comedy, musical, or romance. She'll take anything that comes along if it's a good story.

But there's one thing her fans can be sure of—she's back from Broadway with a new hat! And I'll be hanged if she didn't bring along a spare for me—and it's blue, too.

FOOD IN THE PICNIC PICTURE

Barbecued beef sandwiches will satisfy hearty picnic appetites.

Serve coffee raisin bars at home or pack them in the lunch box.

By MARY MEADE

SUMMER TIME is picnic time, so take the family off to the woods, or out to the back yard if it's more convenient, and enjoy a good, old fashioned beef barbecue. Simmer the beef in sauce in the kitchen and keep it hot by covering the kettle tightly and wrapping it well in tea towels, or reheat the mixture over the campfire. A salad of crisp raw vegetables and fruit-filled pie or turnovers will help to appease hearty outdoor appetites.

For the barbecued beef cut 1¼ pounds of beef into 1 inch cubes and brown in hot fat. Add 1 cup water and simmer 1½ hours, or until tender. Brown 1 cup thinly sliced onions and 1 clove garlic, minced, in hot fat and add to cooked meat with 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup catchup, 1½ teaspoons salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper. This amount will fill 12 buns.

Ground beef patties make good picnic fare, too, for they can be cooked quickly over the campfire. Season ground beef with salt and pepper and shape into thin patties. Then make a stuffing by combining bread crumbs in the proportion of 1 cup crumbs to ¼ cup chopped peanuts. Season with grated onion and moisten with hot water or a little meat broth. Place a spoonful of the stuffing on top of one patty and place another over it, pinching the edges together. Prepare all of the patties in this way. Heat a heavy skillet and brown the patties in it, first on one side, then on the other. Then cook slowly until done.

Bar cookies take well to lunch box packing, but these coffee raisin bars are equally good as snacks to serve at home. They're easy to make, for no rolling or shaping is necessary.

COFFEE RAISIN BARS

(Sixteen bars)

½ cup hot coffee
½ cup raisins
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon allspice or cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg

Pour hot coffee over raisins. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, soda, spices, and salt. Cream shortening and sugar together until fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in coffee-raisin mixture. Add flour all at once and beat well. Bake in greased oblong pan 12x8 inches in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 25 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from pan, cut into bars, and roll in confectioners' sugar if desired.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

Mary Morse hall, where students studying French may live, is one of five residence houses for undergraduates at Mills. During the summer it is the headquarters for La Maison Française, where only French is spoken and guest lecturers conduct a French institute. This picture is typical of the heavily foliaged Mills college scene.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Oakland, Cal.

MILLS COLLEGE, small, distinguished, and rich in tradition and academic glories, sprang originally from a "Young Ladies' seminary" opened in 1852 by a group of New Englanders to serve the educational needs of the daughters of the pioneers of gold-loaded California and even those of the men whose thirst for adventure and wealth had brought them to Hawaii and points across the Pacific. At that time it was at Benicia, Cal. In 1871 it moved to Oakland and shortly thereafter changed its title and charter to become Mills college.

Mills occupies its Oakland site still. Its first residence hall, Mills, a tall rambling white frame structure of typical Victorian splendor, is now one of five such halls that serve its student body of 600, a most cosmopolitan group drawn from all the states, Europe, and the orient. This year at Mills (which ended its regular term with commencement last Saturday) there were students from the Hawaiian islands, as always, and others from such opposing points of the compass as Punta Arenas, the southernmost city of the world, and Reykjavik, Iceland.

Mills' is a country campus, tho it lies in metropolitan Oakland high on hilltops looking westward over San Francisco bay. It has a wild, natural beauty that has been carefully nurtured. Its creek, plains, high hills, and canyons are lush with an abundance and variety of foliage that defy description. Its trees are magnificent. Most notable, because their aromatic scent pervades the atmosphere everywhere, and on some days even dwarfs the mingled flower fragrances, is a cathedral-like grove of eucalyptus. Until the day she dies the scent of eucalyptus should be a magic carpet returning a Mills student swiftly to the quiet and the natural glories of the Oakland campus.

Mills buildings fit the terrain and tangled natural beauty of the foliage that surrounds them. There is no uniformity of architecture, but there is easy harmony of the whole and breath-taking beauty of the piece. The art gallery, white, with red tile roof, and the individual craft studios that fan out from it in the back, are a delight to the eye. It is in another, more important sense one of the foremost art centers in the far west.

The two residence halls, Moore and Morse, perched high on a hill and joined by a rhododendron court; the music building; the gymnasium, with its open swimming pool, and the sweet old Victorian Mills hall, with Lady Banksia roses climbing its white walls and flowering almond pinking up its entrances, are all characterized by mellow beauty.

Midwestern girls love Mills—its climate, its proximity to the breath-taking city of San Francisco, and its serene beauty. There are no sororities at Mills, and the Mills girl as a rule is a serious student, preparing herself carefully for intellectual contribution to the world that will be left when belligerencies have ceased.

Last Saturday was degree day at Mills, when the seniors, wearing soft Oxford caps instead of the stiff mortarboards, were presented with their short bachelors' hoods in gold and white. Among them was a Glencoe girl typical of the Mills student—Dolores Neef, who was graduated with honors in chemistry and who was awarded a teaching fellowship by the University of Wisconsin, where she will resume work in the fall. Another distinguished midwesterner here is Sarah Causton of Evanston, a music major, who in her recent freshman year played regularly in the string ensemble with the Oakland Symphony.

OUR FUTURE IN PACIFIC

Philippines will do something to provide an efficient land army. The American base must be independent of the land army. But the two could and should work together.

It would be possible to establish other bases in the Philippines, but a Corregidor-Bataan base would suffice for present needs. Should later developments require an additional base, Jolo Island, about 560 miles south from Manila bay, is suitable. It is ample in size for air fields of any length and has a port suitable for light naval forces. The Philippine government can be counted upon to provide bases for American use and to aid in maintaining them.

The strength of the British empire in the Pacific lies in the south. Except for Singapore, which is barely north of the equator, Hong Kong was the only fortified place the British had in the North Pacific on the Asiatic side. Experience showed that Hong Kong wasn't worth much as a center of resistance. Against a reawakened China it would be difficult to defend it.

There have been no first class British bases in the Pacific. Even if they so desired, the British could not launch an attack against the United States from their Pacific possessions. At this time there is nothing to require the United States to protect itself against such a danger.

If, however, the United States is called upon to again go to the South Pacific to protect British holdings, including the dominions of Australia and New Zealand, it would be advantageous to have suitable bases in that area.

We already have a base in the Samoan Islands. Not a first class one, but it could be made so. We have temporary bases on Espiritu Santo Island, of the New Hebrides Islands, and in New Caledonia.

Taking into consideration other American bases, Espiritu Santo and Samoa would probably cover American needs for the South Pacific. The New Hebrides are a British and French condominium. If the British interest therein is transferred to the United States, no other British cession would be required.

The distance from Hawaii is so great that it would be unsafe to maintain a base as far away as Manila bay without having intermediate ones. These would shelter, supply, and protect relief and supply expeditions.

The Japanese-mandated islands fit in just right for this purpose. As danger in the next war appears to lie more toward the north, bases in the more southern islands appear preferable.

Japan has done a considerable amount of development work on the mandated islands. She has provided two bases, one at Palau and the other at Truk. It may well be that her choice was as good as any and that we can adapt these bases to our needs. So far as our present knowledge of the Caroline Islands indicates, we can accept these provisionally as our future bases.

Japan did not have a first class base in the Marshall Islands. From her point of view only advanced bases were required. For us an all-around base is needed, as Truk is too far away from our great base at Hawaii. Any one of several of the Marshall Islands would be suitable. A selection, if not already made, undoubtedly soon will be by our naval authorities.

Most of the mandated islands will be useful for air fields. With exceptions, they need not be fortified. A few islands as auxiliary bases are almost a necessity.

As an outpost to the north, Guam will be available after it is recaptured. A probably better second class base is the present Japanese one at Saipan and Tinian in the Marianas Islands. The two islands are adjacent and are small sea and air bases.

Col. C. H. Lanza

Farther to the north an auxiliary base in the Bonin Islands would fit well with bases in the Marianas to the south and with Wake Island to the east. We know little about the Bonin Islands. Best reports indicate that the likeliest site for an auxiliary base there is Chichi and Haha Jima (Father and Mother Islands in Japanese).

The United States has had landing strips and some auxiliary facilities among the Line and Phoenix Islands. These form convenient steppingstones on the air and sea routes from Hawaii toward Samoa. Title to these islands should be definitely assigned to the United States.

Within some years the Latin American states may become an influential factor in the Pacific. Their combined population is about equal to that of the United States and is increasing at a faster rate. Their resources, yet to be adequately developed, are ample to support large military forces.

Latin America is weak because it is divided into numerous small states. The day may come when they will combine. If this happens, with opening of new roads, railroads and air routes and with construction of great industries, Latin America may become strong. The United States is now actively aiding many of the states to the south of us to become industrially more independent. Some of them, with our aid, are creating important military forces.

In the next war in the Pacific the possible action of the Latin American states cannot be disregarded. Alone they might never dare to fight the United States. Allied to some other nation or nations, they might.

There is only one island base off South America in the Pacific which would be particularly useful to the United States. This is the Galapagos Islands. They cover the Panama canal and afford a base for military operations to the south and west. A temporary American base has been provided there. It should be a permanent one.

The one other nation in the Pacific is the Dutch. Even if they recover the Netherlands Indies the Dutch will not be strong enough to challenge the great powers. Neither are they likely to be politically active. The East Indies are economically a wonderfully rich region. In possession of a weak nation, they are a standing invitation to a strong country to seize them.

This has already happened and may happen again. It might occur before the next war starts or afterward. The islands are particularly valuable to the British empire as a connecting link between India and Australia. In hostile hands they are a danger to India, in addition to being a threat to British sea and air lines of communication. The British probably will not object to the Dutch continuing to rule these valuable islands, nor to their becoming more or less independent. They probably would object to any strong power other than themselves obtaining a foothold in the East Indies.

Let us now consider the strategic value of the islands of the American coast between San Diego, Cal., and the Galapagos group. These islands, which now belong to foreign powers, include:

Mexican Islands. Guadalupe Island, about 250 miles southwest from San Diego, and the Revilla Gigedo Islands, 375 miles southwest of the end of Lower California, are potential air bases. From them planes could scout the surrounding seas.

Better than these islands, which due to lack of resources, including water, would be difficult to develop, would be a good military base on the mainland, either near La Paz, at the south end of Lower California, or just across the peninsula at Magdalena bay.

Annexation of Lower California to the United States has often been proposed. From the point of American defense it would be advantageous to hold it. A base could be connected by road and railroad to the United States and would be infinitely superior to the islands mentioned above. The latter could be used as advance fields, held by light forces.

Since Mexico has objected to ceding Lower California, and probably will continue to do so, a compromise might be effected by leasing sites to the United States, with right of access thereto overland and retention of Mexican jurisdiction on matters not pertaining to the military forces of the United States.

French Islands. There is only one — Clipperton. This is small and uninhabited. Very difficult to land on even in fair weather, 500 miles out at sea. It is just half way between the tip of Lower California and the Galapagos Islands. Clipperton is useless to France and its cession to the United States is logical. It could be made a stopping place for planes in transit and would be useful for this purpose.

Costa Rica Island. Cocos is a mountainous island not quite half way between the Galapagos Islands and Costa Rica. If an American base is maintained in the Galapagos, Cocos would serve as an emergency landing field and seaplane base. It could be left under control of Costa Rica.

The erection of defenses on this island other than by the United States should not be permitted. It is too close to the Panama canal to chance allowing a fortified island falling into hostile hands.

Colombia Island. Malpelo Island is three-sevenths of the way from Panama to the Galapagos Islands. The situation here is the same as for Cocos Island. It is a proper place for emergency facilities for planes. No fortifications should be permitted. None is needed as long as the Galapagos Islands are held and while the United States holds air and sea control.

The bases recommended as advisable for the United States to fortify and hold in order to protect our interests in the Pacific are listed in an accompanying table.

A first class base is one able to furnish major repairs to our battle fleet and which also serves as a depot for sea, air, and ground forces. It needs to have a large harbor, extensive air fields, and space for troops and for storing and issuing supplies. It must be well fortified and the personnel and stores protected against bombing. The garrison must be large enough to defend the base against all comers without depending on either the fleet or troops which may be passing thru. As long as there is any possibility of some power starting a war without notice the garrison should be kept at war strength.

A second class or auxiliary base affords shelter for minor forces, particularly light sea forces and air forces. They, too, need to be fortified. On account of their limited size, their garrisons are relatively small.

The bases listed are those already discussed. They are grouped together for convenience. Not listed are islands whose main value is as air fields. Practically all have value for this purpose. They need no strong fortification. Their protection will lie with the American sea, air, and ground forces located at the first class bases or coming from America thru them.

In this study the number of bases has been kept at a minimum. It is realized that they are expensive to construct and to maintain and require time to establish them. If funds later become available additional bases may be provided to meet a changing political situation.

As stated at the beginning of this article, no one can now foresee what is going to occur. The bases recommended will furnish a substantial defense net for America in the Pacific, no matter what happens. They are also well situated to enable us to do our part in policing the Pacific.

ELBOW ROOM IN THE SUN!

By ELEANOR NANGLE

IN THE LANGUAGE of the fashion experts, there is each season a prescribed "look." Not so long ago, you'll remember, it was the "covered up" look, demanding high neck lines and sleeves in evening dresses. This year the look is "bare, brief, and beautiful," understandable enough in view of the backless, sleeveless dresses not only for sports but for the street and for dress that are big on the fashion horizon.

It's our idea that the bare and brief effect is strictly for the beautiful, but of course it probably won't work out that way. Unless a lot of reconditioning is done on feminine arms and feminine backs, we fear the worst.

Take elbows, for instance. How often do you take a merciless look at yours? And in examining your beauty conscience can you claim for one minute that they are presentable to unhindered view, much less beautiful? If you can, you're one in a million.

Long before you don your first sleeveless dress, adopt a little special program of care for your elbows. You'll be showing them this year as never before—and they'd better be white and soft as the skin of the rest of your arms. A dark, wrinkled, rough patch of skin on the back of the arm midway between shoulder and wrist is unsightly and unfashionable.

You have to remember that neglect of the skin of that area is of long standing; you're not going to whiten and soften it in a day. Cream it daily to help soften it. If the skin is discolored, use cleansing grains a couple of times a week; the friction and the deep cleansing they afford combine to speed up the reconditioning process. In any case, no matter what you use, cream before and after cleansing. At least a couple of times a week use bland soap and a stiff complexion or bath brush. It's this friction—much like that promoted by the cleansing grains—that carries off all the scaly, stained skin and the little bumps that make the elbow patch unsightly.

This has to be stiff cleansing—and you'll have to compensate for that by more creaming afterward so the skin won't be taut or even torn. Massage in the richest cream you can find every single night.

And by day, when you don your brief and beautiful summer dress, don't underestimate the camouflage merits of the good foundation. It conceals a multitude of skin sins and does you the further favor of giving a finish that is satiny and beautiful.

The only truly beautiful elbows are the rounded, soft ones of plump babies and chubby little girls. Once past childhood, you have beautiful elbows only if you give them the care they need, and even then make them up with some artifice.

It's going to be a summer of backless and sleeveless dresses not only for sports but for the street and for dress. Better start now to make certain your elbows can stand the 1944 exposure. Creaming will soften them, the right kind of cleansing will clarify the skin and makeup will conceal what defects remain.

DUTCH MASTERS CIGAR

GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER presents "Home in Indiana," with Lon McCallister, Walter Brennan

1 Sparke Thornton (Lon McCallister) comes to live with his uncle, J. T. (Thunder) Bolt (Walter Brennan) and Aunt Penny (Charlotte Greenwood) at Bolt's run-down farm. Thunder used to be the top sulky driver on the Grand Circuit, but a feud with Neighbor Godaw Boole has made him an embittered man, with only one trotter left, Maudeen Three.

2 [illegible], Sparke refuses to go to school, preferring to get a job training trotters at Boole's Low Meadow farm. Unaware of the feud, he appeals to Boole's trainer, Jed Bruce (Ward Bond) and meets Boole's daughter, Cri-Cri (June Haver).

3 Jed's daughter, Char (Jeanne Crain) falls in love with Sparke and makes no secret of her envy of Cri-Cri's glamorous beauty.

4 When Thunder discovers that Sparke is working for Boole, he gives his approval, saying that Sparke shouldn't be burdened with the feud. Furthermore, he has found that Sparke is an [illegible] and needs [illegible]!

6 When Maudeen Four is ready for the races, Sparke is at the reins. It is the big race, and by expert maneuvering Sparke brings his filly in to victory over Boole's best horse.

7 At left: It is a happy day, for the revival of sportsmanship has ended the feud, and Sparke and Char at last have their families' blessings. (THE END)

At left: GEORGES CLEMENCEAU (1841-1929): Called to the premiership of France in the dark days of 1917, the 76-year-old "Tiger" roused his war-weary country with his iron will to victory and led it to triumph. In the subsequent making of the peace he was largely responsible for the implacability of the treaty of Versailles. He was French premier in 1907 when he autographed this portrait for Mr. McCormick.

me out at home, and I can't get in the army, either. It was nobody's fault—nobody seemed to care what I did."

"Girls are lonesome. These are the years that are supposed to be so much fun. They feel the excitement of war without actually having a part of it. It's hard to find things to do to keep contented. I'm 17, and I'm getting so I don't blame girls who run away."

"It's often just the result of a kind of boredom. When both parents are working and the house is empty, there just seems no reason to come home after school. Schoolwork takes just a certain amount of time, and after that there is nothing to do."

"It's about time some of us fellows got some backbone into ourselves and began telling our friends off. We should show them how to have a good time without spending an hour of the evening parked on a side road."

"I'm afraid I would have to place most of that blame on parents and home conditions. 'Child psychology' and 'self-expression' have made for less respect for parents on the part of the children, and in fact many parents seem to care little about the habits and daily goings-on of their offspring. Take all the homes where children are almost chased out—anything to get a little peace and quiet, you know! The usual statement is: 'Here's a dime, Johnny—go out to the movies!' How can children grow up right when they are put on their own to form minds and personalities?"

"You hear people always talking about jitterbugs, juke boxes, and Harry James' recordings—in our town there isn't even one place where high school kids can go to dance."

"Parents seem to think that junior is capable of taking care of himself because he is 'grown up' when he gets into high school. But in the army we young fellows find out we don't even know what the score is!"

"If you're a high school student who don't have to work and aren't really needed; if you're just working to earn a lot of extra dough—quit your job and start being a 24-hour-a-day student. Exert your energies to your social, physical, mental, and moral development. After all, being a student is a real vocation—doesn't leave time for delinquency."

"As late as 1930 and 1935 youngsters would never think of getting out of hand, because tough home conditions would not permit it. Now, with too much to spend, it's easy for a fellow to cut loose."

"My mother and dad were wonderful, so I'm prejudiced to our type of home. Our home is very musical, and we have never been at a moment's loss for entertainment, as we all play at least one instrument. 'Our mother instilled in us early a genuine love for reading good books, along with our music, and that has proved to be an equal antidote for boredom. There should be a law compelling parents to make home the most interesting spot in the world, so that children would not want to roam the streets in search of adventure or 'just something to do.'"

"I'll do whatever my mother and dad tell me to do—but if I can't go to the roller rink, if I can't stay out till 12 with girl friends, if I can't have dates, I wish they'd find me something else to do!"

"So often there seems to be a feeling of resentment between child and parents. The kid wants to have a good time, the parents just can't hold him down, and they don't understand each other."

"Every one likes to date, but there is a problem in our locality—maybe in other communities, too. There is just no place to go for real entertainment. O, I know we've got the movies and skating rinks and drug stores. But that's all. Just think, in this city of 50,000 or more there's not one community ballroom or sports center (except the 'Y') where the young folks could get together to spend a decent evening—and I mean 'decent.' So what happens? The schools hold their dances and basketball games, and where does the crowd go afterward? Nine times out of ten, to some tavern or other. It's a shame."

These aren't delinquents talking, but if something isn't done they may be! Right now they're just plain high school fellows and girls with something on their minds. They don't like delinquency, either. They know they have more opportunity to go wrong now than they had in other years, and they want some one to help. In the excitement of war, teen-agers have been almost forgotten.

To fight delinquency everything possible must be done to strengthen the home, for youth wants some one and something on which to depend; they want to feel that they "belong." Church and community groups must be ready to coöperate in giving the youngsters something to do, making a place for them in the war effort. These fellows and girls are too intelligent to be content to stay idle. They are willing to work, but they also need well planned recreational programs. They must have something to do.

Teen-age canteens, community organized and community sponsored, will partially solve the problem; youth centers where young people can meet to dance, study, or just get together for an evening under sympathetic supervision. These youth centers are a demand to augment the training of home, church, and school; as absolutely necessary to the complete victory of each community as bond drives, blood donor units, and recruiting stations. Young people are individuals and must be given individual consideration.

There are few juvenile delinquents—only adults who have been delinquent in meeting an obvious need. These fellows and girls want something to do—they are good kids. Give them an even break.

She's Donna Lot

Donna Reed was born Donna Mullenger on a farm out in Ioway—near Denison. In 1937, her senior year at Denison High, she was campus queen, and a year later she drove to Los Angeles with the avowed intention of making for herself a business career. She did that, but not as she had expected. In 1940 her classmates at L. A. City college voted her her second campus queenship. Naturally every studio in town wanted her contract the next day. But Donna got her diploma first, then made a screen test with Van Heflin, who was also just starting his film career. Both won roles in "The Getaway." From then on her star rose swiftly. Most recently she's been seen in "See Here, Private Hargrove." Donna is 5 feet 3, weighs 115 pounds.

TROOP CARRYING GLIDERS

The army's CG-4A troop and cargo carrying glider, an externally braced high-wing monoplane constructed of wood and steel tube, covered with fabric. It can glide at 38 miles an hour without stalling or be towed at 120.

The CG-4A carries 15 fully armed and equipped men, two of whom act as pilot and co-pilot. Or it can carry a ¼ ton truck, crew of four, plus two other men and equipment. Its total weight with capacity load is 7,000 pounds.

The CG-3A glider, used solely for training purposes. Its 73 feet 1 inch wing spread and over-all length of 48 feet 5 9/16 inches compare with the 83 feet 8 inch wing spread and 48 feet 3¾ inch length of the CG-4A.

Glider-borne troops are given intensive coaching in the art of destruction. Here a group leaves a glider in simulated invasion tactics. In the foreground is the tail structure of a nine place training glider.

GLIDERS have firmly established themselves as a potent instrument of war—carrying men and equipment silently into battle areas or behind the enemy lines for surprise attacks. They have been towed across the Atlantic, filled with blind flying instruments, oxygen tanks, etc. From 25,000 feet they can travel forward at least 25 miles. Those pictured here are standard craft built for the army. They are constantly being improved and equipped with new devices that make them even more valuable, but which are still important military secrets.

Know Your Horses

SUFFOLK Named for the county in England in which its breed originated, the Suffolk is a horse with a long family history. The breed in its early form is known to have been in existence back as far as the latter part of the 18th century.

Every well bred Suffolk horse of today is said to have in it the blood of a famous nameless stallion, foaled in 1768 and owned by a man named Crisp who lived in Ufford, near Woodbridge. A few years later fresh blood was introduced into the breed thru a trotting stallion. This brought improvement in appearance and action. Many years later there was further infusion, which increased the size of the horses of the breed. Suffolks first were imported into America in the early 1880s, and while continuing to come into the country in normal times in small numbers, they have never been widely popular here. Nevertheless there is sufficient interest in America in the breed for the maintenance for registration purposes of the American Suffolk association, with headquarters in Spencer, Ind.

The Suffolk is famous for its draft qualities, and when properly trained for pulling it will exert every ounce of effort of which it is capable. A courageous and resourceful animal, it is favored for farm rather than city use.

Because it has what is phrased as a "punched up" appearance, the Suffolk often is termed the Suffolk Punch. In other words, it is a very compact animal. The average height of stallions is from 16 hands to 16 hands 2 inches, altho some are no taller than 15 hands 2 inches. The weight of stallions varies from 1,600 to 1,800 pounds, with a few weighing as much as 2,000 pounds.

The head is small and refined, the neck strong, thick, and crested, the chest large, and the body short. The hind quarter is rounded and heavily muscled, the croup without slope, and the legs short and thick. Unlike some of the other draft breeds, the Suffolk has no "feathers" on its legs. In color animals of this breed are in nearly all cases a dusty chestnut, verging upon dun. Frequently the mane and tail are cream colored. The face is seldom blazed, and when there are white markings on the legs they rarely extend above the coronets or pasterns.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

BY BOB BECKER

THIS IS AN ideal time of the year to get a new dog for the home, especially a puppy. There are obvious advantages in raising a puppy during spring and summer.

In the first place, families that have yards around their homes may keep the pup outside in a small kennel much of the time. Here the puppy gets exercise and sunshine as well as much-needed early training in staying by himself. Then, too, while house-breaking a very young dog it's not difficult to get him outside in good weather. Obedience training for the older dog also can be conducted outdoors during the spring and summer.

To any family considering a new dog we urge the purchase of a purebred—a dog of known ancestry that has a pedigree and comes from a kennel that raises sound stock. This doesn't mean necessarily a high-priced dog.

Altho we like all dogs and know from personal experience that a crossbred may be affectionate, smart, and a lot of fun, there are many important reasons why it's good business to invest in a purebred. It costs just as much to feed a mongrel as it does a purebred. It costs just as much for veterinarian fees for one as it does for the other. The only difference in the cost is the original investment.

Further, you don't have to apologize for a purebred's appearance. Another very important argument is that you can breed a purebred. No one wants to breed a good dog of known ancestry to one that is an unknown mixture. So the crossbred dog is the end of the line. If you want another crossbred dog like the one you own you rarely if ever can get that exact combination again.

In spite of the fact that the mongrel has had no end of sentimental publicity, so that people still think he is smarter and more heroic than the purebred, no one ever has been able to prove that such is the case. If it were more intelligent, millions of outdoor men would be mixing up the different sporting breeds instead of using purebreds which have taken hundreds of years to develop. If purebreds were inferior to mongrels, then pedigreed dogs would be cheap, whereas the opposite is true.

Altho crossbred dogs are more numerous than purebreds in America, the pedigreed animals are increasing in numbers and people are taking a greater interest in them. If you have ever visited a big city dog pound and seen pens full of homeless, half-starved crossbreds waiting for some one to end their troubles you came away with the sincere wish that every one who owns a crossbred will give it good care but never let it be bred. The crossbred can be smart, devoted, and courageous and make a companionable pet, so it deserves the best care.

A purebred dog naturally costs more than one which is a mixture of many different breeds. Yet dogs with pedigrees of known ancestry and which may be bred are not nearly so expensive as most people think. Purebred dogs cost more than mongrels because they are the product of scientific breeding, and also because reliable breeders invest real money in their litters of puppies.

Here are some of the expenses that go into that puppy of yours before you buy him: First, the breeder (and we assume he has high grade, pedigreed stock) has an investment in the breeding stock. This alone may run into hundreds of dollars. In nearly all cases the breeder must charge against a litter of pups a stud service fee between $25 and $50. When the pups are growing to the age when they can be weaned and sold the mother and the pups must have clean quarters. After being weaned the puppies get quarters by themselves. The work of keeping these quarters clean is no small job.

Food for these puppies is quite an item. It takes a plentiful supply of cows' milk, cereal, prepared dog food, and perhaps a special supplementary puppy food to feed the vigorous pups. Certainly a kennel owner is entitled to a fair rate per day for his labor when one also considers puppies are fed about every four hours. Then there is the cost of advertising the litter. The kennel owner also must worm every pup. Add the cost of medicine against the litter and you have another expense item.

These two breeds of spaniels are seldom seen as pets. The one on the left is an English toy spaniel owned by J. W. Lukens, Chicago. The other is a Japanese spaniel owned by Dr. John H. Shafner, Chicago.. The latter is a member of the oriental canine family which includes the Pekingese.

nice hobby, fellows, but your tools are old-fashioned now!

Pardon us for disturbing you, but we'd like you to take a look at a remarkable little tool kit we used to make before the war. It was safe. It was efficient. It was fast as a retreat from Russia—just about ideal for a couple of wholehearted hobbyists like you.

We called it the Casco Electri-Craft because it operated on electricity . . . see? You just plugged it into the wall and it went whir-whir. And you could use the various attachments for grinding, drilling, polishing, sanding, engraving, sawing, carving—or cutting up the world ...Oh, you'd have loved it!

Of course, we don't really want to do any selling on this power tool set, because we aren't producing any right now. Darndest thing you ever saw the way it happened, too. A flock of monkeys dropped some bombs on a place called Pearl Harbor and we wound up in the bullet business.

We got a new weapon, too, fuzes for chemical mortar bombs. And 51 sub-contractors helped us do a job on you. And more than 2,500 workers pitched in. We're really doing quite nicely, but you probably figured that out for yourself when you counted your dead.

Don't get us wrong. We were hitting on all eight before the war—made unusual heating pads and automobile spotlights and heaps of other things as well as power tool kits. And we feel our experience entitles us to speak to you frankly. You're sunk. Kaput! The world was too tough for the tools you had.

But wait till the Allies get finished drilling holes in Greater Germany and the East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere! Boy, oh boy, will that be the "some day soon, we hope" every advertiser and his uncle's been talking about! Cordially . . . Casco Products Corporation, Bridgeport, Conn.

TRY THIS INSTEAD OF HARSH LAXATIVES

LEMON AND WATER gives all the regulation most people need. And it's good for you!

If you are troubled with constipation, try this simple fruit drink, first thing on arising. For most people it makes harsh laxatives unnecessary by helping the system function promptly and normally.

Millions now take lemons for health. According to recent surveys, over eight million Americans now take lemons as a regulator and general health aid. Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, and also supply B_1 and P. They alkalinize—aid digestion. Lemon and water has a refreshing tang, too—clears the mouth, wakes you up.

Why not be kind to your system by regulating it this natural healthful way? Try it ten days... juice of one lemon in a glass of water first thing on arising.

P. S. Some prefer the juice of one lemon in a half glass of water with ¼ to ½ teaspoonful of baking soda (bicarbonate) added. Drink as the foaming quiets.

Real economy! Because it's all rich, Real Mayonnaise, you can stretch it with milk or fruit juice and it's still creamy-rich in texture. Doesn't turn watery . . . stays on the food you eat instead of running off onto the plate you wash!

Real nutrition! This Real Mayonnaise is rich in food energy . . . provides almost exactly the same amount, spoonful for spoonful, as vitaminized margarine, or butter. Good for many of the same uses, too—to help you keep wartime rationed menus up to your own proud "taste good" standard.

PRESIDENT TAFT GAVE THE STARTING SIGNAL

IT is June 1, 1909. For weeks the papers have been full of the exciting news. Now, before the New York City Hall five "horseless carriages"—an Acme, a Shawmut, an Itala and two Model-T Fords—stand hub to hub.

Anxiously mechanics make final adjustments. Then, from the White House, President Taft flashes the starting signal. And America's first transcontinental auto race is under way.

West of St. Louis seven-day rains had turned the country roads into quagmires. Across the prairies and in Colorado average speeds were cut to ten miles an hour. At Cheyenne, Wyoming, the big Itala quit the race. The others plowed on. Near the summit of the Cascades they fought their way against towering snow drifts.

Days later, Ford Car Number 2—the winner—entered the gates of Seattle's Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. It had crossed the continent in 22 days and 55 minutes, with New York air still in the two front tires!

As he awarded the coveted trophy cup, Colonel M. Robert Guggenheim said:

"Mr. Ford's theory that a light-weight car, highly powered . . . can go places where heavier cars cannot go, and can beat heavier cars costing five and six times as much, on the steep hill or on bad roads, has been proved.

"I believe Mr. Ford has the solution of the problem of the popular automobile."

The proof of that statement rests in the 30 million cars and trucks Ford has built since then. Millions of them are still providing reliable, economical transportation for wartime America.

Meanwhile the inventive genius and the precision skills associated with the name Ford continue to serve the nation in the mass production of giant aircraft and other means to victory.

In the days of peace ahead, Ford's resourcefulness will again produce smart, soundly-engineered motor cars, priced within the reach of the largest number of people.

Cover Girl tells —

"How I really do Stop Underarm Perspiration and Odor (and save up to 50%)"

"My job calls for glamour!" says lovely FRANCES DONELON

"I've been 'Cover Girl' many times on big national magazines. But first, I had to learn how to stay 'picture-lovely' under wilting photographer's lights," says intriguing Frances Donelon.

"I had to find a deodorant that really kept my underarms dry. And didn't ruin the expensive clothes I model in. I found it in Odorono Cream!

"Here's the reason . . . it contains a really effective perspiration stopper that simply closes the tiny underarm sweat glands and keeps them closed up to 3 days!

"It's safe, too—even after shaving and with lovely, delicate fabrics. I just follow directions. I like to use it every day.

"And you actually get up to 21 more applications for 39¢ than other leading deodorants give.

"I wish every girl who is concerned about her personal daintiness would try this wonderful Cover-Girl formula for glamour—Odorono Cream."

H-HOW DO I KNOW YOU'RE NOT A JAPANESE SPY?
ARE YOU KIDDIN'?
MILTON CANIFF
I CAN'T TRUST ANYONE... SINCE THE JAPANESE KILLED MY MOTHER AND DADDY...
LOOK, BABY, I'M TOO TIRED AND HUNGRY TO ARGUE... MY NAME IS BURMA... I STUMBLED ON THIS PLACE PURELY BY ACCIDENT...
IF YOU HAVE BEEN ABLE TO HIDE OUT FROM THE JAPS SINCE THEY TOOK THE COUNTRY—THEN, CONGRATULATIONS!... IF YOU'LL FEED ME AND ALLOW ME TO SLEEP AWHILE — I'LL MOVE ON AND FORGET I SAW YOU...
OH—I DIDN'T INTEND TO BE RUDE... I'M REALLY A VERY WELL MANNERED YOUNG LADY... WON'T YOU COME INSIDE?
MEANWHILE — AT THE AIRFIELD BEHIND THE JAP LINES FROM WHICH BURMA WALKED INTO THE JUNGLE...
THIS IS IT, GENTS! THE MERRY OL' MONSOON IS WITH US!... THE BIRDS AREN'T JUST HIKIN' —THEY'RE SWIMMIN'!
DO YOU THINK COL. CORKIN WILL PULL US OUT OF HERE?
AFTER ALL THIS TROUBLE? HE'LL PROBABLY BUILD A LANDING STRIP ON TOP OF THE OVERCAST!
IF THERE ARE ANY JAPS UP IN THAT STUFF, THEY'RE CLOSER TO THEIR ANCESTORS THAN THEY THINK...
NOT ONLY JAPS, TERRY! I HEARD HARP MUSIC WHEN YOU STARTED RIDIN' MY TAIL LIKE A LONESOME DOGIE!
OKAY—I'M GIVIN' EVEN MONEY THAT HE HAS THAT BLUE BAR TATTOOED ON HIS SHOULDER...
NAW—IT JUST SOAKED THROUGH TO HIS BARE SKIN FROM SWEATIN' IT OUT SO LONG!
WHAT BOTHERS ME IS THAT THERE ISN'T AN EXTRA GOLD JOB IN THE OUTFIT... DO YOU SUPPOSE THE BLUE PART COULD BE SOAKED OFF WITH BATTERY ACID?
WE COULD HACK A PIECE OUT OF A SHELL CASING... IF HE'S BUCKIN' TO BE A BRASS HAT, HE SHOULD SETTLE FOR A BRASS BAR!
WHY DON'T WE ASK FLIGHT OFFICER LEE? HE SHOULD KNOW ABOUT SUCH THINGS...
YEAH... SIR, IF YOU WERE BEING PROMOTED FROM FLIGHT OFFICER TO SECOND LOOEY, WOULD YOU SETTLE FOR A HOMEMADE BRASS BAR?
IF I RATED A PROMOTION, I'D PROBABLY CARRY A SIGN AROUND MY NECK!
THERE'S PROBABLY SOMETHING IN ARMY REGULATIONS FORBIDDING CARRYING A SIGN... BUT OUR SPY AT HEADQUARTERS SAYS FLIGHT OFFICER TERRY LEE HAS BEEN UPPED TO SECOND LIEUTENANT! CONGRATULATIONS, SIR!

BUT TH' SECOND ONE! HOW DID SALAME SAM'S STIFF SNEAK IN HERE... AND EVERY DOOR GUARDED?
MORE ARITHMETIC, MAYBE... IS THAT IT?
NO! THAT ONE'LL TAKE ALGEBRA... MAYBE GEOMETRY, OR CALCULUS... AND I'M A LITTLE RUSTY ON ME HIGHER MATHEMATICS...
I SEE WHAT YOU MEAN, GROGAN... X EQUALS THE UNKNOWN...
YES... LET X AND Y BE TH' STIFFS WE'VE GOT NOW...
DON'T TELL ME YOU EXPECT TO GET Z!

2—Save up clothes until you can do a full wash at a time.

3—Scrape dishes well before washing. This way you need less soap.

The TEENIE WEENIES

BY WM. DONAHEY

CHICKEN RIDING

ONE day several of the Teenie Weenies found a hen on a nest of eggs. The little people became very friendly with the hen, and they often carried bits of food to her as they anxiously awaited the arrival of the young chickens.

When the Teenie Weenies visited the hen one morning they found seven fluffy little chickens had been hatched from the eggs. They were beautiful chicks and the old mother was very proud of them. In a couple of days the young chickens were running about, and some of the Teenie Weenies spent a great deal of their time playing with them. The Dunce persuaded the young chicks to take him for rides on their backs, and he often neglected his work in the Teenie Weenie garden.

"I want you to stop this chicken riding," the General told the Dunce after he had heard what had been going on. "There are more important things to do than chicken riding."

"Ah, shucks!" exclaimed the Dunce. "Those chickens haven't anything to do but run around and pick up bugs, and I might as well ride 'em while they are doing it."

"I have told you to stop it," the General warned.

For a few days the Dunce stayed away from the chickens, but one afternoon he couldn't resist his desire for a ride, and so he climbed onto the back of one of the chickens. The chicken hadn't gone far when it fell down, spilling the Dunce over its head, spraining his ankle. He couldn't walk without help, and so he asked the chicken to carry him to the Teenie Weenie village.

When the Dunce rode up to the shoe house a number of the Teenie Weenies gathered around him.

"Now, don't scold me," the Dunce told the General. "I sprained my ankle and I had to ride home because I couldn't walk."

After a few questions the Dunce finally confessed that he had been chicken riding. The General didn't scold much, but he helped the Dunce off the chicken's back and called the Teenie Weenie Doctor.

After the Doctor had examined the injured ankle he told the Dunce he would have to walk on crutches for a few days. The Dunce refused to use crutches, and he tied one of the Old Soldier's wooden legs to his knee and he limped around on that. He seemed to enjoy walking on the wooden leg, but he didn't enjoy his punishment for having disobeyed the General, for he had no dessert for a week, and the Dunce is mighty fond of good things to eat.

"Any way you look at it — BREAD COMES First"

WHAT'S NEW IN BREAD? JUST LISTEN!

Made to standards approved by the U.S. Government, every loaf of baker's enriched, white bread contains useful amounts of all these important food-values:

VITAMIN B₁—helps maintain good appetite and steady nerves.

VITAMIN B₂ (riboflavin)—essential to sturdy growth and normal nutrition.

IRON—helps build good, rich blood.

PROTEIN—helps build tissue and promote growth.

CARBOHYDRATES—supply food-energy readily turned into useful work.

These standards have been assured for all baker's white bread through the joint efforts of the U.S. Government and the Baking Industry in the past two years.

These are times when we must "eat to win." And for food-values — bread comes first. You see why when you read that panel at left. Note that today's enriched white bread now contains Vitamin B₂ (riboflavin) which authorities say is essential to good nutrition and normal growth.

For your money's worth and your convenience — bread comes first again! It's plentiful, inexpensive and easy to use. Requires no points!

So it's easy to understand why bread is featured in one of the "Basic Seven" food groups of the United States Government's official nutrition program.

Eat plenty of bread — with every meal. It's the wartime way to help yourself to better health and better meals.

BREAD IS BASIC

P.S.- MOST GOOD BREAD IS MADE WITH FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST

"Next to silk stockings I miss dreft most!

:..NO SOAP CAN DO WHAT DREFT DOES FOR DISHES, SILKS, WOOLENS!"

"I miss dreft for dishes
IT MAKES EVEN GLASSES SHINE WITHOUT WIPING!"

IT'S TRUE! : : : No soap ever made can perform the dishwashing miracles that Dreft can! It makes dishes positively gleam without wiping. For Dreft leaves no streaks or cloudiness the way soaps do. Gets even glasses so clean they sparkle—without touching a towel to them!

"AND I miss dreft for lingerie
IT KEEPS COLORS SO MUCH FRESHER THAN SOAP!"

IT'S TRUE! . . . Dreft is as gentle to wash colors as pure drinking water. Keeps them fresh far longer than even the finest soap flakes. And Dreft leaves none of the deposits that all soaps leave. That's why stockings washed with Dreft look so much sheerer—and why precious new woolens wash softer and fluffier than with any soap you've ever used.

UNCLE SAM COMES FIRST

Special materials used in making Dreft are urgently needed now by Uncle Sam. Of course we are glad to cooperate—glad to lend every aid to today's big effort. That is why Dreft very likely is not on your grocer's shelves at present. For Dreft is different from soap—made from different materials. It is these materials that are needed today. Rather than disappoint you by using substitute materials we've suspended the making of Dreft temporarily. For there can be only one Dreft—and inferior materials could never give you the wonderful benefits Dreft gives. So please understand. Soon, we hope, Dreft will be back again on your grocer's shelves. Watch for it.

Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. A Hymolalsalt Product

will you find the exact qualities that make Dreft unique. These ingredients are now helping Uncle Sam, and therefore there can be no Dreft—but watch for its return.

Marine Night Sortie Is Eerie Thing at Best

Chills and thrills of a night's scouting foray into a Tarawan village during the landing operations on the atoll were related by Sgt. Robert R. Thompson of a marine scout company in a recent letter to his sister, Mrs. S. M. Doak of Evanston.

On a ship off the island's coast there were preparations and conferences, Sgt. Thompson said, writing in the present tense, "and with a last puff from a cigaret the men file out onto the darkened deck. Then over the side and down the cargo net." They transfer from the smaller boat to rubber boats, while "luminous ripples of the phosphorescent water add an eerie touch to the whole setting. In a matter of minutes, if all goes well, we will hit the beach."

Moment of Queries.

The men are tense at this "most critical moment of the whole trip. The question in every one's mind is: What is going to happen? Have the Japs sighted us? Will they fire on us before we reach the beach? Or will our landing be a complete surprise?"

As the prow of the rubber boat hits the beach each man heads for his prearranged position. "Not a word is spoken. The only sound is the rustle of the palm leaves overhead. In a matter of seconds the rubber boats are dragged up on the beach and we are off into the darkness to carry out our mission."

The men were divided into two groups, one of which Sgt. Thompson led. "My patrol is headed for a native village which, according to maps and aerial photographs, should be about a mile north of where we landed." Time is limited, he said, for they must leave the island under cover of darkness.

Bagged By a Coconut.

"The going isn't as bad as we had expected. But wait, the first man has signaled that he has sighted something ahead. I start to crawl forward when bang! Crash! From a few yards to the right there is the most ungodly sound. By the time I get my breath again it dawns on me that it was just a falling coconut. But boy! I assure you that that sort of thing takes a couple of years off your life."

Close to the village the troop came upon an isolated native house, surrounded it, but found it deserted. Then, with the men in position, Sgt. Thompson and another marine decided to enter the village. "Believe me, this was another critical moment. But don't ever let any one tell you it isn't possible to slip into a native village without them knowing it. Because we did and nothing happened."

Natives Are Noisy.

The two men went into one of the houses. "In about two minutes there was so much noise that I was sure we were in for it. About 100 natives all jabbering. I was passing out cigarets right and left and saying 'American, friend, O. K.,' words we had been told the natives understood." When he had about given up hope of doing any good, Sgt. Thompson wrote, one native came up and said "Hello." He had worked for the government and spoke English well. "He was just the fellow we were looking for. We got him to return to the rubber boats with us and in a short time we were headed for our ship."

Sgt. Thompson had a box seat at the battle of Tarawa, he wrote his sister. "I sure think a lot more of the navy since," he said.

He has been in the marines since Dec. 8, 1941, and has been a year in New Zealand and the New Hebrides Islands.

Auxiliary of Douglas Park Nursery to Hold Luncheon

The uptown auxiliary of the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery will hold a luncheon tomorrow in the Roosevelt room of the Morrison hotel. Earning fund plans will be discussed. Mrs. Benjamin Chimberoff, 3300 Lake Shore dr., is president.

3 SETS OF NORTH SIDE BROTHERS MEET OVERSEAS

Coffeys, Pullens, and DeWolfs Reunited.

Pvt. James F. Coffey.

Pacific outposts and England have been the scenes recently of reunions of brothers from three north side families. They had been separated for from one to two and a half years.

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. James F. Coffey, 6428 N. Washtenaw av., Gerald Coffey, petty officer 2d class, recounted a meeting in the southwest Pacific with his brother, Marine Pvt. James F., after a separation of 27 months. Pvt. Coffey formerly was employed in the auditing department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Meet at Marine Base.

Gerald received a message that another ship was coming in close to where his was tied up, and the message was signed by his brother. Gerald obtained permission to go see James. The marine has been in service 27 months and overseas 20, and has been in a rest area since the battle of Tarawa. Gerald has been in the navy 15 months.

Ensign John A. Pullen, son of Paul P. Pullen of Evanston, landed on a small island which was serving as a marine base in the Pacific area while he was flying a reconnaissance mission. On his way to report to marine headquarters he passed a tent on which was the sign, "1st Lt. P. P. Pullen," and sitting under the sign was his brother, who had enlisted as a marine private in December, 1941, and whom he had not seen for two and a half years.

He "Sweat Out" Brother's Mission.

Sgt. Peter De Wolf, 22, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank De Wolf of Evanston, is a radio operator-gunner on a Flying Fortress in England. Returning recently from a mission over Germany he was met as he climbed out of the plane by his brother, Joe P., 23, a technician 5th grade, whom he had last seen more than a year before at home. For some time the two had been stationed only a few miles apart, but hadn't realized it.

When Joe arrived at his brother's bomber station on a pass and found Peter out on a combat flight, he said, "Now I know what the boys mean when they speak of 'sweating out' the ships. I did just that."

Chicagoan Describes Solomons Fun.

Lt. Frank Stone.

Lt. Frank L. Stone, 30, was home recently after 18 months in the South Pacific as special service officer with an engineering unit. His experience on that job, and as chaplain's assistant, enabled him to give a clear picture of what soldiers in the Solomons are doing for recreation.

One of their favorite pastimes, he said, is dynamite fishing. The soldiers climb the trees along the shore and from there toss dynamite into the water. Some of the men in his unit had a rubber boat which they paddled along the shore for fun.

Charge Scatters Boat.

"One day," he said, "a dynamite charge landed in the boat. The boys dived out of there in nothing flat. And there went our rubber boat."

Lt. Stone, a tall man with light brown hair which is beginning to turn gray, is a graduate of Lake View High school and of the University of Illinois. Before joining the army he had a civil service job. His wife and 2 year old daughter, Dorothy Lee, live at 1710 Juneway terr. His daughter was born while he was at sea.

Sports are well organized on the islands now, he said. Hard and soft ball fields were built recently. The soldiers also play volley ball, table tennis, and badminton. Some of the officers have duplicate bridge tournaments, and checkers and chess are popular.

Handcraft Popular.

Soldiers spend a lot of time doing handicraft work, he said.

"They collect shells, that's all the rage, and make necklaces out of them." They also do metal work.

Lt. Stone is the son of Dr. F. Lee Stone, 14 W. Elm st. A brother, Capt. Robert G., is now in Italy.

Bond Wardens Await Gun in 5th War Drive

More than 15,000 north side volunteer bond wardens will go into action tomorrow at the opening of the 5th war loan drive, set to meet the quota of $50,843,833 in OCD division 6.

Among the new features of this drive, said Lee Ross, division director, has been an appeal to north side civic and service organizations for volunteer workers to aid in selling bonds.

It is expected that 5,000 to 7,000 volunteers will augment the work of the 10,000 OCD bond wardens. The organizations include the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boy Scouts, Lions clubs, Kiwanis clubs, business men's associations, improvement clubs, and churches.

The quota of more than 50 million dollars represents approximately $80 for each of the 624,000 persons in the division, according to the 1940 census. Quotas have been set for each of the 19 OCD communities, and these have been broken down into sales goals for each block.

Posters to Show Progress.

Another part of this drive will be poster thermometers in each block to show the percentage of the block quota already sold. This is expected to produce a competitive spirit among the 2,406 blocks, said W. R. Davis, division chairman of the drive.

The campaign will be conducted on a house to house and store to store basis by the OCD wardens, Mr. Ross said. They also will canvass industries and institutions employing 100 persons or less, except where the pay roll savings is in effect. Larger organizations, as well as many hotels and apartment buildings, will be covered by other divisions of the campaign organization.

So that each block thermometer will give an accurate register of subscriptions, bond wardens will be supplied with credit slips to record the number of bonds purchased from these sources in the drive by block residents. The warden thus will receive credit for making the call, and the amount of the bonds will be added to the block's total.

Hold Meetings for Wardens.

Bond chairmen in each community are holding a series of meetings to instruct their wardens in proper solicitation procedure. Community chairmen are Clarence McCarthy, near north side; Percy Baines, Lincoln park; George B. Jengel, Lincoln-Fullerton; Mrs. Ruth Saterlee, Clark-Diversey; Robert Himmel, East Lakeview; Francis McArthur, West Lakeview; George Channer, Sheridan Center; Harold Hayward, Ravenswood; Mordecai Rosenberg, North Center; William Schachtel, Central Uptown.

Walter A. Grau, Uptown-Clark; Dominic C. Cronin, Lincoln square; Clyde H. Bailey, Edgewater; Lawrence Jacobson, Northtown; A. L. Johnson, Devon-Sheridan; Appellate Court Judge Joseph Burke, Clark-Devon; Roy R. Fierst, Rogers Park-Clark st.; Harold Volkert, Indian Boundary, and George B. Deacon, Howard business district.

A citizens' committee which will serve in an advisory capacity during the drive includes Whitney Wahl, James J. Kingham, the Rev. Adolph Bohn, Marion Isbell, Lt. Col. Harry A. Cotter, Dave Wolf, Louis Sudler, E. C. Burmeister, and Frank M. Murchison.

Preceding the opening of the drive, a bond rally will be held this afternoon in Lincoln park at the foot of Wilson av.

Legion to Post Colors.

The program at the rally will open with the posting of colors by the American Legion and the playing of the national anthem by the Lane High school band. Ald. Theron W. Merryman [45th] will speak, after which the Lincoln-Fullerton OCD drum and bugle corps will play. A pageant will show the history of the flag. Reinhold Schmidt will sing "America, My Own," by Noble Cain. Mayor Kelly and a representative of the treasury department will speak.

Wilmette will stage a home town rally Wednesday night in the Michigan Shores club and in Wasington park in connection with the bond drive. Don McNeill will act as master of ceremonies for a program in which the Great Lakes choir, the Glenview Wildcats, a band, the Evanston drum and bugle corps, the marine corps women's reserve color guard, and color guards of local American Legion posts will take part. Chairman of the Wilmette drive is S. L. Davis.

THREE EVANSTON CADETS RECEIVE TRIBUNE MEDALS

In a ceremony witnessed by more than 1,000 spectators in the school auditorium three members of Evanston Township High school's military training corp recently received Tribune R. O. T. C. awards.

Alfred Perry, a senior, received a Tribune gold medal. Amos Mathews, a junior, and Allen Meyer, a sophomore, were awarded Tribune silver medals. Mathews was named cadet colonel for the coming year.

The saber award presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution went to Stephen Jones Jr., son of Maj. Paul Jones, former commander of the regiment, who is now with the army in the South Pacific. Speakers at the presentation were Francis L. Bacon, principal, and V. R. Lewis, commandant instructor of the regiment.

6 NORTH SIDERS CHOOSE VARIED CAREER FIELDS

Girl Intends to Be a Missionary.

Six representative young Americans, the outstanding graduates of north side high schools, have been interviewed by the Metropolitan section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Elected by their classmates from a faculty nominated list of 10 seniors from each school, they told of what they had done and of what they plan to do.

Three of the six are class presidents and the others have taken an active part in school affairs. The five boys, in talking of careers after the war, disclosed varied ambitions which include becoming a diplomat, commercial artist, engineer, lawyer, or undertaker.

The girl who was chosen outstanding senior intends to be a missionary.

AMUNDSEN

Amundsen High school elected Marcus Kulyan, 17, as its outstanding graduate. He is a handsome, dark haired boy of Serbian descent whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milan Kulyan, live at 4938 N. Wolcott st. Marcus is senior president, a member of the National Honor society, ranks fifth in his class, has been on the wrestling and soccer teams, plays football, belongs to the student council and sings bass in the special chorus. He represented Amundsen in a mathematics contest at Wright Junior college and formerly played a violin in the school orchestra.

"Isn't that enough," he asked. "I'd rather talk about the school and if I boast you'll have to forgive me. I'm quite proud of Amundsen." He told about its scrap paper collections and about winning the north sectional tournaments in football and basketball. "The reason we like to gloat over this is because our school is small. We kid the fellows from bigger schools."

Since he was 13 he has worked on farms in the summer, and a couple of years ago he bicycled to Ohio for summer farm work. He has won a scholarship that would have sent him to Northwestern university to study engineering, but he is in the navy's V-12 program and expects to be called July 1. In the navy he would like to be an engineer specialist.

WALLER

Hazelyn Melconian, Waller High school's outstanding senior, wants to be a missionary. "I decided when I was very young," she said. "I want to give other people some of the things I had because I've been happy with them." She has been at Waller only a year. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vartan Melconian, 845 Chalmers pl., moved here from New York. Her father teaches at the Presbyterian college of Christian Education, 832 Belden av. Hazelyn has been interested in Africa as a possible field for missionary work, "but I wish to do a lot of reading on it first," she said.

Right now she is busy preparing her speech for graduation. Its title is: "The Practicality of a Living Faith." In her year at Waller, Hazelyn was chairman of the parent social committee and a member of the French club, and was fifth highest scholastically in her class. In the fall she will go to the College of Wooster, Wooster, O., on a scholarship, and after that she'll attend a seminary and take some nursing.

"I love to read and I like to write," she said. "Essays mostly, on serious things, religion, post-war peace, and then religious or nature poetry." Her other after-school preoccupations are sports and playing the piano.

SULLIVAN

A scholarship has been awarded to James Kogen of Sullivan High school, where he ranked third in a class of 300.

President of his class, he has been active in the Travel club and civic forum, a delegate to the youth conference, vocational conference and the Civic league luncheon. He is also a member of the tennis team and won his athletic letter.

James is a V-12 candidate, and he hopes to get in a semester of technical training before reporting for service. He plans to become a mechanical engineer after the war with specialization in electronics or television.

For relaxation he swims, plays tennis, acts as scoutmaster for the Temple Mizpah Boy Scouts and reads adventure and travel books. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kogen, 1215 Lunt av.

LAKE VIEW

Richard Banner of Lake View High school wants to join the marine corps because "they go in and get things done." Besides, he has a brother, Tom, already in that branch of the service and another brother, Wayne, in the navy. He has passed the candidate's test for V-5 air training—"but there's something about the marines—."

SEVENTH GRADE LEADS SCHOOL IN PAPER CAMPAIGN

Immaculate Conception Tops N. Side Catholics.

Seventh graders at Immaculate Conception school, 1431 North Park av., walked off with all the honors in the recent five week contest for $1,000 in prizes donated by the Chicago waste paper campaign committee. According to figures released by Msgr. Daniel F. Cunningham, superintendent of Catholic schools, Immaculate Conception placed fourth among parochial elementary school winners with its total of 32,485 pounds of waste paper or 91.51 pounds per pupil.

In the interclass competition, the seventh grade held first place for collections thruout the contest period. Individual leaders from the class were Frank Neste, Emmett O'Donnell, Helen Bielski, and Gertrude Coyne. These four said they do most of their waste paper "business" along Lake Shore dr.

Has Regular Route.

"I walk up and down Lake Shore dr. every week collecting paper, so by now I have a regular route of buildings where people save their waste for me," said Frank, 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Neste, 1358 North Park av. Born in Pisa, Italy, Frank came to the United States with his family when he was 3 years old.

"As long as I can't be over there fighting with my brothers," Frank added, "at least I can help on this side." Two of his brothers are overseas. They are Serjio, 19, who is an aviation machinist's mate aboard an aircraft carrier; and Corp. Leo, 26, who is stationed in England. Active in a number of class activities, Frank is also an OCD junior messenger. He is assistant patrol leader for his Boy Scout troop.

Twelve year old Emmett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell, 1548 N. Wells st., collected 700 pounds. He gathers a large part of his weekly waste paper contribution at the war plant where his father works. Selected by his classmates as "the most faithful" waste paper collector, Emmett is a traffic patrolman for the school and quartermaster of his Boy Scout troop. Altho none of his family is in service, Emmett said he has "all kinds of relatives in the army and navy."

Girls Work Together.

Leading girl collector at Immaculate Conception was Helen Bielski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Bielski, 211 Eugenie st., who is secretary of her seventh grade class. Sports being "the thing she likes best," Helen is captain of the girls' baseball team. She gathers her stacks of waste paper by door to door soliciting on Lake Shore dr. Usually she is accompanied by several other girls, and sometimes the boys in her class offer to help carry the "real big loads" back home, she said.

A petite 12 year old, Gertrude Coyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Coyne, 1707 Sedgwick st., also consistently brings in large bundles of waste paper for the seventh grade's collection. Gertrude says she "has been lucky" in finding mostly cardboard and magazines for her scrap paper bundles.

"They weigh more than other kinds of waste paper," this youngster explained, "so that helps raise the total of pounds for our class."

Field Teachers.

The annual teachers' luncheon of the Field school will be held Thursday in the home of Mrs. Max Simon, 1229 Farwell av.

CITY-WIDE HIGH SENIOR STARS PLAN CAREERS

Four Class Choices Tell Their Ambitions.

Looking forward to the post-war world. outstanding seniors from four city-wide high schools are making plans to fit themselves for positions in teaching, radio, accounting, and writing, they told the Metropolitan Section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in interviews last week.

The students, who were selected the outstanding seniors by their classmates from a list of 10 nominated by the faculty at each school, are as follows:

JONES COMMERCIAL

"I don't know if my theory is right, but I figure Europe is going to need a lot of builder-uppers after the war and if accounting could help I'd like to be there." In this way Joseph Dybal, 18, who is in the army air corps enlisted reserve, is planning to continue in his field after the war. He wants to become a certified public accountant. Right now he has a three months deferment from the army which will be up on his graduation day.

As the outstanding student at Jones Commercial High school, Joseph has been school mayor, class president, fire marshal, social committee chairman, associate editor of the school paper, and a member of the Honor society. He sings in the chorus and had the lead in a minstrel show. He would have liked to have had more time for sports, but as it was he managed to play basketball.

For hobbies, in addition to sports, he collects stamps and builds model planes, and he likes to dance. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dybal, 1740 Beach av.

LUTHER INSTITUTE

Melvin Hecht, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hecht, 2824 S. Keeler av., said his ambition to be a teacher of history and social sciences was motivated by the fact that "there is always a need for education, but this will be especially true after the war. Ignorance causes war, so in order to keep from having another war, there must be a great deal of education."

Melvin expects to begin his teacher's course next fall at Valparaiso university, Ind. At Luther institute he has been president of the student council, class president, manager of the baseball team, and sports editor of the school paper.

Moving pictures and sports, especially fishing, are Melvin's hobbies and he spends a good deal of time in church activities. He is business manager of the church paper.

SPALDING

Shirley Hausburg, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones, 3702 N. Lawndale av., expects to enter the Northwestern university school of speech next fall, the first step toward attaining her ambition to do radio work.

Shirley is a member of the Movie club, vice president of the senior class, and has been active in the school assemblies as an announcer.

Her hobby is an unusual one, as she makes odd pins and necklaces from toothpicks, cereals, buttons, and candles. Another hobby is drawing cartoons, especially in letters to service men who, she says, find them amusing and thus look forward to her letters.

FLOWER TECHNICAL

Lila Schwatlo, 18, the outstanding senior at Flower Technical High school, works as a long distance telephone operator in her spare time. However, her ambition is to write, so she will prepare herself by attending the Northwestern university Medill school of journalism next fall.

Lila, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwatlo, 5049 W. Waveland av., has been a reporter, assistant editor, and editor of the school paper, class president, a member of the National Honor society, treasurer of the Photographic club, and winner of the American Legion award.

Writing, sports, and drawing are her hobbies. She has represented her school at the reading conference and the Scholastic Press guild conference at Northwestern university.

DE PAUL OFFERS OPPORTUNITY TO WORK IN POLAND

High school graduates interested in training for post-war rehabilitation work and who will promise to go to Poland after the war may receive scholarships to De Paul university, the Rev. Edward J. Kammer, dean of the college of liberal arts, announced last week. Scholarship expenses are being assumed by the league for religious assistance to Poland.

Training will be centered around five courses recommended by the Illinois Welfare association for pre-professional training in social work, and will include subjects necessary for A. B. degree. Courses in Polish language and Polish culture will be required.

Father Kammer said the number of scholarships available are unlimited. The league prefers that volunteers be recent high school graduates, but no age limit has been set. Applications for scholarships should be addressed to Vladimir Sklodowski, chairman of the department of Polish, or to the Rev. Edward J. Kammer.

SENN

A career in international law and a place in the diplomatic corps is the ambition of John William Carlson of Senn High school. He has an above 90 average for his four years of high school. As marshal of the student council, he has had some training in diplomacy in trying and hearing student behavior cases. He will be 18 next March.

He is the winner of the Harvard University Men's club book award as the outstanding graduate of his class. He also received the R. O. T. C. band officers' efficiency award, and has two major letters for skating and two minor letters for football. Active in student organizations, he is a member of the R. O. T. C. officers' club, the Green and White, the Letter Men's, Dramatic, and Sports clubs. He also plays saxophone in the school band.

John has been accepted by the navy for the V-12 program. Until he is old enough for the navy he wants to get all the education he can. Therefore, he will enter the University of Illinois this summer. Later he hopes to have a few weeks of fishing and swimming up in the north woods. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Carlson, 6129 Legett av.

LANE TECHNICAL

His long slender fingered hands relaxed in his lap, Patrick Bowers of Lane Technical High school told of painting a mural, 20 feet by 4 feet, which will be hung in the Lane study hall. It depicts the vegetation and plant life of the various sections of the country, and will be used for reference by botany students.

Aside from his interest in art, which he hopes to make his profession after the war, Patrick has won seven letters in athletics. He took first place in city trials in cross-country running this year, and is captain of the senior track team and the cross-country track team. His second choice of a profession is to become a physical education instructor.

With an average of 95 for the four year course, he has served as president of the Social Science club and is a member of the Pan-American and mural clubs. He hopes to enter the University of Michigan after the war. Meanwhile, he's making a decision as to the branch of the service he wants to enter. Patrick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowers, 2141 Sedgwick st.

OVERSEAS VETS LAUNCH NEW DAY AT FT. SHERIDAN

Furloughs for Fighters Start at Station.

One of the busiest sections of Fort Sheridan is receiving station No. 7, converted from a barracks to an office. There each week hundreds of soldiers who have returned to this country from all theaters of war under the army's rotational program are put thru the mechanics of getting home for furloughs.

Capt. J. R. Driver has been ground forces liaison officer at the station since November. He is a dark haired, heavy set man, a graduate of Michigan State college in Lansing where he majored in personnel administration.

On a recent morning, when the station was crowded with soldiers back from the 5th army in Italy, Capt. Driver explained what is done for the men while they are at the post. "We don't care if their records are in shape," he said. "What we try to do is get them home as soon as possible. Usually they're on their way in 24 hours."

Buy Cap First.

In that time the returned soldiers have 21 day furloughs arranged for them, they are paid, authorized to buy campaign ribbons and issued clothing if they need it, for men who have come straight from combat areas often are not wearing what is considered orthodox army dress for this country. "The first thing they want to buy is a garrison cap," Capt. Driver said. "They can't get those overseas." Garrison caps are caps with a brim.

For awhile Fort Sheridan also served as a reassignment center. Now, however, after their furloughs, men in the ground forces go to Camp Butner, N. C., for reassignment.

Soldiers overseas are eligible to come home after 18 months of combat or 24 months of noncombat duty. While still abroad they select one of 14 reception centers handling rotation which is nearest to where they want to spend their furloughs. Fort Sheridan takes care of soldiers from Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, and Iowa.

Clear 434 in 18 Hours.

"Once in a while," Capt. Driver said, "we get one from Kansas. But that's the man's own loss. He has to travel that much farther to get home. Most of them don't know a thing about rationing, a lot have never had a furlough." They are urged, of course, to talk only of their own experiences and not about troop dispositions or types of planes.

The 450 soldiers from Italy who were at the station that day had arrived at 2 a. m. By 8 o'clock at night all but 16 were on their way, and those were sent out the next morning. Occasionally, if their baggage is held up, they are at the fort longer than 24 hours, but they have the option of going on without baggage.

Not long ago Capt. Driver spoke about the program and his work at a meeting of Highland Park USO volunteers. He was asked how people at USO's should act toward returned soldiers. "Let the men do the talking," he told his audience. "Don't try to pump them about what they have done. Some of them want to talk about it, half of them don't. Let them choose. Their first need is a rest."

Evanston Teachers' Club Chooses New Officers

Leonard B. Parsons, member of the faculty of Evanston High school, was elected president of the Evanston Teachers' club recently. He succeeds Michael J. Ryan, now president of the Lake Shore division of the Illinois Education association. Miss Margaret Chew, Mrs. June Marquette, and Miss Lucille Barth also were named officers of the Teachers' club.

4 N. SIDE 16 YEAR OLDS GO TO SEA AS APPRENTICES

Youths First to Join Training Course.

Four north side boys were among the first group of 16 year olds to go from Chicago recently to Catalina Island, Cal., for merchant seaman training under the new age limit of the maritime service.

The boys were Harold R. Pillar, 2240 Berteau av.; Robert L. Moon, 6581 Lakewood av.; Albert H. Woodward, 3348 N. Sheffield av., and Robert M. Sherman, 6754 N. Clark st.

Six Weeks' Training.

Under these new orders, the maritime service accepts boys 16 to 17½ who have their parents' consent. Before they are assigned to a merchant ship for sea duty they have six weeks of boot training, three to seven months work at a training station with the pay of an apprentice seaman, and courses at a specialized school.

At the specialized school they may train as deck or engine seamen, radio operators, cooks and bakers, assistant purser-hospital corpsmen, or messmen.

Can Qualify for Promotion.

After three months sea duty they are qualified for "upgrading" or advancement at another maritime service school. Fourteen months at sea qualifies them for the service's officer training school.

The maritime service's regional enrolling office is at 844 Rush st.

Love Songs Scheduled on Music and Song Hour

Love songs will highlight the broadcast of the American Home Hour of Music and Song, with Attilio Baggiore, over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 tomorrow night. This is a new time for this program. Baggiore will sing "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "My Dream Girl," and Brahms' "Lullaby." He will also sing "None But the Lonely Heart," with the orchestra also featured. The orchestra also will play "The Chocolate Soldier Overture," Strauss' "Emperor Waltz" and several other selections.

W-G-N TO TEST WIRE RECORDER AT CONVENTIONS

Seek to Find Its Value in Broadcasting.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Extensive tests of the magnetic wire recorder to ascertain its potentialities in commercial broadcasting will be conducted by W-G-N in coöperation with the General Electric company during the national political conventions in Chicago. This device, perfected by Marvin Camras, 27 year old physicist at the Armour Research Foundation, records sound on steel wire almost as thin as a human hair.

Recently military authorities permitted the disclosure that the machine, manufactured by General Electric under license from Armour, is in use over Europe recording the gunfire and the words spoken by bombing crews during operations.

Four of the machines will be made available to W-G-N by General Electric for use during the conventions, George W. Lang, chief engineer of the station, announced. Recordings of every newsworthy broadcast by W-G-N and Mutual during the Republican convention, starting June 26, are to be made, and again during the Democratic convention, starting July 19, if materials for the experiment are then available.

Thru the tests W-G-N, Mutual, and the electric company expect to learn much about the recorder's adaptability and serviceability to standard broadcasting technique. Engineers hope to determine whether any improvements in design or operation can be recommended.

The wire recorder is a compact machine, not much bigger than a portable typewriter. A half pound of wire measuring 11,700 feet [approximately two miles] is wound on spools about four inches in diameter and a little over an inch wide. An hour of sound can be recorded on each spool. As soon as a recording has been made it can be played back without any processing, or the sound can be instantly erased and the wire used over and over again. The recorder provides good fidelity without elaborate precautions.

U. OF C. AWARDS 2 SCHOLARSHIPS TO NORTH SIDERS

Two north side students, Joseph Louis Davis, 5452 N. Whipple av., and Michael James Rich, Evanston, were among the 116 students awarded scholarships to the University of Chicago.

Rich, a sophomore at New Trier High school, Winnetka, received a four year scholarship valued at $1,200 and Davis, completing his senior year at Roosevelt High school, a year's scholarship of $300. The awards were based on aptitude tests.

EVANSTON HOPES TO BUILD DODGE AV. THOROFARE

Plan Heavy Travel Route After War.

A resolution recommending establishment of a heavy traffic route along Dodge av. in Evanston recently was submitted to the Cook county commissioners by the North Shore Area council of the Chicago Motor club.

The plan would involve the widening and paving of Dodge av., which is a continuation of California av. in Chicago, with a grade separation at the North Western railroad intersection. A bridge over the sanitary canal would complete the highway construction.

Form Connecting Link.

There is now no established north and south highway in Evanston. The new route would provide an outlet for heavy traffic and would form a connection between Western av. and Lincoln av. in Chicago to Green Bay rd. in the suburb.

The Evanston city council has recommended by resolution the project as a post-war activity and the North Shore Area council has added its petition, both of which will be considered by the county board at its next meeting.

RELIGIOUS HOME GIVES SURCEASE TO MISSIONARIES

Men of God Come from Many Nations.

For 25 years missionaries from all over the world have stayed, when they are in Chicago, at the Missionary Rest home, 1848 Berenice av.

Altho it is supported by the Assemblies of God church, whose headquarters are in Springfield, Mo., it is open to missionaries of all churches.

One hundred or more missionaries have stayed there, for varying lengths of time, during the preceding year. Some stay for a night, some for nine months while their children go to school, and some for two or three years.

In Charge 14 Years.

A sample of the kind of group usually to be found there is the one in residence now. The missionaries have come from India, Nigeria in West Africa, Borneo, and Hawaii.

Mrs. Effie Spencer, who has been in charge for 14 years, sees to it that the families learn their way around the city. When they have gone she forwards their mail to China, India, or other parts of the world.

Food is one of the problems at the home. The missionaries often begin to long for meals that are typical of the countries where they have been. Mrs. Spencer solves this by serving American versions of the dishes. She'll have chili con carne for the South American missionaries and curried lamb for those from India.

Home Nicely Furnished.

Many of the missionaries and their wives whom Mrs. Spencer has known are interned now in the Philippines, Japan, and China. One family was torpedoed on its way to Africa, rescued and returned to this country.

The home, which looks no different from other frame houses on the street, is furnished comfortably. There is room for 24 people. On top of the piano in the living room are photographs of many of the families which have stayed there.

"While they're here we try to make them feel that this is their home," Mrs. Spencer said.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 12

Now is the time when vegetables and all other vegetation must be given the best of care. Water when the soil is dry. Soils containing an abundance of humus need water at about one week intervals. If the soil is quite sandy, watering must be done at more frequent intervals.

Syringing is beneficial when the air is dust-laden and it should be done in the morning to enable the foliage to dry off by night. Plants that are likely to fall over should be securely tied in place, but this should be done carefully; don't tie the stems too tightly.

Tuesday, June 13

Never neglect cultivation, even tho there appears to be a trend to grow plants without excessive cultivation. Cultivate to kill the weeds and, in addition, to stir the soil. Do a little experimenting by cultivating a small plot consistently and allowing a second small plot to go without cultivation except to kill the weeds. Note any difference that may result.

If cracks appear in the ground on the uncultivated plot it is because of a lack of humus, which is moisture-holding. If the soil cakes and packs hard, add humus, preferably in the fall. Try sowing a flat of seeds in which a goodly amount of peat has been incorporated and use common soil taken from a garden.

Wednesday, June 14

House plants should be flourishing now, especially if they have been placed outdoors; some will be in partial shade, while most of the flowering kinds will be in full sun. Care as to watering must be constant.

If the amaryllis failed to flower in the spring, give each plant an application of fertilizer and water. These plants grow during summer and rest during winter. If the plants are not doing well, knock them out of the pots and plant in a sunny spot in the garden. Water and apply plant food at intervals, but be sparing with the plant food applications.

Thursday, June 15

If the philodendron is doing poorly, has small leaves, and is spindly, it is, no doubt, because the room is too dry and hot. Do not overfeed it or any other plant. It wants plenty of light, but not direct sunlight. Cut it back to force new growth.

If it is growing in water, place a piece of charcoal in the water to keep it sweet, and when the water evaporates, simply add more. Use a light soil consisting of half peat and soil, with a little sand. Peat is very moisture-holding and hence watering should be carefully done.

Friday, June 16

The English ivy is another fine, viney plant for the home. It does best in a light, cool place, away from direct sun and hot radiators. Syringe at least once a week to keep it free from dust and insects. Apply food about once a month. A complete fertilizer is best.

Another good fern is the holly fern. It should be plunged outdoors in a shady spot during summer.

Saturday, June 17

Watering during summer may be done during the day if it is a thoro job. Light sprinkling does little or no good. The best method is to remove the nozzle and let the water run on a board between the rows.

JUNE IS A GOOD MONTH TO PAINT HOUSE EXTERIOR

Materials Are Available for Refinishing.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Here are some timely hints for June on the care and upkeep of your home:

All manner of refinishing materials are available for practically every surface inside and outside the home. Some materials have gone to war, but if they have, substitutes have appeared to take their place.

If you are planning to paint your house exterior, this is an excellent month to do it. If your painted house exterior is dirty but in no need of painting, this is a good month to give it a soap and water bath to remove soot and soil. Follow such bath by a thoro rinsing. Start at the bottom and go up rather than the reverse. A good tool is a stiff scrubbing brush on a long handle.

How to Remove Old Finishes.

If you want to remove an old waxed finish inside the home there are commercial wax removers available, or you can sponge waxed surface well with turpentine. After this, wash with a solution of one rounded tablespoon of washing soda to two quarts of warm water. Dry well and then use a No. 0 sandpaper to smooth, rubbing with the grain.

If, on looking around your house exterior you find on a concrete or stucco wall greenish bronze and copper stains from leaders, gutters, flashings, and screening, you can remove these by dissolving sal ammoniac in household ammonia and applying with a brush. In a few minutes flush well with cold water.

Remove Copper Stains.

If you find stain from copper drip on the painted wall of your house you can remove it by washing with a mixture of a cup of ammonia in 2 quarts of water, or you can take ¼ cup trisodium phosphate [or commercial product of a similar nature which you can get at your grocery] to a quart of water. Don't let either mixture remain on paint as either can soften it. Rinse immediately with cold water. A paint which contains zinc rather than straight lead is much harder to clear of these stains.

There are commercial bleaches and stains available if you wish to change the color of any woodwork or floor in the home. Where a room is small, and you cannot increase its actual size, it is possible to make it look larger if you finish the baseboard in the exact color of the floor. This can be done by bleaching, staining, or painting, according to the wood and the previous treatment it has been given. Experts claim that the apparent size of a room can be increased by seven or eight inches all around by blending baseboard and floor together.

SENIORS PLAN CAREERS DESPITE WAR

OCD TO COVER SOUTH SIDE IN 5TH LOAN DRIVE

4 Week Canvass to Open Tomorrow.

Preparations are complete for the opening of the 5th war loan drive tomorrow. Division leaders, zone and block captains, and bond wardens for the three divisions on the south side are prepared to launch the house to house canvass to be conducted jointly by the office of civilian defense and the war finance house to house division for Chicago and Cook county.

A quota of $90,907,437 has been established as the goal for the south side. The near south side, division 1, has a quote of $29,983,300. Clarence Poffenberger is chief of the division, and Byron Mingus its director.

In division 2, the far south side, James H. Gately, chief, and Forrest Lull, commander, aim at a sale of $32,939,284. In division 3, the southwest side, Frank C. Rathje, chief, and Robert P. Bantz, director, will strive to sell $27,984,853 in bonds.

County Goal 894 Million.

Each OCD division is subdivided into communities, they into zones, and those in turn into blocks. Purchases within each block will be indicated daily on a red, white, and blue block thermometer so that captains, wardens, and residents may note progress.

The Chicago and Cook county quota of $894,014,000 is the largest ever assigned this area. Of the total $277,439,000 is for sale to individuals and the balance of $616,575,000 is to be marketed to corporations.

To meet this challenge Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee for the 5th war loan drive, has organized more than 16,000 "block-busters," who, between June 12 and July 8, will canvass every home in Chicago.

Rathje Directs Salesmen.

Ten thousand picked members of the OCD will form the core of the army of block-busters under the direction of Frank C. Rathje, vice-chairman of the drive and president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company.

An appeal is also being made to all civic and service organizations including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Scouts, Lions, Kiwanis, business men's associations, clubs, and churches for further volunteer salesmen. This appeal is expected to develop an additional 5,000 to 7,000 volunteers.

The OCD has complete charge of the house to house and store to store canvass, as well as that in industries and institutions employing 100 or less persons, except where a pay roll savings plan is in effect. Large institutions, industries, hotels, and apartment buildings will be covered by other divisions of the campaign organization.

Set Block Quotas.

Every city block has been assigned a quota based on the population and the earning capacity and financial status of its residents.

Chairman of the various south communities are holding meetings to instruct captains and wardens in proper solicitation procedure. Series E, F, and G bonds will be sold in the canvass.

Red, white, and blue credit slips will be supplied to bond wardens for the purpose of securing information from persons who have already purchased bonds, the amount they have purchased, and from whom. This plan will give the bond warden credit for having called on the subscriber. Also it will provide a true picture of total block subscriptions for recording on the block thermometer.

Break Down Divisions.

Division 1 includes the Near South South Side, Chinatown, Armour Square, Pekin, Douglas, Oakland, Kenwood, Washington Park, Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Park Manor, and Jackson Park.

Division 2 is made up of the following communities: South Shore, Grand Crossing, Chatham, Chesterfield, Avalon Park, Stony Island Park, South Chicago, Russell Square, Calumet Heights, South Deering, East Side, Hegewisch, Riverside, West Pullman, Pullman, Roseland, Gresham, Auburn Park, Brainard, Beverly, Washington Heights, Fernwood, Ada, Morgan Park, and Mount Greenwood.

Division 3 consists of Bridgeport, McKinley Park, Fuller Park, Stock Yards, Town of Lake, Brighton Park, Archer Heights, Garfield Ridge, Clearing, West Elsdon, West Lawn, Gage Park, Chicago Lawn, Marquette Park, Garfield Damen, Ogden Hill, Sherman Park, Lake Town, Englewood, and Ashburn.

Meat Packers Give $10,000 to Negro Education Fund

Gifts of $5,000 each from Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. have given impetus to the United Negro College fund campaign and the Chicago committee stated it believes the quota of $250,000 will be reached. The national campaign, headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Walter Hoving, has a goal of $1,500,000. Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of Northwestern university, is chairman of the Chicago area committee.

LIFE'S A ROUND OF BERRIES TO A PRODUCE MAN

Frenzied Activity Is 'Dizzy,' He Avers.

BY PHYLLIS FORD.

"Sweetheart, what do you think of the berry market?" asks Salvador Capodice of his 10 year old daughter, Dorothy Ann. "If the weather's good and the market's hot, daddy, hold out for the top," she'll say, repeating an often heard business axiom.

Sal is a stocky, jovial Italian who works as a salesman at South Water market, Chicago's large produce selling center on the near west side. He calls himself a "strawberry man" and figures that in his 14 years at the market he has handled as many strawberries as any man in the country.

During the berry seasons, when loads are coming in from Florida or Louisiana, he gets up between midnight and 4 a. m. and works till late in the evening. He opens 75 per cent of all crates himself to inspect them, which may mean from 86 to 736 a day. Such frenzied activity leaves him somewhat worn. "It's dizzy!" he says.

Here's His Sales Patter.

At the market, where he is employed by the Charles Abbate company, Sal carries on a sales talk that would confuse anyone not in the trade.

"Hey, Fred," he shouts to a man in a grocer's smock on the platform. "What about valves?" Or, after a heated exchange of words on "acorns, the car didn't make" he'll call, "Bill 'im one white there, three dollars."

"Valves" is a trade name for Valentine beans; "acorns" and "white" refer to squash, and "the car didn't make" means the shipment didn't arrive. Sal doesn't confine himself to selling strawberries. He handles all kinds of produce. The size of his orders varies from the needs of a pushcart peddler to hotel supply houses, called "dog houses," and chain stores. In the course of a day of active bargaining he uses four or five sales books.

"You have a feel within you as to market conditions," he says. "I come down in the morning and in three to five minutes I'll know the market. I walk around, size it up as to supplies. Weather has a lot to do with movement and prices. If it's rainy the market is slow. If it's sunny and supplies are light, a man has to use his own judgment as to what he can get for them. Before the ceilings came in people used to be like a wild man if the market was hot."

Makes Like the Romans.

"Salesmen got to be like the Romans," he said. "If the customer likes baseball, talk baseball with him. If he's a church man, talk religion. Same with politics. All in the business."

Sal says he's in a "highly speculative" field. His father started out as a vegetable peddler, and Sal began at 18 as a grocery clerk. He is 35 now and lives at 7340 Yates av.

"Just finished with the Louisiana berry deal," he said. "That runs about to June. I've found that things work in cycles. Housewives buy something one week; the next week it's dead."

"Hey, Sal," another salesman shouted. "Telephone!"

Sal rushed off, clutching his order book. He could be heard from the platform outside the warehouse. "Not bad. It's California stuff. No, we're tight. Yah, righto!"

Looking forward to the post-war world, outstanding seniors from four city-wide high schools are making plans to fit themselves for positions in teaching, radio, accounting, and writing, they told the Metropolitan Section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in interviews last week.

The students, who were selected the outstanding seniors by their classmates from a list of 10 nominated by the faculty at each school, are as follows:

JONES COMMERCIAL

"I don't know if my theory is right, but I figure Europe is going to need a lot of builder-uppers after the war and if accounting could help I'd like to be there." In this way Joseph Dybal, 18, who is in the army air corps enlisted reserve, is planning to continue in his field after the war. He wants to become a certified public accountant. Right now he has a three months deferment from the army which will be up on his graduation day.

As the outstanding student at Jones Commercial High school, Joseph has been school mayor, class president, fire marshal, social committee chairman, associate editor of the school paper, and a member of the Honor society. He sings in the chorus and had the lead in a minstrel show. He would have liked to have had more time for sports, but as it was he managed to play basketball.

For hobbies, in addition to sports, he collects stamps and builds model planes, and he likes to dance. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dybal, 1740 Beach av.

LUTHER INSTITUTE

Melvin Hecht, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hecht, 2824 S. Keeler av., said his ambition to be a teacher of history and social sciences was motivated by the fact that "there is always a need for education, but this will be especially true after the war. Ignorance causes war, so in order to keep from having another war, there must be a great deal of education."

Melvin expects to begin his teacher's course next fall at Valparaiso university, Ind. At Luther Institute he has been president of the student council, class president, manager of the baseball team, and sports editor of the school paper.

Moving pictures and sports, especially fishing, are Melvin's hobbies and he spends a good deal of time in church activities. He is business manager of the church paper.

SPALDING

Shirley Hausburg, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones, 3702 N. Lawndale av., expects to enter the Northwestern university school of speech next fall, the first step toward attaining her ambition to do radio work.

Shirley is a member of the Movie club, vice president of the senior class, and has been active in the school assemblies as an announcer.

Her hobby is an unusual one, as she makes odd pins and necklaces from toothpicks, cereals, buttons, and candles. Another hobby is drawing cartoons, especially in letters to service men who, she says, find them amusing and thus look forward to her letters.

FLOWER TECHNICAL

Lila Schwatlo, 18, the outstanding senior at Flower Technical High school, works as a long distance telephone operator in her spare time. However, her ambition is to write, so she will prepare herself by attending the Northwestern university Medill school of journalism next fall.

Lila, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwatlo, 5049 W. Waveland av., has been a reporter, assistant editor, and editor of the school paper, class president, a member of the National Honor society, treasurer of the Photographic club, and winner of the American Legion award.

Writing, sports, and drawing are her hobbies. She has represented her school at the reading conference and the Scholastic Press guild conference at Northwestern university.

tee and a member of the basketball team, which won third place in the state tournament.

Paul expects to enter Northwestern university on June 26 and study aeronautical engineering until inducted into the military services. He wants to enter the army air forces. After the war he will continue his education with the hope of becoming a chemist.

His hobbies are all sports, "mainly basketball," and swing music. Altho his father is state representative [13th R.] and speaker of the house, he confesses he's not interested in politics.

Of his four brothers, two are in the army air forces, one is in the navy air corps, and the fourth is too young to have more than a desire to fly planes "like his big brothers."

HYDE PARK

Kendall Wherry, 18, chosen by students of Hyde Park High school, is a letter man, having been on the baseball, football, track, and soccer teams. He also worked in the book room.

Kendall will enter the navy shortly after graduation. His desire is to be a professional baseball player.

His hobby, like his ambition, is baseball. He plays with an amateur team in the Midwest league. Usually he is pitcher or outfielder.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wherry, 6703 Merrill av. His father is a civil engineer and a brother, Corp. Byron Jr., is in the army air forces.

TILDEN

Mowen already has much experience in his chosen field—physical education. He has been working as a swimming instructor at the Valentine Boys' club and approximately 100 youngsters a day are under his care at this post. At the club and school he has piled up an imposing athletic record. He was a member of the Valentine basketball team which won a Christmas tournament of all boys club teams in Chicago. In 1942 he won the junior 50 yard breast stroke swimming championship in competition with youths from all Chicago public high schools. In addition he belongs to 23 other school organizations including the Lettermens' club, public relations department, the Tilden Times staff, and is president of the senior class.

He expects to be called into service soon and hopes he will get in the navy.

CHICAGO VOCATIONAL

Norman De Haan, 16, 846 E. 88th st., is the outstanding student from the Chicago Vocational school, 8023 Normal av. The school was located at 87th st. and Anthony av., until the navy occupied it.

Norman is president of the senior class, stands third in scholastic rating, and is a member of the student council and the Draftsman's club. He will enter Illinois Institute of Technology next semester to prepare for a career as an architect.

After regular school hours Norman works at a flower shop and after that he attends night school, where he studies interior decorating two nights a week. "I come home from school, go to work, then go to night school," he explains.

ENGLEWOOD

Walter Hall, 17, 6509 St. Lawrence av., would like to start a neighborhood magazine directed to persons of his own age and "written for the most part by the people who would read it."

He is interested in the history and activities of his community—Englewood. He won first prize in a recent school literary contest with his poem, "I Am Englewood," and as a delegate from his school he discussed his commuity over the board of education radio station.

He has also written for the school magazine, Pen Trails. He was associate editor of the school newspaper, president of the Orators club, and played a leading role in the Orators club play. His favorite subject is public speaking and he believes it is important to learn to speak perfect English. After school he works in a photography studio to earn money so that some day he can start his magazine.

Hall passed the army specialized training test, but was over the age limit for that program and will soon register under the selective service law.

ARMOUR ENGINE LAB TESTS ARMY WAR EQUIPMENT

Technicians Can Create High Temperatures.

The Armour Research foundation's new engine laboratory at 3429 S. Federal st. has been dedicated and now is in operation.

Valued at $125,000, the laboratory is the second structure in the Illinois Institute of Technology's campus development program. Ludwig Mies Van der Rohe, head of the institute's department of architecture, designed the building.

The laboratory, which serves United States army ordnance ground forces, is used to test all lubricants for combat vehicles. Not only military forces, but also the major petroleum producers and chemical manufacturers make use of its facilities.

Twenty engines, diesel and gasoline, including both single and multiple cylinder types, are part of the equipment. They are installed on vibration-proof mountings devised by Norman C. Penfold, supervisor of engine research at the foundation, and Eduard V. Petry, associate engineer.

Several engines are located in rooms equipped so tests can be made under high temperatures. Desert conditions can be simulated easily, and according to Penfold, the highest possible temperature on earth can be created for testing purposes.

The foundation's metals and minerals research building, the first to rise in the campus development, was the only Chicago building to be selected as an outstanding example of recent American architecture.

Honor Teachers at U. of Chicago in Science Book

With the election of 11 more University of Chicago professors among the top 1,000 scientists listed in the seventh edition of "American Men of Science," the number of the university's scientists thus honored now totals 78.

Twelve university scientists were named in the 1938 poll, making the university that year second only to Harvard university. In the first poll held in 1906, 12 of the university's scientists were listed.

Dr. Oswald H. Robertson, professor of pathology and medicine and one of the 11 university professors honored, was the discoverer of triethylene glycol for killing airborne bacteria.

W-G-N TO TEST WIRE RECORDER AT CONVENTIONS

Seek to Find Its Value in Broadcasting.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Extensive tests of the magnetic wire recorder to ascertain its potentialities in commercial broadcasting will be conducted by W-G-N in coöperation with the General Electric company during the national political conventions in Chicago. This device, perfected by Marvin Camras, 27 year old physicist at the Armour Research Foundation, records sound on steel wire almost as thin as a human hair.

Recently military authorities permitted the disclosure that the machine, manufactured by General Electric under license from Armour, is in use over Europe recording the gunfire and the words spoken by bombing crews during operations.

Four of the machines will be made available to W-G-N by General Electric for use during the conventions, George W. Lang, chief engineer of the station, announced. Recordings of every newsworthy broadcast by W-G-N and Mutual during the Republican convention, starting June 26, are to be made, and again during the Democratic convention, starting July 19, if materials for the experiment are then available.

Thru the tests W-G-N, Mutual, and the electric company expect to learn much about the recorder's adaptability and serviceability to standard broadcasting technique. Engineers hope to determine whether any improvements in design or operation can be recommended.

The wire recorder is a compact machine, not much bigger than a portable typewriter. A half pound of wire measuring 11,700 feet [approximately two miles] is wound on spools about four inches in diameter and a little over an inch wide. An hour of sound can be recorded on each spool. As soon as a recording has been made it can be played back without any processing, or the sound can be instantly erased and the wire used over and over again. The recorder provides good fidelity without elaborate precautions.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 12

Now is the time when vegetables and all other vegetation must be given the best of care. Water when the soil is dry. Soils containing an abundance of humus need water at about one week intervals. If the soil is quite sandy, watering must be done at more frequent intervals.

Syringing is beneficial when the air is dust-laden and it should be done in the morning to enable the foliage to dry off by night. Plants that are likely to fall over should be securely tied in place, but this should be done carefully; don't tie the stems too tightly.

Use of a soft binding cord for best results; a piece of cloth also is good. But make the tie against the stake or support, leaving the stems free to grow.

Tuesday, June 13

Never neglect cultivation, even tho there appears to be a trend to grow plants without excessive cultivation. Cultivate to kill the weeds and, in addition, to stir the soil. Do a little experimenting by cultivating a small plot consistently and allowing a second small plot to go without cultivation except to kill the weeds. Note any difference that may result.

If cracks appear in the ground on the uncultivated plot it is because of a lack of humus, which is moisture-holding. If the soil cakes and packs hard, add humus, preferably in the fall. Try sowing a flat of seeds in which a goodly amount of peat has been incorporated and use common soil taken from a garden.

Sowing seeds during hot weather requires special attention; sow somewhat deeper than during early spring when the soil is moist. Press the soil around the seed and lay a board over the row, removing it when the seeds germinate or appear above ground. Hoe the ground along the sides of the rows as soon as possible without disturbing the young plants.

Wednesday, June 14

House plants should be flourishing now, especially if they have been placed outdoors; some will be in partial shade, while most of the flowering kinds will be in full sun. Care as to watering must be constant.

If the amaryllis failed to flower in the spring, give each plant an application of fertilizer and water. These plants grow during summer and rest during winter. If the plants are not doing well, knock them out of the pots and plant in a sunny spot in the garden. Water and apply plant food at intervals, but be sparing with the plant food applications.

Syringe these house plants each morning during nice weather; see that all rampant growths are kept in check. Buy a few 2¼ inch geraniums for indoor flowering next winter. Keep them growing and pinched to obtain many flowering branches. Do not feed geraniums to excess, and exercise care by not keeping the soil saturated. Keep on the dry side. If a plant has developed into an unwieldy specimen, discard it or propagate new plants. Overgrown plants take too much room and are out of place in the average room.

One of the interesting viney plants for the home is the hoya carnosa, or waxplant. It has thick, waxy leaves, and the flowers appear in small clusters, star-shaped. Plant in a soil mixture that contains plenty of humus and is well drained. Like many plants, it flowers best when root-bound. Apply water freely during spring, summer, and fall, but sparingly during winter.

Thursday, June 15

If the philodendron is doing poorly, has small leaves, and is spindly, it is, no doubt, because the room is too dry and hot. Do not overfeed it or any other plant. It wants plenty of light, but not direct sunlight. Cut it back to force new growth.

If it is growing in water, place a piece of charcoal in the water to keep it sweet, and when the water evaporates, simply add more. Use a light soil consisting of half peat and soil, with a little sand. Peat is very moisture-holding and hence watering should be carefully done.

A plant requiring similar care is called pothos and looks like the former, altho it usually has a variegation in the leaves. The grape ivy also is a fine house plant, but it should be given an application of plant food when it becomes root-bound. It likes some sun and warmth.

Friday, June 16

The English ivy is another fine, viney plant for the home. It does best in a light, cool place, away from direct sun and hot radiators. Syringe at least once a week to keep it free from dust and insects. Apply food about once a month. A complete fertilizer is best.

The Boston fern is one of the best all-round ferns for the house. It needs a good, well drained soil, good air, water, and subdued light. It often does poorly in the hot atmosphere of the average room. A temperature of about 55 degrees suits it admirably.

Saturday, June 17

Watering during summer may be done during the day if it is a thoro job. Light sprinkling does little or no good. The best method is to remove the nozzle and let the water run on a board between the rows.

To tell when the soil is dry and needs water, dig down five or six inches and if it is found to be dry, begin watering. Once a week should suffice.

If rabbits are pestering the garden, try a number of repellants, such as sprinkling the plants with red pepper, spraying with a solution of three ounces of Epsom salts to one gallon of water, use two teaspoons of Black Leaf 40 to one gallon of soapy water, scatter naphthalene flakes between the rows of plants.

SALUTE HONOR ROLL STUDENTS TODAY ON CITIZENS' PROGRAM

Forty-eight of the 67 members of the honor roll of the fifth series of Citizens of Tomorrow shows will contribute to the final broadcast of this youth show for this season over W-G-N at 1:30 p. m. today.

These boys and girls, all outstanding in scholastic and extracurricular accomplishments, came to Chicago as guests of W-G-N and the Chicago Tribune last Tuesday. After a busy day of entertainment they gathered in W-G-N's main studio for the recording of today's program. They will be heard in a fast moving pageant titled "The Parade of Ambition" in which each student will give his name and ambition in life. Philip Maxwell, conductor of the program, introduces the honor roll students.

Maureen Daly, conductor of the column On the Solid Side in THE TRIBUNE and an authority on the problems of youth, will be heard today on "Your Summer Vacation."

The W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will play a medley of war songs and a group of college tunes. The Austin High school mixed chorus will sing "The Ramparts We Watch" and "My Heart Tells Me."

Students of the Washburne Trade school and Jones Commercial school, educators and civic leaders were guests at the recording session.

ARMY MAN TOILS IN HOSPITAL LAB WEARING PISTOL

"All we need to make it a real drug store is a cosmetics department and a cash register."

Thus does Sgt. Henry C. Lacey, 6014 Harper av., describe the pharmacy and laboratory erected on the 5th army's Anzio beachhead by the Thunderbird division's medical clearing station.

"When we landed in Sicily," writes Sgt. Lacey, "just one chest of pharmaceutical supplies constituted our soap box pharmacy. But on our way thru Sicily and then southern Italy we collected enemy chemicals and equipment.

"We don't use the chemicals—they're inferior to ours. But we do use the bandages and equipment. When we landed at Anzio we even managed to corral two shiny Italian chiffoniers and a desk."

Capt. Joseph H. Doran of Iowa City, Ia., in charge of the pharmacy and laboratory, secured other supplies and laboratory equipment thru regular army channels.

"We keep two miscroscopes busy all the time," Sgt. Lacey reports, "examining malarial smears, blood counts, blood types, and other things. Our unit is in the hospital area which has been hit by shells and bombs. We even worked with holsters on."

Middle Age Amateurs.

Contestants more than 50 years old will compete on the WENR amateur hour at 12:30 p. m. today. Charles Lyon will be heard in his usual role as master of ceremonies.

JUNE IS A GOOD MONTH TO PAINT HOUSE EXTERIOR

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Here are some timely hints for June on the care and upkeep of your home:

All manner of refinishing materials are available for practically every surface inside and outside the home. Some materials have gone to war, but if they have, substitutes have appeared to take their place.

If you are planning to paint your house exterior, this is an excellent month to do it. If your painted house exterior is dirty but in no need of painting, this is a good month to give it a soap and water bath to remove soot and soil. Follow such bath by a thoro rinsing. Start at the bottom and go up rather than the reverse. A good tool is a stiff scrubbing brush on a long handle.

How to Remove Old Finishes.

If you want to remove an old waxed finish inside the home there are commercial wax removers available, or you can sponge waxed surface well with turpentine. After this, wash with a solution of one rounded tablespoon of washing soda to two quarts of warm water. Dry well and then use a No. 0 sandpaper to smooth, rubbing with the grain.

If, on looking around your house exterior you find on a concrete or stucco wall greenish bronze and copper stains from leaders, gutters, flashings, and screening, you can remove these by dissolving sal ammoniac in household ammonia and applying with a brush. In a few minutes flush well with cold water.

Remove Copper Stains.

If you find stain from copper drip on the painted wall of your house you can remove it by washing with a mixture of a cup of ammonia in 2 quarts of water, or you can take ¼ cup trisodium phosphate [or commercial product of a similar nature which you can get at your grocery] to a quart of water. Don't let either mixture remain on paint as either can soften it. Rinse immediately with cold water. A paint which contains zinc rather than straight lead is much harder to clear of these stains.

There are commercial bleaches and stains available if you wish to change the color of any woodwork or floor in the home. Where a room is small, and you cannot increase its actual size, it is possible to make it look larger if you finish the baseboard in the exact color of the floor. This can be done by bleaching, staining, or painting, according to the wood and the previous treatment it has been given. Experts claim that the apparent size of a room can be increased by seven or eight inches all around by blending baseboard and floor together. Then, to increase further apparent size of room, finish the remaining woodwork the same color as the walls.

2 SOUTH SIDERS COMPLETE 50TH MISSIONS IN AIR

Officers Stationed in the Mediterranean Area.

Philip Lifschitz.

Lt. Lifschitz, 24, bombardier, of 1655 E. 67th st., was a former photoengraver and a member of the 124th field artillery, Illinois national guard, before the war.

He became an aviation cadet in 1942. Upon leaving the United States, he was assigned to a heavy bombardment group which has flown over 250 missions against the enemy. He was on a mission on Nov. 10, 1943, when the group bombed the railroad yards at Bolzano, Italy. He holds the air medal with nine oak leaf clusters.

Lt. Plast, 20, a navigator, of 5494 University av., flew his 50th mission when his group attacked the railroad yards at Ancona, Italy.

He enlisted in the air forces on Jan. 6, 1943, and was assigned to the same bombardment group as Lt. Lifschitz. He went on his first mission on Jan. 10, 1944, over Sofia, Bulgaria.

Lt. Plast completed his 50 missions in 100 days, having flown over targets in Germany, Austria, Northern Italy, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, and Greece. He has been awarded the air medal and nine oak leaf clusters.

When asked which he thought was his most exciting mission, he said, "It was on Feb. 24, when we bombed the aircraft factory at Steyr, Austria. I saw more single and twin engined fighters than I had ever seen in all of my life and that included the times I went to the movies and saw some of those Hollywood dog-fights."

JAP FIRES GUN, AND YANK DOES PARACHUTE ACT

Hanging by his pack from the limb of a tree under Jap machine gun fire caused Pvt. Paul H. Morris, 5401 Ingleside av., to make a resolution never again to jump at a loud noise.

"I was the last man in a squad of infantry men toting supplies," related Pvt. Morris, "and when the Jap gun went off I jumped. My pack got caught in the branches of a tree and there I hung, my feet hardly touching the ground. The other boys kept going, not noticing my paratroop act. I could see bushes and grass being mowed down in front of me by the bullets and I just froze. I didn't even think of unbuckling the pack straps. I must have been there a couple of hours before an ammunition carrier came along and cut me loose. It seemed more like two years than two hours."

Pvt. Morris, who spent 16 months overseas with the infantry in the Pacific, recently told his story in an interview at Northington General hospital, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

SGT. J. H. NELSON NAMED SOLDIER OF WEEK IN IDAHO

Tech. Sgt. James H. Nelson, son of Mrs. L. H. Strohm, 8856 Dauphin av., recently was chosen soldier of the week at Gowen field, Idaho. He was presented an engraved identification bracelet at a formal review of troops.

James H. Nelson.

The award is based on soldierly appearance and knowledge of military courtesy and procedure. Sgt. Nelson was selected for this award in competition with representatives of other units on the base.

He has been in service since July 11, 1942, and is classified as an altitude chamber technician at the Idaho air base.

Merchant Seamen at 16

Recruiter Bob Nelson, United States marine service, reads orders to Gerald Wilson, 16, 6106 Ellis av., and John Karmas, 16, 2524 Wentworth av., at the maritime service office, 844 Rush st., to report to the Catalina Island, Cal., merchant seaman training station. They are among the first group of 16 year olds to report for maritime service training under the new minimum age limit.

RESCUES IN LANDING BRING A MEDAL TO SOUTHWEST SAILOR

For his heroic action during the advance landings in the Anzio-Nettuno area, Samuel F. Madia, fireman 1st class, has been awarded the navy and marine corps medal.

Samuel F. Madia.

A British ship, struck by a glider bomb, caught fire and capsized. Many survivors were forced to jump into the oil and debris covered water, some without life jackets. Rubber boats were launched to reach the survivors.

"With disregard for his own safety, Seaman Madia manned one of these boats and paddled thru the wreckage under the side of the capsizing ship to recover survivors. His extreme initiative and courageous action in the face of great danger contributed materially to the probable saving of many lives," the citation stated.

Madia is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Madia, 351 W. 30th st., and has been in the service two years and has a brother, Peter, who has been in the army for 17 months.

2 SOUTH SIDERS JOIN I BOMBED JAPAN AVIATORS

The I Bombed Japan club's members are combat personnel of the 11th air force who have bombed Japan or Japanese positions in the Kurile Islands.

Two south siders, Sgt. R. W. Both, 6714 Bennett av., photographer, and Lt. Norman W. Moore, 6541 Harvard av., bombardier, have joined the organization.

Bombing the Kuriles is considered one of the most hazardous missions of any combat zone, due to the long flight over water so cold life can be sustained only a short time if the aviator is forced down.

Longest Bombing Run.

These missions are the longest combat flights over water, averaging more than 2,000 miles each round trip, that have yet been made in World War II.

Return trips not only are periled by enemy aircraft and anti-aircraft fire, but by diminishing fuel supplies and the tricky Aleutian weather which can turn home landing bases into fog bound, storm lashed traps.

Club Formed in 1943.

The club was formed following the original mission over Paramushiru and Shimishu Islands July 10, 1943, the first time Japanese home islands were bombed since the famous Tokio raid of Gen. Doolittle's air men April 18, 1942.

At the time of organization, membership was opened to any allied airman to participate in aerial attacks on the Japanese homeland, home island group, or mandated islands.

MAYWOOD ASKS FUNDS TO BOOST PAY IN SCHOOLS

Citizens Group Cites Teacher Turnover.

Concerned with the unusual turnover of teachers in district 89, which comprises the villages of Maywood, Bellwood, and Melrose Park, a citizens' committee recently was organized for the purpose of considering methods for raising the schedule of salaries commensurate with those of other districts. The Maywood citizens group, which has been meeting Friday nights in the village hall, has arranged to function during the summer in an effort to solve the teacher problem before the schools open in the fall.

During the school year just closed, the district is said to have had a turnover of 25 per cent of its teachers, and there is fear that the percentage may be even greater unless the situation is remedied.

Claim Schedule Is Lower.

The committee points out that the nine elementary schools of the district have a salary schedule lower than that of any surrounding community or that to be found in northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, and northern Indiana. Salaries in the district run from $1,300 to $1,850, or $300 to $1,100 below what is declared to be the range of salaries in other corresponding districts.

Officers of the Maywood citizens group are Mrs. A. J. Claus, chairman, and Mrs. Edward Jaunsen, secretary. Edwin P. Rankin is chairman of the committee for immediate dealing with the salary problem. Thomas G. McBride, an attorney, is chairman of the committee appointed to consider the problem at long range.

Groups that have adopted resolutions similar to those of the citizens' committee asking for a raise in teachers' salaries are the Maywood League of Women Voters, the South Side Community Club of Maywood, and the Garfield school PTA.

Board Rejects Proposals.

Resolutions adopted by the groups have been forwarded to the school board, of which LeRoy Allen is president. The citizens' committee offered five suggestions, none of which was considered feasible by the board. Instead, in a recent letter to the committee, the board expressed the hope that future revenues on the present basis might be increased sufficiently to permit salary raises.

Suggestions of the committee of 50 members which will be presented to the community include the following:

Use of a portion of the building fund as authorized by state legislation, curtailing the expenditures for physical facilities, underwriting by parents of a portion of the expense of special education, such as music and art, a book rental program, and closer attention to tax objections.

Mr. McBride said the faculty of more than 100 teachers had been of high standing and that it was the desire of the committee to maintain the good rating. Too large a number, he added, had given up their posts to accept higher salaries.

Regarding the objection that the Illinois law authorizing use of a portion of the building fund for salary purposes was unconstitutional, Mr. McBride said a number of districts in northern Illinois have utilized the provisions of the act.

Mr. McBride estimated that from $3,000 to $5,000 a year might be raised thru a book rental program.

Canning Co-op in Hinsdale to Open June 19

Proud of its record of last year and preparing to meet a need for preserved food that may be greater than ever, the Hinsdale Canning association, organized as a nonprofit enterprise under the sponsorship of the OCD, again will start summer operations about June 19.

Last year's production of the Hinsdale Canning association was 68,000 cans. As a community project, the quantity was credited with being the largest attained anywhere in the United States and was the subject of an article in McCall's magazine and several other national publications.

The village of Hinsdale has made available to the canning group the former village ice plant, which is said to be laid out ideally for canning, and, with the installation of equipment affording greater capacity, should make it possible to double last year's production.

Canning Allayed Shortage.

Emphasis on the increased need for home food preservation is unanimously expressed by Marshall Keig, chairman of the board of directors; Charles J. Foster, president of the canning association, and Mrs. John B. Lamson, supervisor. "Possibly the only reason there seems to be ample supplies of canned goods in the stores today," said Mr. Keig, "is the fact that so many millions of cans of food were put up privately last year. Had there not been private canning, all statistics indicate there would have been definite shortages."

Mrs. Lamson said she understood that the entire output of the large food packers this season would go to the military forces and lend-lease and that it was an absolute certainty that home raised food would be of the utmost value in maintaining home front stocks.

Mr. Foster said Hinsdale would again welcome the privilege of being of service to its neighboring communities. He added:

Courtesy to Rule.

"The coöperative nature of the operation, however, must be clearly understood, and persons coming to the plant are expected to prepare their produce at the preparation tables and help others if necessary. The bulk of the workers will be volunteers and not commercial employes, so courtesy and the acceptance of rules are anticipated."

Officers of the association caution home owners who have put off or decided not to have a war garden because there seems to be plenty of canned goods that they should realize that the drain today on commercial output far exceeds that of last year. The condition is made doubly severe by the man power shortage in crop harvesting.

Last year, more than 1,000 families made use of the facilities of the Hinsdale project. The number of cans of different foods that were processed were as follows:

Fee Remains Same.

Green beans, 16,573; tomatoes, 10,686; corn, 9,852; beets, 6,419; carrots, 4,565; peaches, 4,299; apples, 2,996; apricots, 2,424; greens, 2,015; pears, 1,538; plums, 952; chickens, 946; wax beans, 863; peas, 929; soup greens, 732, and lima beans, 699. There were lesser quantities of okra, grapes, squash, cherries, berries, and 232 cans of candy for overseas shipment.

Appointments for canning this year must be made two days in advance. Again, there will be a charge for service of 5 cents per can. All communications may be addressed to the Hinsdale Canning association, in care of Mrs. John B. Lamson, 108 N. Garfield av., Hinsdale.

Mrs. J. L. Vollintine is vice president of the association, Mrs. C. C. Brinkerhoff is treasurer, and Mrs. R. J. Soukup is secretary. Directors are Harold T. Moore, Mac Morris, Dewey Fagerburg, Mrs. H. G. Townsend, and Douglass Doolittle.

761 PUPILS BUY $50,624 WORTH OF WAR BONDS

Students at the Robert Burns elementary school, 2524 S. Central Park av., have sold $50,624 worth of war bonds and stamps, Mrs. F. Russell Lyon, Illinois chairman of the schools at war program of the war finance committee, announced recently. The 761 pupils averaged $67.40 in sales.

The school flies the minute man flag of the treasury department, awarded only to schools with 90 per cent of the students buying stamps and bonds regularly.

The pupils have bought bonds to the value of three training planes in the buy-a-plane campaign and expect to complete their drive for the fourth soon.

The sum of $6,000 has been donated toward the start of the center by individuals and organizations. More than 200 memberships were sold before the opening.

Harold M. Elliott, chairman of the adult advisory board, and Harry Oakes, La Grange chief of police and a member of the board and chairman of the building committee, reported that in addition to cash donations there have been contributions of services and materials by business men and organizations. Lending an added early western touch are wagon wheels converted into light fixtures.

The students, who were selected the outstanding seniors by their classmates from a list of 10 nominated by the faculty at each school, are as follows:

JONES COMMERCIAL

"I don't know if my theory is right, but I figure Europe is going to need a lot of builder-uppers after the war and if accounting could help I'd like to be there." In this way Joseph Dybal, 18, who is in the army air corps enlisted reserve, is planning to continue in his field after the war. He wants to become a certified public accountant. Right now he has a three months deferment from the army which will be up on his graduation day.

As the outstanding student at Jones Commercial High school, Joseph has been school mayor, class president, fire marshal, social committee chairman, associate editor of the school paper, and a member of the Honor society. Keeler av., said his ambition to be a teacher of history and social sciences was motivated by the fact that "there is always a need for education, but this will be especially true after the war. Melvin expects to begin his teacher's course next fall at Valparaiso university, Ind. At Luther institute he has been president of the student council, class president, manager of the baseball team, and sports editor of the school paper.

W-G-N TO TEST WIRE RECORDER AT CONVENTIONS

Seek to Find Its Value in Broadcasting.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Extensive tests of the magnetic wire recorder to ascertain its potentialities in commercial broadcasting will be conducted by W-G-N in coöperation with the General Electric company during the national political conventions in Chicago. This device, perfected by Marvin Camras, 27 year old physicist at the Armour Research Foundation, records sound on steel wire almost as thin as a human hair.

Recently military authorities permitted the disclosure that the machine, manufactured by General Electric under license from Armour, is in use over Europe recording the gunfire and the words spoken by bombing crews during operations.

Four of the machines will be made available to W-G-N by General Electric for use during the conventions, George W. Lang, chief engineer of the station, announced. Recordings of every newsworthy broadcast by W-G-N and Mutual during the Republican convention, starting June 26, are to be made, and again during the Democratic convention, starting July 19, if materials for the experiment are then available.

Thru the tests W-G-N, Mutual, and the electric company expect to learn much about the recorder's adaptability and serviceability to standard broadcasting technique. Engineers hope to determine whether any improvements in design or operation can be recommended.

The wire recorder is a compact machine, not much bigger than a portable typewriter. A half pound of wire measuring 11,700 feet [approximately two miles] is wound on spools about four inches in diameter and a little over an inch wide. An hour of sound can be recorded on each spool. As soon as a recording has been made it can be played back without any processing, or the sound can be instantly erased and the wire used over and over again. The recorder provides good fidelity without elaborate precautions.

Introduce Screen Test Broadcasts Over W-G-N

The premier broadcast of the new Screen Test series will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow. The program, presented in coöperation with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will present professional performers. First to appear will be songstress Kay Lorraine. The program will be presented week nights at the same hour.

Arthur Balsam to Play Beethoven Concerto

Artur Balsam, pianist, will be the soloist on the Symphony of the Air program over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He is to play Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2 in B flat major. The NBC symphony orchestra will present the overtures to Lalo's "Le Roi d'Ys" and Strauss' "Die Fledermaus."

JUNE IS A GOOD MONTH TO PAINT HOUSE EXTERIOR

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Here are some timely hints for June on the care and upkeep of your home:

All manner of refinishing materials are available for practically every surface inside and outside the home. Some materials have gone to war, but if they have, substitutes have appeared to take their place.

If you are planning to paint your house exterior, this is an excellent month to do it. If your painted house exterior is dirty but in no need of painting, this is a good month to give it a soap and water bath to remove soot and soil. Follow such bath by a thoro rinsing. Start at the bottom and go up rather than the reverse. A good tool is a stiff scrubbing brush on a long handle.

If you want to remove an old waxed finish inside the home there are commercial wax removers available, or you can sponge waxed surface well with turpentine. After this, wash with a solution of one rounded tablespoon of washing soda to two quarts of warm water. Dry well and then use a No. 0 sandpaper to smooth, rubbing with the grain.

If, on looking around your house exterior you find on a concrete or stucco wall greenish bronze and copper stains from leaders, gutters, flashings, and screening, you can remove these by dissolving sal ammoniac in household ammonia and applying with a brush. In a few minutes flush well with cold water.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 12

Now is the time when vegetables and all other vegetation must be given the best of care. Water when the soil is dry. Soils containing an abundance of humus need water at about one week intervals. If the soil is quite sandy, watering must be done at more frequent intervals.

Syringing is beneficial when the air is dust-laden and it should be done in the morning to enable the foliage to dry off by night. Plants that are likely to fall over should be securely tied in place, but this should be done carefully; don't tie the stems too tightly.

Tuesday, June 13

Never neglect cultivation, even tho there appears to be a trend to grow plants without excessive cultivation. Cultivate to kill the weeds and, in addition, to stir the soil. Do a little experimenting by cultivating a small plot consistently and allowing a second small plot to go without cultivation except to kill the weeds. Note any difference that may result.

If cracks appear in the ground on the uncultivated plot it is because of a lack of humus, which is moisture-holding. If the soil cakes and packs hard, add humus, preferably in the fall. Try sowing a flat of seeds in which a goodly amount of peat has been incorporated and use common soil taken from a garden.

Wednesday, June 14

House plants should be flourishing now, especially if they have been placed outdoors; some will be in partial shade, while most of the flowering kinds will be in full sun. Care as to watering must be constant.

If the amaryllis failed to flower in the spring, give each plant an application of fertilizer and water. These plants grow during summer and rest during winter. If the plants are not doing well, knock them out of the pots and plant in a sunny spot in the garden. Water and apply plant food at intervals, but be sparing with the plant food applications.

Thursday, June 15

If the philodendron is doing poorly, has small leaves, and is spindly, it is, no doubt, because the room is too dry and hot. Do not overfeed it or any other plant. It wants plenty of light, but not direct sunlight. Cut it back to force new growth.

If it is growing in water, place a piece of charcoal in the water to keep it sweet, and when the water evaporates, simply add more. Use a light soil consisting of half peat and soil, with a little sand. Peat is very moisture-holding and hence watering should be carefully done.

Friday, June 16

The English ivy is another fine, viney plant for the home. It does best in a light, cool place, away from direct sun and hot radiators. Syringe at least once a week to keep it free from dust and insects. Apply food about once a month. A complete fertilizer is best.

Saturday, June 17

Watering during summer may be done during the day if it is a thoro job. Light sprinkling does little or no good. The best method is to remove the nozzle and let the water run on a board between the rows.

ELMHURST MAN NOW HAS MORE TIME FOR HOBBY

Retires After 27 Years with Same Company.

Bert Simmons.

Known for the beauty of the lawns and gardens surrounding his home, Bert Simmons, 163 E. Freemont st., Elmhurst, now has more than leisure time for making things grow. Recently Simmons was retired on a pension after 27 years of service with the Commonwealth Edison company.

Simmons entered the utility's employ in 1916 as a stenographer and later became chief clerk in the power accounts department. A native of Oswego, N. Y., he came to the Chicago area in 1908 and first resided in the Irving Park neighborhood. He moved to Elmhurst in 1919.

Wins at Flower Shows.

A frequent winner in Chicagoland flower competitions, Simmons is chairman of the flower garden committee of the Brookwood Country club and formerly was chairman of the Edison Club Horticultural league.

Simmons saw service in the Spanish-American war and was a member of the Illinois reserve militia during World War I. He is a member of the Du Page camp of United Spanish War Veterans and is a past master of Elmhurst Masonic lodge.

Asked to make comparison between service in the Spanish-American war and the war of today, Simmons said that for one thing his pay had been $15.60 a month, half of which he sent home.

"Salt Pork and Hard Tack."

"Our rations until Aug. 1 that summer of 1898 consisted of potatoes, salt pork, and hard tack," recalled Simmons. "Then after an investigation it was decided we should get fruit once a day. After that we received daily three dried prunes. We wore hot, blue uniforms all summer and were equipped with Springfield rifles which fired one shot. I tried to get into World War I, but the best I could do was the reserve militia."

OCD WARDENS ORGANIZE FOR 5TH WAR LOAN

Typical Plan Set for Belmont-Cragin.

War bond wardens and community commanders of the northwest division of the office of civilian defense are marshaling their forces for the 5th war loan drive which officially will begin tomorrow and will continue until July 8. The goal set for the campaign is $16,000,000,000 for the United States. For the Chicago metropolitan area, the quota is almost a billion dollars.

In each of the 21 communities of the northwest area OCD forces are being organized for the drive. Typical of the sections in which the final details of the campaign are being worked out today is the Belmont-Cragin community where John W. Robinson, commander, and Paul G. Knorr, war bond chairman, have organized the workers.

The Belmont-Cragin Business Men's association, the Will Rogers theater, and the OCD have formed an alliance to facilitate the "bondbardment" of the community. The theater will present as the first salvo a "School's-Out premier," a juvenile program for children who buy or sell bonds. Second salvo will be an adult bond premier in which adult bond purchasers will be treated to the first showing of a new picture. A free movie day for all bond buyers will be the third salvo.

Charts to Show Progress.

To chart the progress of the drive in all communities, thermometers, supplied by the treasury department, will be used to show how blocks, zones, and areas are approaching their quotas.

Blueprints of action for the entire northwest area have been worked out by Roy I. Levinson, director of the division, and Joe B. Guenther, division war bond chairman. Working with them is a master committee headed by Charles F. Scully, division chief.

Other committee members are Paul Hagen, assistant director, 4822 N. Hermitage av.; John Lang, assistant director, 5138 N. Kimball av.; Henry Melin, auditor, 4501 N. Lawndale av., and Rebecca Shapiro, 4941 N. Mozart av., publicity director. District commanders serving on the committee are Henry Cohen, 4916 N. Albany av.; James J. Kelley, 6246 N. Livermore av.; Robert Berryman, 4912 N. Keeler av., and Holger J. Neuhaus, 5135 Fletcher st.

Community Drive Leaders.

The following community commanders and war bond chairmen, with their committees, will complete the organization and lead the campaign in their respective communities: Albany Park—Sam Gorelic, commander, and Helen A. Hutton, war bond chairman; Avondale—Theodore Czarnecki, commander, and Frank J. Tomczak, war bond chairman. Belmont-Cragin—John W. Robinson, commander, and Paul G. Knorr, chairman; Belmont Heights—Curt Plate, commander, and Wesley Westbrook, chairman.

Members from other communities, with commanders listed first and war bond chairmen second, are: Edgebrook—James J. Kelley and Donald D. Magers; Edison Park—Winfield S. Scott and Peter C. Forney; Forest Glen—Arnold H. Cordes and Herbert R. Barthen; Hanson Park—Thomas M. De Vaney and Irene Lennartz; Humboldt Park—Oscar M. Nudelman and Eli Goldberg; Irving Park—Joseph Boosel and Stanley M. Dunin; Jefferson Park—Gladys Cooke and Earl Weber; Logan Square—James Curtis and Frank G. Strey, with Jack Fabian as co-chairman.

DANIEL O'HEARN WILL RETIRE AS STEINMETZ HEAD

Winds Up 45 Years in School System.

Daniel F. O'Hearn.
[Ebert Photo.]

This year's commencement at Steinmetz High school is the last at which Daniel F. O'Hearn will officiate as principal. After 10 years as chief administrator of the school, and 45 years as a member of the Chicago public school system, Mr. O'Hearn, who has reached his 65th birthday, is retiring.

As a memorial to Mr. O'Hearn, who in years of service is the oldest principal in the city, the Steinmetz student council recently voted to name the school auditorium the Daniel F. O'Hearn hall. Still another tribute to the retiring principal is his portrait, done in oils by the Chicago artist, Oskar Gross, and presented to the school by the Girls' Service clubs.

45 Years An Educator.

A graduate of Chicago Normal school and the University of Chicago, Mr. O'Hearn was appointed to the teaching staff of the Sheridan elementary school in 1899 and was transferred to the Daniel A. Corkery school in 1902.

In 1908 he became principal at Corkery, serving until 1922, when he was appointed head of Mason school. He became principal of Lawson school in 1924, of Westcott Junior High school in 1927, and of Englewood High school in 1929. He has been principal of Steinmetz since it opened 10 years ago.

In Nation's Eye.

Under Mr. O'Hearn's leadership, Steinmetz has maintained high academic standards. The school has served as a laboratory for the development of reading techniques that were later adopted by other high schools in the city. It also became a pioneer in systematized safety education, attracting nationwide interest.

A recent project sponsored by Mr. O'Hearn is the Steinmetz servicemen's committee, an organization of teacher sponsors and student secretaries. Members of the group keep a file of Steinmetz boys who have been inducted, maintain the honor roll, dedicated in 1943, and send an average of 100 birthday cards a month. At frequent intervals they mail gift boxes and copies of the school newspaper to the 2,450 former students in various military branches.

ONLY TWO GIRLS IN 11 CHOICES OF N. W. AREA

Seniors Tell Plans to the Tribune.

In former years, the public high school outstanding seniors on the northwest side were evenly divided among boys and girls. Not so this year. Of the 11 outstanding graduates in the area, only two are girls. Perhaps the increased popularity of the boy students is due to the war, and to the fact that many of the boys will go directly into military services when the diplomas have been handed out. The girls are still getting high grades and holding class offices, but it is the boys who are being voted "most representative."

Picked by vote of their classmates because of their scholastic ability and student leadership, and interviewed by the Metropolitan section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, were the following northwest side seniors:

SCHURZ

Edward Anderson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson Sr., 4054 Waveland av., has piled up an impressive list of accomplishments during his career at Schurz High school. He has been president of the Americanism club, charter member of the Young Scientists club, a delegate to the International Pacific Relations forum and to the English Speaking union. He has won first place in the current events section of the Scholastic Press guild, and first place in the Schurz current events contest sponsored by the American Educational Press. His excellence in current events won him the Charles Palmer Davis medal and was largely responsible for his winning a two year scholarship to the University of Chicago.

Outside of school, Edward has been a staff member of the Boy Scout troop sponsored by the Irving Park Methodist church; a member of the city championship Scout first aid team in 1943; a member of the Order of the Arrow, honorary Scout fraternity, and city police commissioner during Youth week in 1942.

Over the past four years, Edward has become interested in conjuring as a hobby, and has given numerous performances in sleight of hand. He hopes to make it a paying hobby when he enrolls in autumn at the university, where he will major in some scientific field, probably chemistry.

VON STEUBEN

Harold Allswang, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Allswang, 4945 N. Sawyer av., may "wisecrack" that "education is here to stay," but he's in dead earnest about squeezing in all the college he can before he goes to service, and about continuing his college work after the war.

At Von Steuben, Harold has been president of the senior class, vice president of the student council, in the Honor society and the Service society, and received the American Legion award. In the preference tests given at the school, he rated highest in science, and since he has always received his best marks in that field, will probably follow that in his college work. He hopes to get in at least two semesters' work before going into the navy, where he would like to take radar work.

WELLS

Athletics are the chief interest of Walter Mroz, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mroz, 1206 Chicago av. He has played on the Wells High school basketball and baseball teams all four of his high school years, and captained both teams in his senior year. He also was president of the school Varsity club, and president of his senior class.

Walter already has had his physical examination for the army, but received a six months deferment because of a head injury received in baseball. He plans on using that six months to the best advantage, enrolling at either the University of Illinois or the University of Wisconsin, to begin training in physical education work. Meanwhile, he has been working at Eckhardt park in maintenance and sports supervision.

The war may interrupt his college work, but he hopes to be able to complete it after the war, so that he can become a physical education instructor or a park district athletic director. He knows it would be the work for him, for his teachers have let him take charge of a few classes at school, and he has helped with classes in the parks.

FOREMAN

If John Kolimas, 17, son of Mrs. Mary Kolimas, 4819 Armitage av., had been free to choose what he would do the next few years, he would have enrolled at the University of Illinois for training in physical education. However, if and when he is drafted, he will try for college training in premedic work,

John is president of his senior class, has been a member of school Baseball and Bowling clubs as well

Four Class Choices Tell Their Ambitions.

Looking forward to the post-war world, outstanding seniors from four city-wide high schools are making plans to fit themselves for positions in teaching, radio, accounting, and writing, they told the Metropolitan Section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in interviews last week.

The students, who were selected the outstanding seniors by their classmates from a list of 10 nominated by the faculty at each school, are as follows:

JONES COMMERCIAL

"I don't know if my theory is right, but I figure Europe is going to need a lot of builder-uppers after the war and if accounting could help I'd like to be there." In this way Joseph Dybal, 18, who is in the army air corps enlisted reserve, is planning to continue in his field after the war. He wants to become a certified public accountant. Right now he has a three months deferment from the army which will be up on his graduation day.

As the outstanding student at Jones Commercial High school, Joseph has been school mayor, class president, fire marshal, social committee chairman, associate editor of the school paper, and a member of the Honor society. He sings in the chorus and had the lead in a minstrel show. He would have liked to have had more time for sports, but as it was he managed to play basketball.

For hobbies, in addition to sports, he collects stamps and builds model planes, and he likes to dance. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dybal, 1740 Beach av.

LUTHER INSTITUTE

Melvin Hecht, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hecht, 2824 S. Keeler av., said his ambition to be a teacher of history and social sciences was motivated by the fact that "there is always a need for education, but this will be especially true after the war. Ignorance causes war, so in order to keep from having another war, there must be a great deal of education."

Melvin expects to begin his teacher's course next fall at Valparaiso university, Ind. At Luther institute he has been president of the student council, class president, manager of the baseball team, and sports editor of the school paper.

Moving pictures and sports, especially fishing, are Melvin's hobbies and he spends a good deal of time in church activities. He is business manager of the church paper.

SPALDING

Shirley Hausburg, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones, 3702 N. Lawndale av., expects to enter the Northwestern university school of speech next fall, the first step toward attaining her ambition to do radio work.

Shirley is a member of the Movie club, vice president of the senior class, and has been active in the school assemblies as an announcer.

Her hobby is an unusual one, as she makes odd pins and necklaces from toothpicks, cereals, buttons, and candles. Another hobby is drawing cartoons, especially in letters to service men who, she says, find them amusing and thus look forward to her letters.

FLOWER TECHNICAL

Lila Schwatlo, 18, the outstanding senior at Flower Technical High school, works as a long distance telephone operator in her spare time. However, her ambition is to write, so she will prepare herself by attending the Northwestern university Medill school of journalism next fall.

Lila, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwatlo, 5049 W. Waveland av., has been a reporter, assistant editor, and editor of the school paper, class president, a member of the National Honor society, treasurer of the Photographic club, and winner of the American Legion award.

Writing, sports, and drawing are her hobbies. She has represented her school at the reading conference and the Scholastic Press guild conference at Northwestern university.

as the Letter Men's club, was in the senior play, and acted as chairman of the civics class and the senior talent committee.

John has two brothers in military service: Sgt. Mitchell Kolimas, who has just returned from two and one-half years in the South Pacific, and Pvt. Stanley Kolimas, who is stationed with the army air forces at Columbia, S. C.

After the war John plans to continue with his education. A lot will depend upon what training the army has given him, for he will want to use that training as a basis for his future education.

KELVYN PARK

Shirley Goodgame, 2347 Lowell av., chosen by her classmates as outstanding graduate at Kelvyn Park High school, has decided upon a future career as a reporter. Ultimately she would like to be a foreign correspondent, but since she has a realistic attitude toward her chosen profession she will begin her journalistic work by working as a copy girl for a Chicago newspaper this summer.

In the fall Shirley will matriculate at Northwestern university, where she plans to work for a bachelor's degree. Afterward she will attend the university's school of journalism for a year of advanced work.

Shirley already has had a taste of newspaper procedure in her duties as managing editor of the student publication, Kelvyn Life. She is also a member of the yearbook staff and is secretary of the Civic Forum club. In her junior year she was chairman of her division, and as a senior represented her class at the vocational youth conference, and at the civic assembly sponsored by the Executives club of Chicago.

Chosen as a graduation speaker, she will discuss "Priviliges of a Democracy" at commencement exercises.

TAFT

Taft's honor graduate, James Mein, 5462 N. New England av., is already a member of the army air forces, having been sworn in last February. He will begin his preflight training in September.

During the summer James will attend college under the army's specialized training program. After the war, if things work out so he can resume his academic studies, he would like to prepare to become an aeronautical engineer.

James, who is in the upper half of his class, also has been outstanding in athletics during his four years at Taft. He played guard on the football team, of which he was co-captain in 1943. Last season he was also chosen all-city guard.

SENN

A career in international law and a place in the diplomatic corps is the ambition of John William Carlson of Senn High school. He has an above 90 average for his four years of high school. As marshal of the student council, he has had some training in diplomacy in trying and hearing student behavior cases. He will be 18 next March.

He is the winner of the Harvard University Men's club book award as the outstanding graduate of his class. He also received the R. O. T. C. band officers' efficiency award, and has two major letters for skating and two minor letters for football. Active in student organizations, he is a member of the R. O. T. C. officers' club, the Green and White, the Letter Men's, Dramatic, and Sports clubs. He also plays saxophone in the school band.

John has been accepted by the navy for the V-12 program. Until he is old enough for the navy he wants to get all the education he can. Therefore, he will enter the University of Illinois this summer. Later he hopes to have a few weeks of fishing and swimming up in the north woods. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Carlson, 6129 Legett av.

LANE TECHNICAL

His long slender fingered hands relaxed in his lap, Patrick Bowers of Lane Technical High school told of painting a mural, 20 feet by 4 feet, which will be hung in the Lane study hall. It depicts the vegetation and plant life of the various sections of the country, and will be used for reference by botany students.

Aside from his interest in art, which he hopes to make his profession after the war, Patrick has won seven letters in athletics. He took first place in city trials in cross-country running this year, and is captain of the senior track team and the cross-country track team. His second choice of a profession is to become a physical education instructor.

With an average of 95 for the four year course, he has served as president of the Social Science club and is a member of the Pan-American and mural clubs. He hopes to enter the University of Michigan after the war. Meanwhile, he's making a decision as to the branch of the service he wants to enter. Patrick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowers, 2141 Sedgwick st.

TULEY

Harold Blum, 2204 N. Talman av., Tuley's outstanding senior, will leave for naval training the day after he graduates. Since he is completing a four year business course, he hopes to qualify for a yeoman rating, where his shorthand and typing will be a decided asset.

Harold, who is president of his class, has made the honor roll three times. Altho he participates in many sports, basketball is his favorite game. He earned his major letter in his senior year as a guard on the basketball team.

Commercial subjects have been Harold's favorite studies in high school. After the war he plans to enter the business world, but has not yet decided what his special field will be. A firm believer in the American tradition of "working his way to the top," he has decided to use his shorthand and typing as opening wedges in business, with the hope of becoming an executive.

STEINMETZ

Thomas Dvorak, 2128 N. Mango av., honor graduate of Steinmetz High school, was chairman of the class gift and secretary of the Letterman's club. During the last four years he has maintained a perfect attendance record.

Mechanical drawing is one of Thomas' favorite subjects, and if military duty did not take precedence he would like to be a draftsman. At present, however, his chief ambition is to be a pilot. He has passed the army air forces tests and the army specialized training examinations, but what phase of service he will enter depends on military authorities.

ROOSEVELT

During the last two and a half years Betty Glawe, 3029 N. Albany av., has been cheerleader at Roosevelt High school, where she was recently chosen outstanding senior.

An honor roll student, she also has been active in extracurricular activities. A member of the student council and the Tri-Hi-Y club, she was also chairman of the social committee and delegate to the northwest side council of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A.

Betty, who has taken dramatics for the last seven years, had the leading role in the senior play, "Rich Man, Poor Man." After commencement she plans to do secretarial work.

Only one boy, a 6th grader, William O'Beirne, has won more than three times. He was "top man" for each of the five weeks in the second city-wide school contest, sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association. Irving Park placed among the leading 10 elementary schools in the total amount of waste paper collected, averaging 101 pounds a pupil.

Wins War Stamp Cluster.

William was presented with a cluster of war stamps for the fourth week and two additional ribbons were attached for the fifth week.

The ribbon citations, which are an inch long and one-half inch wide, were planned by Albert H. Goodrich, school principal. Altogether he has presented 150 of them.

"It takes time to find the ribbon and more time yet to make the awards," Mr. Goodrich explained, "but I believe it is a good incentive. Our boys and girls are thrilled with their citations."

Ribbons Prove Incentive.

Irving Park school collected 58,500 pounds in the second five weeks of the contest and 38,000 pounds of this amount were collected the first week the ribbons were awarded. Altho not the top award winners, David Snow and Roger White, both 5th graders, had collected the largest number of pounds at the end of five weeks. They totaled 8,672 pounds largely thru establishing a regular line of customers and making weekly calls.

Each teacher records the individual pupil's collections of waste paper. These records are kept in duplicate form and once a week a copy is sent to the principal's office.

PARK RIDGE WILL HAVE CHILDREN'S SUMMER SCHOOL

Community Church Will Sponsor Classes.

To help children thrown upon their own resources during the summer, the 18th session of the daily vacation school, sponsored by the Park Ridge Community church, will open at the community house tomorrow. The school, which will continue to June 30, will hold five sessions a week, with classes meeting from 9 a. m. until 11 a. m. daily.

Conducted as a community service, the school is nondenominational. Teachers and helpers expect an enrollment of 125 pupils, with ages ranging from 4 to 12 years.

Hold Chapel Service.

The daily program will begin with a short chapel service conducted by the Rev. O. F. Jordan. There also will be a religious lesson, with the remainder of each morning devoted to crafts and games.

Activities will be directed by a staff of experienced youth workers. Mrs. Josephine Howard, graduate of the National College of Education, will conduct the kindergarten. Mrs. Alex Sweeney and Mrs. C. H. Lungren will be in charge of the primary department.

No Fixed Fee.

Studies and projects of the older group will be under direction of Miss Ruth Baumgartner. Miss Jean Partenheimer will be in charge of crafts. Six youth helpers will assist in various sections under the guidance of department heads.

The school is financed by the daily offerings of students. No fixed fee is charged, altho staff members are given small salaries.

W-G-N TO TEST WIRE RECORDER AT CONVENTIONS

Seek to Find Its Value in Broadcasting.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Extensive tests of the magnetic wire recorder to ascertain its potentialities in commercial broadcasting will be conducted by W-G-N in coöperation with the General Electric company during the national political conventions in Chicago. This device, perfected by Marvin Camras, 27 year old physicist at the Armour Research Foundation, records sound on steel wire almost as thin as a human hair.

Recently military authorities permitted the disclosure that the machine, manufactured by General Electric under license from Armour, is in use over Europe recording the gunfire and the words spoken by bombing crews during operations.

Four of the machines will be made available to W-G-N by General Electric for use during the conventions, George W. Lang, chief engineer of the station, announced. Recordings of every newsworthy broadcast by W-G-N and Mutual during the Republican convention, starting June 26, are to be made, and again during the Democratic convention, starting July 19, if materials for the experiment are then available.

Thru the tests W-G-N, Mutual, and the electric company expect to learn much about the recorder's adaptability and serviceability to standard broadcasting technique. Engineers hope to determine whether any improvements in design or operation can be recommended.

The wire recorder is a compact machine, not much bigger than a portable typewriter. A half pound of wire measuring 11,700 feet [approximately two miles] is wound on spools about four inches in diameter and a little over an inch wide. An hour of sound can be recorded on each spool. As soon as a recording has been made it can be played back without any processing, or the sound can be instantly erased and the wire used over and over again. The recorder provides good fidelity without elaborate precautions.

JUNE IS A GOOD MONTH TO PAINT HOUSE EXTERIOR

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Here are some timely hints for June on the care and upkeep of your home:

All manner of refinishing materials are available for practically every surface inside and outside the home. Some materials have gone to war, but if they have, substitutes have appeared to take their place.

If you are planning to paint your house exterior, this is an excellent month to do it. If your painted house exterior is dirty but in no need of painting, this is a good month to give it a soap and water bath to remove soot and soil. Follow such bath by a thoro rinsing. Start at the bottom and go up rather than the reverse. A good tool is a stiff scrubbing brush on a long handle.

How to Remove Old Finishes.

If you want to remove an old waxed finish inside the home there are commercial wax removers available, or you can sponge waxed surface well with turpentine. After this, wash with a solution of one rounded tablespoon of washing soda to two quarts of warm water. Dry well and then use a No. 0 sandpaper to smooth, rubbing with the grain.

If, on looking around your house exterior you find on a concrete or stucco wall greenish bronze and copper stains from leaders, gutters, flashings, and screening, you can remove these by dissolving sal ammoniac in household ammonia and applying with a brush. In a few minutes flush well with cold water.

Remove Copper Stains.

If you find stain from copper drip on the painted wall of your house you can remove it by washing with a mixture of a cup of ammonia in 2 quarts of water, or you can take ¼ cup trisodium phosphate [or commercial product of a similar nature which you can get at your grocery] to a quart of water. Don't let either mixture remain on paint as either can soften it. Rinse immediately with cold water. A paint which contains zinc rather than straight lead is much harder to clear of these stains.

There are commercial bleaches and stains available if you wish to change the color of any woodwork or floor in the home. Where a room is small, and you cannot increase its actual size, it is possible to make it look larger if you finish the baseboard in the exact color of the floor. This can be done by bleaching, staining, or painting, according to the wood and the previous treatment it has been given. Experts claim that the apparent size of a room can be increased by seven or eight inches all around by blending baseboard and floor together. Then, to increase further apparent size of room, finish the remaining woodwork the same color as the walls.

Love Songs Scheduled on Music and Song Hour

Love songs will highlight the broadcast of the American Home Hour of Music and Song, with Attilio Baggiore, over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 tomorrow night. This is a new time for this program. Baggiore will sing "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "My Dream Girl," and Brahms' "Lullaby." He will also sing "None But the Lonely Heart," with the orchestra also featured. The orchestra also will play "The Chocolate Soldier Overture," Strauss' "Emperor Waltz" and several other selections.

Arthur Balsam to Play Beethoven Concerto

Artur Balsam, pianist, will be the soloist on the Symphony of the Air program over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. He is to play Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2 in B flat major. The NBC symphony orchestra will present the overtures to Lalo's "Le Roi d'Ys" and Strauss' "Die Fledermaus."

Discuss Small Business.

"Small Business After War" will be the topic discussed by William Benton, Maury Maverick, and Leo M. Cherne on the University of Chicago program over WMAQ-NBC at 12:30 p. m. today.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, June 12

Now is the time when vegetables and all other vegetation must be given the best of care. Water when the soil is dry. Soils containing an abundance of humus need water at about one week intervals. If the soil is quite sandy, watering must be done at more frequent intervals.

Syringing is beneficial when the air is dust-laden and it should be done in the morning to enable the foliage to dry off by night. Plants that are likely to fall over should be securely tied in place, but this should be done carefully; don't tie the stems too tightly.

Tuesday, June 13

Never neglect cultivation, even tho there appears to be a trend to grow plants without excessive cultivation. Cultivate to kill the weeds and, in addition, to stir the soil. Do a little experimenting by cultivating a small plot consistently and allowing a second small plot to go without cultivation except to kill the weeds. Note any difference that may result.

If cracks appear in the ground on the uncultivated plot it is because of a lack of humus, which is moisture-holding. If the soil cakes and packs hard, add humus, preferably in the fall. Try sowing a flat of seeds in which a goodly amount of peat has been incorporated and use common soil taken from a garden.

Wednesday, June 14

House plants should be flourishing now, especially if they have been placed outdoors; some will be in partial shade, while most of the flowering kinds will be in full sun. Care as to watering must be constant.

If the amaryllis failed to flower in the spring, give each plant an application of fertilizer and water. These plants grow during summer and rest during winter. If the plants are not doing well, knock them out of the pots and plant in a sunny spot in the garden. Water and apply plant food at intervals, but be sparing with the plant food applications.

Syringe these house plants each morning during nice weather; see that all rampant growths are kept in check. Buy a few 2¼ inch geraniums for indoor flowering next winter. Keep them growing and pinched to obtain many flowering branches. Do not feed geraniums to excess, and exercise care by not keeping the soil saturated. Keep on the dry side. If a plant has developed into an unwieldy specimen, discard it or propagate new plants. Overgrown plants take too much room and are out of place in the average room.

Thursday, June 15

If the philodendron is doing poorly, has small leaves, and is spindly, it is, no doubt, because the room is too dry and hot. Do not overfeed it or any other plant. It wants plenty of light, but not direct sunlight. Cut it back to force new growth.

If it is growing in water, place a piece of charcoal in the water to keep it sweet, and when the water evaporates, simply add more. Use a light soil consisting of half peat and soil, with a little sand. Peat is very moisture-holding and hence watering should be carefully done.

Friday, June 16

The English ivy is another fine, viney plant for the home. It does best in a light, cool place, away from direct sun and hot radiators. Syringe at least once a week to keep it free from dust and insects. Apply food about once a month. A complete fertilizer is best.

Saturday, June 17

Watering during summer may be done during the day if it is a thoro job. Light sprinkling does little or no good. The best method is to remove the nozzle and let the water run on a board between the rows.

To tell when the soil is dry and needs water, dig down five or six inches and if it is found to be dry, begin watering. Once a week should suffice.

HOSPITAL UNITES 2 N.W. BROTHERS, BATTLE VICTIMS

Nick Greets Pat as He Steps from Train.

Two brothers, separated for two years while each saw army action in a different war theater, were united recently at the Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill. The brothers are Lt. Patrick P. Petrone, 27, and Sgt. Nicholas T. Petrone, 32. Their home is at 3355 Huron st.

Patrick Petrone.

Nicholas Petrone.

Some time ago Nicholas, army veteran of the family, received a letter from his brother Patrick saying he was being returned to United States from Italy as a casualty. He was not able to give the date of his arrival, but after receiving the letter, Nicholas waited on the unloading platform at Mayo every time a new group of patients was scheduled to arrive.

Brothers Meet.

He was rewarded on Sunday when he saw his brother emerge from a train bringing a small group of overseas patients to the hospital.

"Well, you old so-and-so," he cried, "it's about time. I guess it took the medical corps to bring us together."

Nicholas entered the army in September, 1940, with the Chicago Black Horse troop, and was sent to Camp Livingston, La. Later he transferred to the air forces, and while serving with the 8th air force, was injured in England.

Wins Promotion.

His brother Patrick, former Chicago attorney, went into the army as a private in October, 1942, receiving his basic training at Camp Croft, S. C. He was commissioned at the infantry officer candidate school, Fort Benning, Ga., in June, 1943.

As a member of the 5th army division, he saw action in the Cassino and Gargliane river sectors in Italy. He was recommended for promotion to first lieutenant in recognition of his valorous conduct during the campaign.

Another brother, Corp. Robert Petrone, soon will be on his way overseas as a member of the air corps.

A graduate of Kelvyn Park High school and the University of Illinois, she was formerly employed as a bacteriologist for the Chicago department of health.

SENIORS PLAN POST-WAR CAREERS

OCD TO COVER SOUTH SIDE IN 5TH LOAN DRIVE

4 Week Canvass to Open Tomorrow.

Preparations are complete for the opening of the 5th war loan drive tomorrow. Division leaders, zone and block captains, and bond wardens for the three divisions on the south side are prepared to launch the house to house canvass to be conducted jointly by the office of civilian defense and the war finance house to house division for Chicago and Cook county.

A quota of $90,907,437 has been established as the goal for the south side. The near south side, division 1, has a quote of $29,983,300. Clarence Poffenberger is chief of the division, and Byron Mingus its director.

In division 2, the far south side, James H. Gately, chief, and Forrest Lull, commander, aim at a sale of $32,939,284. In division 3, the southwest side, Frank C. Rathje, chief, and Robert P. Bantz, director, will strive to sell $27,984,853 in bonds.

County Goal 894 Million.

Each OCD division is subdivided into communities, they into zones, and those in turn into blocks. Purchases within each block will be indicated daily on a red, white, and blue block thermometer so that captains, wardens, and residents may note progress.

The Chicago and Cook county quota of $894,014,000 is the largest ever assigned this area. Of the total $277,439,000 is for sale to individuals and the balance of $616,575,000 is to be marketed to corporations.

To meet this challenge Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee for the 5th war loan drive, has organized more than 16,000 "blockbusters," who, between June 12 and July 8, will canvass every home in Chicago.

Rathje Directs Salesmen.

Ten thousand picked members of the OCD will form the core of the army of block-busters under the direction of Frank C. Rathje, vice-chairman of the drive and president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company.

An appeal is also being made to all civic and service organizations including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Scouts, Lions, Kiwanis, business men's associations, clubs, and churches for further volunteer salesmen. This appeal is expected to develop an additional 5,000 to 7,000 volunteers.

The OCD has complete charge of the house to house and store to store canvass, as well as that in industries and institutions employing 100 or less persons, except where a pay roll savings plan is in effect. Large institutions, industries, hotels, and apartment buildings will be covered by other divisions of the campaign organization.

Set Block Quotas.

Every city block has been assigned a quota based on the population and the earning capacity and financial status of its residents.

Chairman of the various south communities are holding meetings to instruct captains and wardens in proper solicitation procedure. Series E, F, and G bonds will be sold in the canvass.

Red, white, and blue credit slips will be supplied to bond wardens for the purpose of securing information from persons who have already purchased bonds, the amount they have purchased, and from whom. This plan will give the bond warden credit for having called on the subscriber. Also it will provide a true picture of total block subscriptions for recording on the block thermometer.

Break Down Divisions.

Division 1 includes the Near South South Side, Chinatown, Armour Square, Pekin, Douglas, Oakland, Kenwood, Washington Park, Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Park Manor, and Jackson Park.

Division 2 is made up of the following communities: South Shore, Grand Crossing, Chatham, Chesterfield, Avalon Park, Stony Island Park, South Chicago, Russell Square, Calumet Heights, South Deering, East Side, Hegewisch, Riverside, West Pullman, Pullman, Roseland, Gresham, Auburn Park, Brainard, Beverly, Washington Heights, Fernwood, Ada, Morgan Park, and Mount Greenwood.

Division 3 consists of Bridgeport, McKinley Park, Fuller Park, Stock Yards, Town of Lake, Brighton Park, Archer Heights, Garfield Ridge, Clearing, West Elsdon, West Lawn, Gage Park, Chicago Lawn, Marquette Park, Garfield Damen, Ogden Hill, Sherman Park, Lake Town, Englewood, and Ashburn.

Tennis Pro Will Teach Technique to S. W. Siders

S.W. GRADUATES HAVE DEFINITE PERSONAL AIMS

Class Choices Tell Their Goals.

American youth, as exemplified by the 11 outstanding students of Chicago's southwest side public high schools, stand ready to do their part in winning the war, but they also have definite personal post-war goals.

Only two are undecided as to what peace time career they hope to follow. Two others want to be physicians, one hopes to be an engineer, another an architect, two others aim to be statesmen, one wants to edit a community magazine, one hopes to become a dietitian, and one a physical education teacher.

These youths who are graduating were elected by their classmates to be interviewed by the Metropolitan section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

KELLY

Loretta Giuntoli, 17, 4137 S. California av., wants to be a physician. She has a good start, for she has won a four year scholarship to the University of Illinois. She has been an honor student and her favorite subject has been chemistery. After school she has gained practical experience by working in a commercial chemical laboratory where she conducts routine experiments. She plans to continue working until she enters college.

A serious attitude toward her studies and future, however, has not prevented Loretta from being popular with her classmates and taking an active part in extracurricular activities. She was president of the Girls Athletic association, president of the senior class, president of the debating team, president of the Honor society, valedictorian, assistant editor of the Clarion, the school newspaper, and a member of the student council.

LINDBLOM

Edward Aldrich, 16, 5437 W. 64th st., is another prospective physician. He entered grammar school in Holbrook, Neb., when 4½ years old. At first he went to school with his older brother for a novelty but, when he displayed the ability to do the work of older children, his mother permitted him to continue.

Aldrich came to Chicago in 1941 and entered Lindblom in his sophomore year. He has been vice president of the student council, a member of the boys' chorus, and treasurer of the French club. He has been on the honor roll twice and intends to work as a clerk in a food store this winter. In the fall he hopes to enter college.

FENGER

William K. Rust Jr., 17, 150 E. 111th st., has enlisted in the naval air corps and expects to become an aviation cadet soon. He would like to be an engineer. His favorite subjects are mathematics and science, and he is a member of the school Honor society. He had planned to go to college and hopes that the navy will send him to Purdue or Notre Dame.

William's father has been dead for 12 years and, according to William, "whenever we needed money I got a job." At 10 he started on a newspaper route, and since has worked as a lifeguard, rodman, and trucker. But he has found time for many extracurricular activities and has been president and vice president of a Hi-Y club, home room president for three years, a member of the Radio club, and a member of the swimming team for three years.

MORGAN PARK

Stephen Schrock, 17, 11330 S. Oakley av., has hopes of becoming a statesman. But before attempting to realize his ambition he has planned a program of preparation. First he wants to continue his education in college, then he wants to become a teacher "to gain experience in understanding people," and then he would like to become a senator or state representative. At present he is a member of the naval reserve and probably soon will realize the first step of his program—college.

Schrock, whose talents are widely diversified, plays the cello with such skill that he was selected to attend the national music camp at Interlochen, Mich., for eight weeks. He also sings baritone in his church choir and sang a solo in the cantata, "The Two Americas," given at the school. He has been a judge on the student court.

He has been on the swimming team, president and vice president of the orchestra, vice president of the Pan-American club, president and vice president of the Honor society, a member of the student council, and valedictorian.

HARPER

Ethel Dimas, 6237 S. Wood st., wants to be a dietitian. She has had some practical experience for she has done much of the cooking and housekeeping in her home. She

CITY-WIDE HIGH SENIOR STARS PLAN CAREERS

Four Class Choices Tell Their Ambitions.

Looking forward to the post-war world, outstanding seniors from four city-wide high schools are making plans to fit themselves for positions in teaching, radio, accounting, and writing, they told the Metropolitan Section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in interviews last week.

The students, who were selected the outstanding seniors by their classmates from a list of 10 nominated by the faculty at each school, are as follows:

JONES COMMERCIAL

"I don't know if my theory is right, but I figure Europe is going to need a lot of builder-uppers after the war and if accounting could help I'd like to be there." In this way Joseph Dybal, 18, who is in the army air corps enlisted reserve, is planning to continue in his field after the war. He wants to become a certified public accountant. Right now he has a three months deferment from the army which will be up on his graduation day.

As the outstanding student at Jones Commercial High school, Joseph has been school mayor, class president, fire marshal, social committee chairman, associate editor of the school paper, and a member of the Honor society. He sings in the chorus and had the lead in a minstrel show. He would have liked to have had more time for sports, but as it was he managed to play basketball.

For hobbies, in addition to sports, he collects stamps and builds model planes, and he likes to dance. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dybal, 1740 Beach av.

LUTHER INSTITUTE

Melvin Hecht, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hecht, 2824 S. Keeler av., said his ambition to be a teacher of history and social sciences was motivated by the fact that "there is always a need for education, but this will be especially true after the war. Ignorance causes war, so in order to keep from having another war, there must be a great deal of education."

Melvin expects to begin his teacher's course next fall at Valparaiso university, Ind. At Luther institute he has been president of the student council, class president, manager of the baseball team, and sports editor of the school paper.

Moving pictures and sports, especially fishing, are Melvin's hobbies and he spends a good deal of time in church activities. He is business manager of the church paper.

SPALDING

Shirley Hausburg, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones, 3702 N. Lawndale av., expects to enter the Northwestern university school of speech next fall, the first step toward attaining her ambition to do radio work.

Shirley is a member of the Movie club, vice president of the senior class, and has been active in the school assemblies as an announcer.

Her hobby is an unusual one, as she makes odd pins and necklaces from toothpicks, cereals, buttons, and candles. Another hobby is drawing cartoons, especially in letters to service men who, she says, find them amusing and thus look forward to her letters.

FLOWER TECHNICAL

Lila Schwatlo, 18, the outstanding senior at Flower Technical High school, works as a long distance telephone operator in her spare time. However, her ambition is to write, so she will prepare herself by attending the Northwestern university Medill school of journalism next fall.

Lila, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwatlo, 5049 W. Waveland av., has been a reporter, assistant editor, and editor of the school paper, class president, a member of the National Honor society, treasurer of the Photographic club, and winner of the American Legion award.

Writing, sports, and drawing are her hobbies. She has represented her school at the reading conference and the Scholastic Press guild conference at Northwestern university.

WEST PULLMAN CLUB'S FLOWER SHOW IS FRIDAY

Southwest side flower lovers are invited to exhibit in the 11th annual flower show sponsored by the West Pullman Woman's club from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m. Friday in the West Pullman park fieldhouse, 123d st. and Stewart av.

Entries should be registered at the fieldhouse Friday morning, Mrs. G. C. Lyon and Mrs. E. L. Claussen, garden chairmen, said. Five ribbon awards will be given in each of the five classes of exhibits.

Girl Scout handicraft and stuffed animals made by Camp Fire Girls for children in the County hospital will be displayed. Ronald Rouland, accordionist, will play in the evening.

Little Company of Mary Hospital to Show Linens

A chest of bed linens, bed spreads, table cloths, and comforters for use by the Little Company of Mary hospital, 95th st. and California av., Evergreen Park, will be on display when the hospital's service club meets at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the hospital. Mrs. John W. Baker, 9547 Vanderpoel av., president, and Mrs. E. E. Lamb, 10148 Seeley av., hostess, will preside.

S.W. PUPILS USE VARIED VEHICLES TO CARRY PAPER

Even Baby Carriages See Service.

Everything from baby carriages to automobile trailers are used by pupils at Barton elementary school, 7650 S. Wolcott st., and Cook school, 8150 S. Bishop st., to make scrap paper collections in school drives.

"We use wagons mostly," Thomas Mulhall, 13, paper salvage commissioner of Barton, said. "But one boy, Stanley Smith, borrowed a baby carriage from a neighbor and used it till it broke down. Parents are good about lending us their cars and trailers, too."

Average 102 Pounds.

Stanley, 14, of 7925 S. Hermitage av., is one of the school's best collectors. Collections averaged 102 pounds a pupil one week at Barton.

Thomas, a 7-A student of 1723 W. 77th st., has been salvage commissioner since he won the award as top collector in the first week of the first drive. He appoints squads to help girls and younger pupils make collections, gives pep talks in various rooms, and has charge of plans made in student assembly each week.

"My dad helped me," Barbara Jordan, 14, of 7721 S. Paulina st., gave as the reason she won two awards. "He's department manager for a mail order company and he saved three and a half tons of scrap paper for me," she said.

Cook students often use wagons and have trouble with them, too, Charlotte Naser, 12, of 162 W. 74th st., revealed.

Almost a Disaster.

"One windy day we had a wagon piled high with untied paper when a wheel came off. We really had to scurry to catch the paper before it blew away," Charlotte, a top collector among the girls, related.

During the second drive, when 117 pounds a pupil was collected, girls in the 7-A room gathered so much paper that keeping score was impossible, and they drew for the award. Charlotte won. In one week the school brought in 35 tons. A large silk flag was given the students for winning first in the district and fourth in the city.

Mr. Brauer is pastor of St. Martini Lutheran church, 51st st. and Marshfield av. Pvt. Bergmann is overseas.

Class Choices Disclose Their Ambitions.

Ethel has no favorite subjects. She likes them all and has made a grade of 3.880 for four years. She has won a scholarship to Kalamazoo college [Mich.], where she will major in home economics. She believes the science of dietetics will gain in importance in the post-war world and hopes to work in a hospital.

While at Harper she was co-editor of the school annual, a cheer leader, secretary of the 4B class, a delegate to a youth conference on juvenile delinquency, and a delegate to a civic luncheon during Youth week.

PARKER

Allan V. Jay Jr., 17, 6919 S. Normal blvd., is interested in far away places. His goal is a post with the state department foreign service. However, he expects to go into military service and would like to get into the AMGOT as a cryptologist.

Allan is proud of his Scouting record and is an eagle Scout with a bronze palm and 40 merit badges. He also has been a member of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. and the Hamilton Park Tennis club. In school he has been vice president of the Pan-American club, a delegate to the Pan-American club conference in 1942, and a member of the Letter Men's, Euclidian, and Science clubs. He is an honor student who has found time to earn spending money by working after school in a store.

He has been awarded a $250 scholarship to the Central Y. M. C. A. college, which he hopes to attend.

CALUMET

Albert Zimmerman, 18, 8433 Sangamon st., likes to take part in school athletic competition just for the exercise and love of sports. He wants to attend a small town college where he can play football and have a good time.

He has been working after school setting up displays and doing odd jobs in a store to earn money to attend college. He is president of the senior class. A friendly youth, he played right half back on the Calumet team which won the south section championship last season. He suffered a shoulder injury which has prevented him from entering service. He is not sure of what work he would like to do but plans to major in engineering. His favorite subject has been pre-flight, a new study which consists of air navigation, meteorology, and other basic phases of aviation ground school.

GAGE PARK

William G. Mellender, 17, 5708 S. Richmond st., has passed both the army and navy specialized training program tests and has decided to join the army. He hopes to be sent to a college for a few months to study some phase of engineering.

He was elected president of the senior class, served on the yearbook staff, and was a member of the student council, the service club, and the tennis team.

TILDEN

Mowen already has much experience in his chosen field—physical education. He has been working as a swimming instructor at the Valentine Boys' club and approximately 100 youngsters a day are under his care at this post. At the club and school he has piled up an imposing athletic record. He was a member of the Valentine basketball team which won a Christmas tournament of all boys club teams in Chicago. In 1942 he won the junior 50 yard breast stroke swimming championship in competition with youths from all Chicago public high schools. In addition he belongs to 23 other school organizations including the Lettermens' club, public relations department, the Tilden Times staff, and is president of the senior class.

He expects to be called into service soon and hopes he will get in the navy.

CHICAGO VOCATIONAL

Norman De Haan, 16, 846 E. 88th st., is the outstanding student from the Chicago Vocational school, 8023 Normal av. The school was located at 87th st. and Anthony av., until the navy occupied it.

Norman is president of the senior class, stands third in scholastic rating, and is a member of the student council and the Draftsman's club. He will enter Illinois Institute of Technology next semester to prepare for a career as an architect.

After regular school hours Norman works at a flower shop and after that he attends night school, where he studies interior decorating two nights a week. "I come home from school, go to work, then go to night school," he explains.

ENGLEWOOD

Walter Hall, 17, 6509 St. Lawrence av., would like to start a neighborhood magazine directed to persons of his own age and "written for the most part by the people who would read it."

He is interested in the history and activities of his community—Englewood. He won first prize in a recent school literary contest with his poem, "I Am Englewood," and as a delegate from his school he discussed his commuity over the board of education radio station.

He has also written for the school magazine, Pen Trails. He was associate editor of the school newspaper, president of the Orators club, and played a leading role in the Orators club play. His favorite subject is public speaking and he believes it is important to learn to speak perfect English. After school he works in a photography studio to earn money so that some day he can start his magazine.

Hall passed the army specialized training test, but was over the age limit for that program and will soon register under the selective service law.

JOLIET CHURCH OBSERVES 50TH YEAR THIS WEEK

The 50th anniversary of the Willow Avenue Presbyterian church of Joliet will be observed this week by its congregation and pastor, the Rev. George H. Olson.

The Rev. George H. Olson.

A group of young men, organized in 1894 into the Circle of King's Sons, started the church. It has developed into a parish with more than 500 members, of whom 80 are in the military services.

The church was reorganized and given its present name in 1904. The original church building and the one built to replace it both were destroyed by fire. In 1925 the present stone edifice was erected.

The burning of the mortgages placed upon this building will highlight the 50th anniversary program at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The Rev. Clarence N. Wright, moderator of the Chicago Presbytery, will deliver the address. Members of the congregation will be seated according to the year in which they joined the church.

An anniversary tea will be given at 2 p. m. Tuesday by Mrs. Frank Keith, who has taught in the church school and served on the board of trustees since the church was founded. Persons who have been her pupils have been invited to attend.

The Rev. Fred M. Whitney, Ashland, Wis., who served at Willow Avenue as pastor from 1923 to 1929, will speak at the anniversary banquet at 6:30 p. m. Thursday.

Next Sunday at 10:45 a. m. 50 new members will be welcomed into the church at a special youth night gathering, the Rev. Adolph Bohn, pastor of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, will speak. "Youth and the Future" will be his theme.

The Rev. Mr. Olson has served as pastor since 1930.

Emil G. Woodman is acting as general chairman of the 50th anniversary committee.

W-G-N TO TEST WIRE RECORDER AT CONVENTIONS

Seek to Find Its Value in Broadcasting.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Extensive tests of the magnetic wire recorder to ascertain its potentialities in commercial broadcasting will be conducted by W-G-N in coöperation with the General Electric company during the national political conventions in Chicago. This device, perfected by Marvin Camras, 27 year old physicist at the Armour Research Foundation, records sound on steel wire almost as thin as a human hair.

Recently military authorities permitted the disclosure that the machine, manufactured by General Electric under license from Armour, is in use over Europe recording the gunfire and the words spoken by bombing crews during operations.

Four of the machines will be made available to W-G-N by General Electric for use during the conventions, George W. Lang, chief engineer of the station, announced. Recordings of every newsworthy broadcast by W-G-N and Mutual during the Republican convention, starting June 26, are to be made, and again during the Democratic convention, starting July 19, if materials for the experiment are then available.

Thru the tests W-G-N, Mutual, and the electric company expect to learn much about the recorder's adaptability and serviceability to standard broadcasting technique. Engineers hope to determine whether any improvements in design or operation can be recommended.

The wire recorder is a compact machine, not much bigger than a portable typewriter. A half pound of wire measuring 11,700 feet [approximately two miles] is wound on spools about four inches in diameter and a little over an inch wide. An hour of sound can be recorded on each spool. As soon as a recording has been made it can be played back without any processing, or the sound can be instantly erased and the wire used over and over again. The recorder provides good fidelity without elaborate precautions.

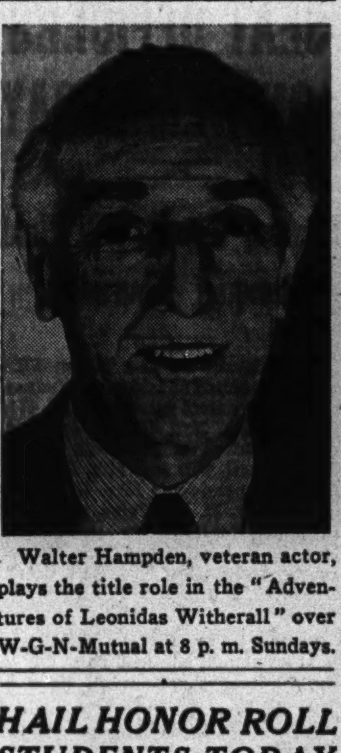
Love Songs Scheduled on Music and Song Hour

Love songs will highlight the broadcast of the American Home Hour of Music and Song, with Attilio Baggiore, over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 tomorrow night. This is a new time for this program. Baggiore will sing "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "My Dream Girl," and Brahms' "Lullaby." He will also sing "None But the Lonely Heart," with the orchestra also featured. The orchestra also will play "The Chocolate Soldier Overture," Strauss' "Emperor Waltz" and several other selections.

Stritch Will Broadcast Message Next Friday

Archbishop Stritch will broadcast a special message at 9 p. m. next Friday, Feast day of the Sacred Heart of Christ, over W-G-N. The message will climax three days of prayer by children of Catholic parochial schools.

In W-G-N Drama



Walter Hampden, veteran actor, plays the title role in the "Adventures of Leonidas Witherall" over W-G-N-Mutual at 8 p. m. Sundays.

HAIL HONOR ROLL STUDENTS TODAY ON W-G-N SHOW

Forty-eight of the 67 members of the honor roll of the fifth series of Citizens of Tomorrow shows will contribute to the final broadcast of this youth show for this season over W-G-N at 1:30 p. m. today.

These boys and girls, all outstanding in scholastic and extracurricular accomplishments, came to Chicago as guests of W-G-N and the Chicago Tribune last Tuesday. After a busy day of entertainment they gathered in W-G-N's main studio for the recording of today's program. They will be heard in a fast moving pageant titled "The Parade of Ambition" in which each student will give his name and ambition in life. Philip Maxwell, conductor of the program, introduces the honor roll students.

Maureen Daly, conductor of the column On the Solid Side in THE TRIBUNE and an authority on the problems of youth, will be heard today on "Your Summer Vacation."

The W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will play a medley of war songs and a group of college tunes. The Austin High school mixed chorus will sing "The Ramparts We Watch" and "My Heart Tells Me."

Students of the Washburne Trade school and Jones Commercial school, educators and civic leaders were guests at the recording session.

War Brings Peace in Green Valley Sketch

How war brought peace to two feuding families will be revealed in a dramatic sketch on the Green Valley, U. S. A., program over W-G-N-Mutual at 4 p. m. today. The families' mothers, who had been enemies for over 20 years, are brought together thru the fighting efforts of their sailor sons serving on the same ship. Vera Allen and Richard Widmark will take the leading roles.

JUNE IS A GOOD MONTH TO PAINT HOUSE EXTERIOR

Materials Are Available for Refinishing.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Here are some timely hints for June on the care and upkeep of your home:

All manner of refinishing materials are available for practically every surface inside and outside the home. Some materials have gone to war, but if they have, substitutes have appeared to take their place.

If you are planning to paint your house exterior, this is an excellent month to do it. If your painted house exterior is dirty but in no need of painting, this is a good month to give it a soap and water bath to remove soot and soil. Follow such bath by a thoro rinsing. Start at the bottom and go up rather than the reverse. A good tool is a stiff scrubbing brush on a long handle.

If you want to remove an old waxed finish inside the home there are commercial wax removers available, or you can sponge waxed surface well with turpentine. After this, wash with a solution of one rounded tablespoon of washing soda to two quarts of warm water. Dry well and then use a No. 0 sandpaper to smooth, rubbing with the grain.

If, on looking around your house exterior you find on a concrete or stucco wall greenish bronze and copper stains from leaders, gutters, flashings, and screening, you can remove these by dissolving sal ammoniac in household ammonia and applying with a brush. In a few minutes flush well with cold water.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, June 12

Now is the time when vegetables and all other vegetation must be given the best of care. Water when the soil is dry. Soils containing an abundance of humus need water at about one week intervals. If the soil is quite sandy, watering must be done at more frequent intervals.

Syringing is beneficial when the air is dust-laden and it should be done in the morning to enable the foliage to dry off by night. Plants that are likely to fall over should be securely tied in place, but this should be done carefully; don't tie the stems too tightly.

Tuesday, June 13

Never neglect cultivation, even tho there appears to be a trend to grow plants without excessive cultivation. Cultivate to kill the weeds and, in addition, to stir the soil. Do a little experimenting by cultivating a small plot consistently and allowing a second small plot to go without cultivation except to kill the weeds. Note any difference that may result.

If cracks appear in the ground on the uncultivated plot it is because of a lack of humus, which is moisture-holding. If the soil cakes and packs hard, add humus, preferably in the fall. Try sowing a flat of seeds in which a goodly amount of peat has been incorporated and use common soil taken from a garden.

Wednesday, June 14

House plants should be flourishing now, especially if they have been placed outdoors; some will be in partial shade, while most of the flowering kinds will be in full sun. Care as to watering must be constant.

If the amaryllis failed to flower in the spring, give each plant an application of fertilizer and water. These plants grow during summer and rest during winter. If the plants are not doing well, knock them out of the pots and plant in a sunny spot in the garden. Water and apply plant food at intervals, but be sparing with the plant food applications.

Thursday, June 15

If the philodendron is doing poorly, has small leaves, and is spindly, it is, no doubt, because the room is too dry and hot. Do not overfeed it or any other plant. It wants plenty of light, but not direct sunlight. Cut it back to force new growth.

If it is growing in water, place a piece of charcoal in the water to keep it sweet, and when the water evaporates, simply add more. Use a light soil consisting of half peat and soil, with a little sand. Peat is very moisture-holding and hence watering should be carefully done.

Friday, June 16

The English ivy is another fine, viney plant for the home. It does best in a light, cool place, away from direct sun and hot radiators. Syringe at least once a week to keep it free from dust and insects. Apply food about once a month. A complete fertilizer is best.

Another good fern is the holly fern. It should be plunged outdoors in a shady spot during summer.

The Boston fern is one of the best all-round ferns for the house. It needs a good, well drained soil, good air, water, and subdued light. It often does poorly in the hot atmosphere of the average room. A temperature of about 55 degrees suits it admirably.

Saturday, June 17

Watering during summer may be done during the day if it is a thoro job. Light sprinkling does little or no good. The best method is to remove the nozzle and let the water run on a board between the rows.

If rabbits are pestering the garden, try a number of repellants, such as sprinkling the plants with red pepper, spraying with a solution of three ounces of Epsom salts to one gallon of water, use two teaspoons of Black Leaf 40 to one gallon of soapy water, scatter naphthalene flakes between the rows of plants.

To tell when the soil is dry and needs water, dig down five or six inches and if it is found to be dry, begin watering. Once a week should suffice.

Five Soloists Announced for Ravinia Park Season

Paulist Choir Is Engaged for Sunday, July 2

By Claudia Cassidy.

Kerstin Thorborg.

Five soloists—Joseph Szigeti, Rudolf Serkin, Alexander Brailowsky, Kerstin Thorborg, and John Garris—have been added to Ravinia's six conductors—Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein, Vladimir Golschmann, George Szell, Efrem Kurtz, and Desire Defauw—and the Paulist choir has been engaged for an extra concert Sunday evening, July 2. So not much remains in preparation for the Chicago Symphony orchestra's ninth season of summer concerts but the diplomatic job of placating rival conductors who yearned to play identical programs, the customary burning of incense to the weatherman, and the usual scurry to make the grass, the begonias, and the famous petunias look their prettiest for opening night, in this case June 27.

UNCLE HARRY AND SISTER

This peaceful scene with Luther Adler and Isabel Bonner is a bit misleading as to what goes on at the Great Northern's "Uncle Harry." As the gentle soul of the title role, Mr. Adler poisons one sister and gets the other hanged for it.

Altho the booking of the five soloists adds up to 10 performances, not one of them falls into the first week with Monteux. To be sure, he doesn't need them. In the last three seasons he has made our orchestra sound like a superb soloist on its own account, no easy task when you take into account the vagaries of Ravinia acoustics and the fact that our summer size orchestra could use more strings, tho it took Artur Rodzinski to insist on them. Yet it is a lucky soloist who lands on a Monteux program. Not many who heard it are likely to forget his Ravinia performance with Helen Traubel of the "Gotterdammerung" music. It was Wagner that blazed with illuminating brilliance.

In the last two seasons, first Artur Schnabel and then Artur Rubinstein came to Ravinia for cycles of four solo appearances. This year it will be the Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti, who had such a success during the winter season under the direction of Hans Lange. Mr. Szigeti appears twice with the newcomer, Leonard Bernstein, playing the Beethoven Concerto July 4 and the first Ravinia performance of the Bartok Rhapsody No. 1 on July 8, returning the following week to play the Brahms Concerto with Vladimir Golschmann on July 11 and Corelli's "La Folia" and the Mendelssohn Concerto on July 15. This will be Mr. Szigeti's second Ravinia season. In 1942 he played the Brahms Concerto with Rodzinski, and the Double Concerto with Piatigorsky, Eugene Ormandy conducting.

George Szell, returning for his fourth consecutive season, will have soloists at every concert. The Bohemian pianist, Rudolf Serkin, makes his Ravinia debut July 18, playing the Mozart Concerto in C major [Kochel 503] under Szell's direction, and returns Saturday night, July 22, to play Beethoven's "Emperor." Kerstin Thorborg and John Garris are Szell's other soloists, appearing in Mahler's "The Song of the Earth" on July 20 and 23. This was sung at Orchestra hall five seasons ago by Enid Szantho and Charles Kullman, but Thorborg's performance probably is better known because of the Bruno Walter recording. You may not know Mr. Garris by name, but he is the fresh voiced young tenor who attracted attention in second roles during the Metropolitan's last visit. He sometimes sings lieder recitals between operas.

Alexander Brailowsky will be Mr. Defauw's soloist, appearing Aug. 1 and Aug. 5 in concertos not yet announced. He appeared with Mr. Defauw last winter, playing the Liszt Concerto in E flat and the Franck Symphonic Variations. Mr. Brailowsky is a widely traveled Russian who sometimes gives cycles of Chopin performances, and occasionally has strange adventures. One of the strangest happened in South America where he was engaged to give a recital at a large concert hall. Everything was rosy until he walked out on the stage and discovered the management had forgotten to provide a piano. There is no need for such catastrophic anti-climax at cozy Ravinia. If Mr. Brailowsky has lost his faith in managements he can peek from the wings.

No doubt you know—but it never hurts to repeat these things—that Ravinia is a park 25 miles north of Chicago where a roofed pavilion holds about 1,400 reserved seats and where several thousand additional customers pay only gate admission to occupy free seats or loll in deck chairs or on blankets under the stars. General admission costs $1, including tax, and a reserved seat usually costs that, too, tho it goes higher for some soloists. You can save $4.11 by buying a book of 17 coupons for $12.89, each coupon representing a cash value of $1. Concerts are given each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday at 8:30 and each Sunday afternoon at 4. There is a refectory on the grounds, or you can take your lunch picnic style and find plenty of benches and tables under the big trees. There are six weeks of symphony concerts, followed by a week of chamber music by the Budapest String quartet. Tires and gasoline being what they are—or rather what they are not—Chicagoans get to Ravinia by North Shore or North Western trains, which stop politely at the gate.

THE BUILDING OF JALNA

By

MAZO DE LA ROCHE

(Copyright: 1944: By Mazo De La Roche.)

INSTALMENT XII.

THEY found Wilmott fishing from his flat-bottomed boat on the broad breast of the river. Equinoctial rains had swollen it but it lay tranquil, reflecting the bright color of the foliage at its brink. Wilmott sat, with an expression of bliss, his eyes fixed on the little red float that moved gently on the water.

"What a way to spend Sunday!" exclaimed Adeline.

Wilmott rose in his boat and drew in the line. "I look on this as necessary toil," he said. "I'm fishing for my supper. I suppose you have just returned from the afternoon church service."

"No need to be sarcastic," said Philip. "There was no service today. What have you caught?" Wilmott held up a pickerel.

"Go on with your fishing," said Adeline. "We'll watch you. It will be a nice rest after all we've been thru."

"I must come over here and fish with you," said Philip. "But the fact is I have little time for anything save the building of my house. Just one thing after another happens."

"Yes, I know," said Wilmott. "It's the same here." He laid the fish on the bottom of the boat and picked up the oars. He dipped them lazily into the calmness of the water.

"Why, you're making a lovely little wharf," exclaimed Adeline.

"Yes," he answered, rowing gently toward her. "Tite and I work at it in our spare time."

"This is Mr. Wilmott, Daisy," said Adeline. "Miss Vaughan, James."

Wilmott steadied the boat with the oars and bowed gravely. Daisy returned his greeting and all stared down at the small landing stage on which tools lay.

"A nice saw," said Philip, picking it up. "And a new hammer."

"They belong to Tite," said Wilmott. "He has very good tools. A man he worked for couldn't pay him the cash, so he paid him with tools."

"What lots of nails!" said Daisy. "Did he pay him with nails too?"

"He found the nails," answered Wilmott. "Some one had dropped them on the road."

"I bought a supply of good tools," said Philip. "They have a way of disappearing, so I carve my initials on the handles." He turned the hammer in his hand.

"Why, here is a clear P. W. on the saw!" cried Daisy.

Wilmott got out of the boat and tied it to the landing place. He bent his head beside Philip's.

"Let's see," he said. Then he added, "I'll be hanged, if your initials aren't on the hammers!"

"That's the way with half-breeds," said Philip easily. "Keep the tools. I have finished with them. You're quite welcome."

"O, no," returned Wilmott. "I shall return them when we have finished the work. I couldn't think of keeping them."

"As you like."

"O, what an enchanting little house!" cried Daisy. "Will you show it me?"

As they went in at Wilmott's invitation they saw Tite rapidly picking up things from here and there and carrying them into the kitchen. Before he disappeared he gave Adeline his gentle smile in which there was a touch of sadness.

Daisy was delighted with the place which Wilmott had indeed made homelike, if in rather an austere fashion. She exclaimed at everything but especially at the oddity of encountering so many books in a log house.

"I love reading," she said. "I wonder if you would lend me a book to read. Have you that new one of Bulwer Lytton's?"

"I'm afraid not," said Wilmott. "But, if you can find anything to please you, do take it."

"Will you help me choose?" she asked Philip. "I should like something you can recommend."

"I'm no great reader," he answered, "but I'll do what I can."

She and Philip went to the book shelves. Adeline turned to Wilmott.

"Are you still happy here?" she asked.

"I'm serenely and consciously happy every hour of the day and, I could almost add, of the night. This life just suits me. I could live a hundred years of it without complaint. I lack only one thing."

"And what is that?"

"More frequent glimpses of you. Of course I have no right to say it but just seeing you, talking to you, gives an added zest to everything I do."

"I have found a book!" cried Daisy, "not a volume of sermons, either. It's the Decameron. I've always longed to read it."

"You can't read that," said Wilmott. He turned accusingly to Philip. "A pretty choice to help her to," he cried.

"But I need broadening, heaven knows."

"Here is the Vicar of Wakefield. Will you try that?"

She accepted it, tho doubtfully. She had taken up an exercise book and was examining it.

"I am teaching my young Tite to read and write," explained Wilmott.

"What lovely pot hooks!" exclaimed Daisy. "Look, Capt. Whiteoak, what lovely pot hooks!"

"You must teach him to read my initials, Wilmott," said Philip.

"Wilmott!" repeated Daisy. "Why, I thought your friend's name was Wilton!"

"No—Wilmott."

"Now here is a coincidence," she cried. "Before I left Montreal I met a Mrs. Wilmott. Let me see, where did I meet her? O, yes, it was at a soiree given by the wife of a Montreal banker. This Mrs. Wilmott—I remarked the name because it is not a common one—this Mrs. Wilmott struck me as quite unusual. She seemed a woman with a purpose. She is out here from England—I think to meet her husband."

Wilmott had taken Tite's copy book into his hands. He bent his gaze on it in an absent-minded way. Adeline came and looked over his shoulder. She said, in an undertone:

"I shall come over tomorrow morning—soon after breakfast."

"Names are amusing," Philip was saying. "I knew another Vaughan in the army in India. He was no relation to your uncle, Miss Daisy, but he had the same name. He even looked like him. Did you ever notice that people who look alike, have similar voices?"

"Tomorrow morning," whispered Adeline, into the copy book, "and—don't worry."

Adeline slept little that night. It was only by strong curbing of herself that she remained in bed. She felt that by springing up and pacing the floor she might find some means of saving Wilmott from discovery by his wife. The aghast look in his eyes had frightened her. What if he were gone when she arrived at his house? He had looked capable of anything at the moment when Daisy had told of the meeting with that woman. But Daisy and Philip had seemed to notice nothing. Wilmott was not a man you would suspect. You wouldn't think of him as hiding from a woman, thought Adeline. But hiding he was and must be protected. Her love for Philip never wavered but the small, unbridled something in her that would stray, loved Wilmott also, with a bold protective love.

His bit of river was as smooth as a blue glass plate and the rushes along its verge, even in their dryness, were too still for whispering. Everything was so still that Adeline had a sense of foreboding as she knocked at the door. There was no answer but she saw the window blind move and had a glimpse of Tite's thin dark hand.

"It is Mrs. Whiteoak!" she called out.

The door opened and he stood there, in shirt and trousers but barefoot. He said, in his soft voice:

"Come in, Missis. My boss he want to see you. You wait here and I bring him in. You go inside and shut the door."

He slipped past her and trotted toward the shed where the cow and poultry were housed.

"My goodness," she thought, "is he hiding in there!" She entered the house.

Her heart was warm with pity for Wilmott as she looked about the room where he had made himself so comfortable, so mentally at ease. He came quickly into the room alone and closed the door behind him. He looked pale and his eyes were heavy.

"You have not slept," she said.

"I did not trouble to go to bed. After all, we have jumped to a conclusion. There might conceivably be another Mrs. Wilmott." He smiled grimly. "I must try to find out more particulars from Miss Vaughan. Yesterday my mind refused to work. I was as near to panic as I have ever been, Adeline."

"I'm afraid you have reason for it," she said. "When I had Daisy to myself I brought up the matter again and she found that the Mrs. Wilmott she met came from the very part of London you lived in. She was pretty, too—very neat in appearance, Daisy said, and rather precise in her speech, with a high-pitched voice and a little quirk at the corner of her mouth."

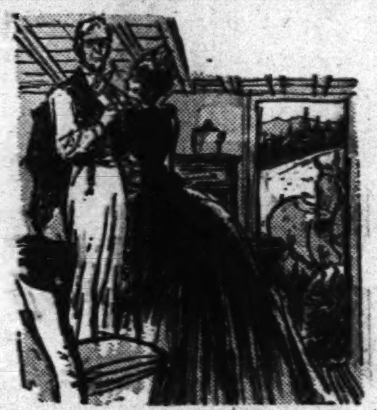
"My God," he exclaimed, "you'll have the girl suspicious!"

"I don't think so. Anyhow, we had to make certain."

"She will never find me here!" he exclaimed. He looked almost wildly about the room. "I shall gather together a few things and make for the west.

"This is the last you will see of me."

She swept to him and took his head between her hands. She looked into his eyes. "You shall not go!" she said.



"Don't touch me—I love you too well!"

He drew away from her. "Don't touch me. Don't touch me—I love you too well! I keep telling myself that Philip is my friend. I must never forget it."

"We must take him into our confidence." Her hands had dropped to her sides as tho they had not touched him. She looked at him calmly. "We must tell Philip. He and I will go to the town and see if we can find out where she is."

"What will Philip think of me?"

"He'll be on your side. You have impoverished yourself for her. You can't deliver over your body to her. What man would expect you to? Not Philip! I'll send him to you. You tell him."

"I warn you," he exclaimed, "I am ready to go to the west or hang myself from one of those rafters!"

"There will be no need for either," she returned.

"But what can you do?" he asked with sudden curiosity.

"Tell the woman you are dead."

Wilmott gave a sudden bark of laughter. "She'll never believe you," he said.

Adeline's eyes were blazing as tho in anger when she turned on him. "Not believe me!" she cried. "If I can't make a flibberty-gibbett little woman like that believe you're dead, my name is not Adeline Court! If I have no more power in me than that, then I shall hang myself from the other rafter."

"It might be a dangerous thing," said Wilmott frowning, "to say some one is dead who isn't. I wonder what the law is, concerning it."

"This is a new country. If you knew the things I've heard since I came!"

She went to the bookshelves and laid her forehead against the topmost. "I'm thinking just how to manage this affair," she said.

Wilmott stood looking at the close plaits of her hair beneath the little velvet hat she wore, and the line of her nape as it melted into her shoulder.

"The first thing is to find Philip," she said finally, "and to send him here to you."

"My God, what an interview. And I was fool enough to think my troubles were over!"

With almost a hangdog look he went with her to where the horse was tethered, and helped her to mount. "Everything will be all right," she called after him as she rode away.

She was halfway to Jalna when she saw a carriage approaching. It was of the type hired out by livery stables and drawn by a pair of lean horses. She saw that a woman and a young girl were in the seat behind the driver.

Adeline's heart began to thud rapidly against her side. But she hastened forward. As she passed the dust covered carriage she took a good look at the occupants.

The driver wore a shabby livery and weatherbeaten top hat. He had a harassed, almost a plaintive look. He was comforting himself by a large chew of tobacco, a trickle from which discolored his chin. Behind him, very upright on the uncomfortable seat, sat a smallish, fresh colored woman. She was pretty and self-possessed, looking young to be the mother of the lumpish girl at her side. She gave Adeline a keen look. She leaned forward and poked the driver in the back.

"Stop the horses," she commanded.

Adeline had drawn bridle and was slowly approaching. Her color was high. She looked more composed than she felt. When she had stopped her horse beside the carriage she looked down inquiringly into Mrs. Wilmott's face who said:

"I wonder if you can give me any information of the whereabouts of Mr. James Wilmott. I am told he bought a property in this locality."

"Yes," returned Adeline, in a deep quiet tone, "he did. A little log cabin it was, far up the river where the swamp is, and an acre of two of land. An Indian boy was with him."

"Oh!" Mrs. Wilmott's face showed a faint look of shock. "Really. A swamp, did you say? An Indian! How degrading!"

"It was not all swamp. He had a cow and a pig and a few fowls. He might have been worse off."

"Is he gone from there?"

"Yes. He's gone."

Mrs. Wilmott drew a deep breath, then between pale lips she said, in a tense tone: "I should like to speak to you privately." She looked at the slumping back of the driver. Then she said:

"Just drive along the road a short distance while I converse with this lady. Hold the horses steady whilst my daughter and I get out of the carriage."

Mrs. Wilmott alighted cautiously, followed by her daughter. The driver went a little distance down the road. Adeline dismounted and led the way to a grassy knoll. Her horse began at once to crop the dry herbage. She said: "We can talk quite privately here. Will you sit down?"

She invited Mrs. Wilmott to be seated as tho in her own drawing room. Mrs. Wilmott looked at her inquisitively, and at the same moment explained herself. Adeline's gaze was sympathetic.

"I am Mrs. Wilmott," she said. "I am here to seek my husband. You must think the circumstances very strange. They are indeed. My husband is a very strange man. He is a very peculiar man. I've had to come all the way from London, England, in search of him. My father, Mr. Peter Quinton—he is descended from Sir Ralph Quinton who was a great inventor and sci- have heard of him

"My father said to me: 'Henrietta, a man who had no more consciousness of his responsibilities than to go to a distant country on a pleasure trip and remain away for a year and a half without writing a line home, is not worth seeking but I'm not of that opinion. A husband's place is with his wife, I insist.' Don't you agree?"

"If it can be done," said Adeline, her sympathetic eyes on Mrs. Wilmott's face.

"That's just what I say. And I have left no stone unturned till I have tracked James down. You have met him, I gather."

"Yes. I have met him."

"And how were you impressed by him? Pray do not try to spare my feelings. If he lived here, as you say, in a swamp, with a cow and a pig, he must have reached a very low ebb."

"He had."

"Dear me! It is mortifying to think of such a situation. And where did he go from here? I must ask you your name."

"I am Mrs. White," Adeline answered, swallowing the last syllable of the name. "My husband and I came over on the same ship with Mr. Wilmott. We saw a good deal of him."

"O, how fortunate that I should find you! How did my husband conduct himself on the voyage?"

"Very miserable," said Adeline.

"Did he speak of his family?"

"Never a word."

"Dear, dear! How unfeeling of him! Dear me! What a man! And he has left this place, you say?"

"Sometime ago."

"Where did he go? Wherever it is I shall follow him."

"He left in the darkness of night, with no word to any one, but 'tis said he went to Mexico and died of a fever there. Now, I can give you the address of two Irish gentlemen who are staying in New York and who can tell you much more about him than I can. If any two men on this continent can help you to discover what the true end of your husband was, these are the two."

"He died!" cried Mrs. Wilmott, on a note of frustration. "You say he died! O, surely not. He never had a day's illness in his life. He can't be dead."

"'Tis said he died in Mexico," said Adeline, plucking a handful of grass.

"Who says so?"

"The word came and went. I cannot remember who said it first."

"I must talk to these people. Who are they?"

"They'll be glad to talk to you, for, when he left, he owed money to every one in the neighborhood. I suppose you will pay his debts?"

"Never!" There were two sharp points in Mrs. Wilmott's eyes. "I am under no such obligation or ever could be."

"It is a strange country," said Adeline. "You never know what will be brought up against you."

"James was always talking about the east," said Mrs. Wilmott. "He appeared fascinated by the east. I can't imagine why he came here."

"I believe he thought he was bound for the east." Adeline laid the handful of grass in a little mound like a grave. "But he got on the wrong ship."

"Dear, O dear O dear! It's enough to make me say I am well rid of him."

"I think you are indeed," said Adeline. "A man like that is bound to do something desperate. It boils up in him for years and then it bursts forth."

"I thank heaven that my child bears no faintest resemblance to him. She is the image of my father."

"I don't like Grandpa," said Hettie.

Mrs. Wilmott almost screamed—"Hettie, how dare you say such a thing! Your dear Grandpapa who is so superior to other people in every way!"

"I don't like him."

Mrs. Wilmott turned to Adeline in despair.

"I don't know what has come over the child. Before we left home she was the most docile and respectful girl you could imagine. Now she will say quite shocking things."

"It's the traveling," said Adeline. "It ruins them. On the voyage out there was a young girl about your daughter's age, traveling with her mother. Well, what did this girl do, d'ye suppose? At the first port she eloped with my own young brother whom I was bringing out here! She ran off with him and left her widowed mother. The poor lady was carried to the dock on a stretcher, more dead than alive."

What Has Gone Before

Having inherited a legacy, Adeline Court, an Irish beauty, visits in India, where she marries Philip Whiteoak, dashing officer of the hussars. When Philip's uncle in Canada dies and leaves Philip heir to his property they decide to venture to the new world. When they sail, Patsy O'Flynn, the coachman, and Adeline's two young brothers, Conway and Sholto, accompany them. On the ship they become friendly with two Irish gentlemen, D'Arcy and Brent; Mrs. Cameron and her daughter, Mary, and an Englishman, Mr. Wilmott. The ship springs a leak and turns back. On second sailing Conway, Sholto, and Mary Cameron do not board the ship. Huneefa, Adeline's native maid, dies at sea. They land in Quebec, where they learn of the marriage of Conway and Mary. A son is born to Adeline and named Nicholas. After a year in Quebec they migrate to Ontario, where Col. Vaughan, a retired Anglo-Indian officer, has settled. The hospitality of the Vaughan home is extended to them while their home is being built. Wilmott buys 50 acres near-by. They name their new home Jalna after Philip's military station in India. Wilmott confides in Adeline that he has run away from a nagging wife and child after providing for them. From Robert Vaughan, Adeline learns of the contemplated visit of his Cousin Daisy. Daisy arrives at Vaughanlands and goes with Philip and Adeline to Wilmott's cottage. Before she left Montreal Daisy met a Mrs. Wilmott who came to Canada to find her husband.

"ALL OVER BUT THE SHOOTING," by Richard Powell. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]	Washington boarding house for secretaries in key war offices used by Nazi agents to glean information from loose talk. Andy Blake and his trouble-hunting wife, Arab, barely escape death tracking down culprits.	Good job of weaving spy technique into highly melodramatic tale of intrigue, death, and heroics. Bright humor tarnished a bit by monotonous, facetious interruptions. Plot has novelties and excitement.
"THE BLACK PATH OF FEAR," by Cornell Woolrich. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Eve Roman was stabbed while Bill Scott was holding her in his arms in crowded Sloppy Joe's in Havana. Scott was accused of the murder, fled from the police, followed a solitary hope to clear himself, and wreaked horrible vengeance.	Tensely written tale of mental torture, emotional passion, haunting fear, and bitterness. Cleverly devised plot, rugged characterization, swift action. Not in any way a pleasant story.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

CHICAGO is becoming a convention city for writers as well as for politicians. . . . The last of the series of three week-end sessions of the Midwest Writers' conference at the Cordon closed a week ago last night. . . . The four day session of the fifth Annual Writers' Conference of the Midwest at Northwestern university begins on July 26. . . . Winners of the awards were announced at the last meeting of the first conference and checks for a total of $675 were distributed. . . . Of the nine women who shared in that pot of gold [and it's a sign of the times that the winners were all women] three were Chicago city dwellers, three were from the suburbs, and three were from the outer reaches of Chicagoland. . . . Contestants did not have to attend the conference to participate in the prizes if they purchased contesting memberships.

The winner of the largest prize—$200—offered by the conference for the best short story, was Mrs. John B. Schotten of Green Bay, Wis., who was present to receive the check, which was presented to her by Chicago's first novelist to make the Book of the Month club, Arthur Meeker Jr.

Chairman's Oversight.

The prize of $200 offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the best description of a personal experience in the war by any one in the service of his country, either at home or abroad, will be awarded at a special meeting in September. . . . The closing date of the contest is Aug. 1. . . . In the excitement of fluttering checks, the fluttering hearts of the recipients and the fluttering of whatever breeze making instruments were available on a night which was hot enough to grill a goose, no mention was made from the platform of the fact that some talented young man or woman in uniform will be the richer by a couple of centuries in September. . . . Your spotlighter stood up and waved a hand in the air to attract the chairman's attention to protest the omission, but the motion was probably mistaken for another fanning gesture, and Mrs. Roy Dickey, director of the conference, closed the meeting without mentioning THE TRIBUNE'S generosity in offering the largest of the newspaper prizes and the only one to service men.

Glenview Prize Winner.

The prize of $150 given by the Chicago Daily News for a six instalment serial was presented to Mrs. Irene Mueller of Glenview, Ill., by David Appel, literary editor of that paper. . . . Mr. Meeker announced the second short story prize of $100, won by Miss Grace Hunter of Wapello, Ia., and presented the third prize of $50 to Miss Clara Baldwin of our town. . . . The $50 prize offered by the Chicago Sun for a 2,000 word feature article was given to Mrs. Alice Sankey by A. C. Spectorsky, the Sun's literary editor, who had previously in the evening replied to the ill tempered remarks made by Ben Abramson at an earlier meeting. . . . Mr. Spectorsky, who became a citizen of Chicago after living in New York, had the convert's zeal in his denunciation of a man who, as he shakes off the dust of Chicago—which has been gold dust to him—and emigrates to New York, belittles our local literary life.

Poetry Winner Acclaimed.

An audible gasp was heard when the name of Patricia Rayburn Olson of Chicago was read as winner of the $25 juvenile short story prize, and the startled author rushed to the platform. . . . The $50 prize for a radio script went to Meade McCabe, and the $25 beginner's short story prize of $25 to Mrs. Elsie Ziegler. . . . But the greatest applause of the evening greeted the arrival on the platform of the winner of the poetry prize of $25. . . . It was Gwendolyn Brooks of Chicago, a young Negress, who won the same prize last year. . . . She is one of the group of colored students who have been meeting once a month at Poetry magazine under the direction of Katinka Loeser [Mrs. Peter DeVries], one of Poetry's editors. . . . They write and discuss poetry. . . . Gwendolyn Brooks was no more delighted than the rest of us were. . . . She was surrounded by congratulators, your spotlight polisher among them.

Writing Made Easy.

The evening's surprise was a man who swore he couldn't make a speech, Lester Dent, writer for the pulps, who turns out one complete novel a month. . . . He made the funniest speech I have ever heard about writing. . . . He declared that anybody could make a success with a few simple rules. . . . One was to get himself a master plot and just write the same story over and over. . . . He named a few highly successful writers who use that trick. . . . Mr. D.'s formula for a sure fire salable mystery novel was to think out a different murder method, a different treasure, a different locale, and then to pour on the menace. . . . He suggested that the writer should also introduce a new and very enticing heroine, "strictly as a dish," he said. . . . Later he summed up some of the tricks in the memorable words, "That's what I mean by corning it up." He had his audience as intoxicated as tho it had been the true brew of corn that he had served them.

Fitzroy Davis, telling of his adventures as a scenario writer in Hollywood, brought an unanticipated guffaw from his audience when, in a serious exhortation, with gestures, he recounted how hard it was to please movie stars and how everything had to be written with not only the character of the hero or heroine in mind but also his or her personal characteristics. . . . In discussing one curvaceous star's demands, he said with all solemnity: "Every scenario had to be shaped for Mae West."

Ballet Repertory Company to Perform This Week

on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

TODAY'S column is mostly scraps, some of them snipped from letters about our scrapbook. But first of all I want to toss out, to sink or swim, an idea that has been lurking in the back of my mind for weeks. It's about describing one art in terms of another, a business I rather mistrust, particularly since I struggled thru Ludwig's "Beethoven," which buried the music under ornate "literary" interpretation. Just the same, a meticulous piece of comparison sometimes turns the trick.

Describing One Art in Terms of Another

Just the other evening, for instance, I was admiring a Sheraton cabinet recently acquired by a friend, and I said it reminded me of Monteux's conducting. A bit flabbergasted, he wanted to know why. I said because of its exquisite proportions, its workmanship and its elegant simplicity. Then he wanted to know what kind of a cabinet would compare to a certain not so good conductor. I said the unfortunate soul would compare to a cabinet that was topheavy, awkwardly designed, and cheaply put together. Whereupon he said that for the first time in his life he understood the difference between a good conductor and a bad one.

This reminded me of a fascinating suggestion made not so long ago by Vincent Starrett, who wanted composers described in terms of writers. "I don't know much about music," was his modest thesis, "but I can understand and place it in terms of books." He was a bit rueful about the way he discovered this. Having admired Ethelbert Nevin's music from childhood, he didn't quite understand why so many musicians snubbed his choice. Finally, a literate friend said, "Why that's just the same as admiring Bunner." Mr. Starrett was crestfallen. Henry Cuyler Bunner, it seems, was once editor of Puck and a writer of short stories and verse, credited by the Encyclopaedia Brittanica with "technical dexterity, smoothness of finish, and playfulness" of style. Anyhow, Mr. Starrett immediately understood about Nevin.

It was Mr. Starrett's idea that I should get to work hooking up composers with matching authors, an utterly engaging notion which makes the flattering but erroneous assumption that I know as much about authors as he does. But it starts a speculative strain worth diligent pursuit. One comparison, I should think, is simplicity itself. Beethoven is Goethe—and perhaps Michelangelo, if you want to keep on in the arts. But Bach—to save me I can't make that one work. Milton, Keats, and how many more? Tschaikowsky is some parts of Shakespeare but by no means big enough or comprehensive enough. Who shares the pure flowing brilliance of Mozart? Some one suggested Stravinsky is Virginia Woolf, that again is yes and no. It's a fascinating game, and if you hit on a natural, let me know.

Some Lines About Joseph Jefferson.

But back to the scrapbook, or snippets from letters it has provoked. When Ralph Kettering took Sam Gerson to task for not being quite accurate about the Great Northern's history, he also embarked on some lines about Joseph Jefferson. I expected Mr. Gerson to challenge their accuracy, but maybe he has been too busy with "Rose Marie." His place as retaliator is taken by the tandem team of J. Bernard Walsh, writing from Chicago's Boswell club, and Paul A. Olson, editor of the Story City, Ia., Herald. When Mr. Kettering speaks of refuting "the legend that Joseph Jefferson was the original 'Rip Van Winkle' and the original Bob Acres in 'The Rivals,'" Mr. Walsh calls him "a sort of Don Quixote of theatrical history, creating his own legends so he can refute them."

Admitting that Mr. Kettering couldn't possibly have meant original, but perhaps original in Jefferson's special versions, his dates are not conclusive. His Boston program of James H. Hackett in "Rip Van Winkle" dated 1866 is backed off the theatrical map by the fact that Jefferson first played Rip in his own version in 1859, changing to Dion Boucicault's in 1865. As to "The Rivals," Sheridan's comedy has been rolling since 1775. Jefferson apparently played his Bob Acres before 1865, as the Brittanica states that he played that role early in his career and took on no new roles after the smashing triumph of Rip.

Scrapbooks Back to 1857.

Harry Philbrook Junkins of Aurora, who has scrapbooks dating back to 1857, says his grandfather, Frank Harrington, was stage manager of the original McVicker's, and that he has the opening night prompt book as well as an old photograph of the house. He recalls that Edwin Booth married the McVicker daughter—her name was Mary—and wants to know what roles Mrs. McVicker played. The classic repertory is the best I can offer. Mr. Junkins also wants to know why Professor Napier Wilt doesn't finish that history of theater in Chicago. How wise all of us will be when those volumes rest handsomely on our shelves!

From his collection of more than 1,000 playbills dating back to 1872, H. H. Pinney generously sends a tattered relic from Hooley's Opera house, undated, but which he says corresponds in makeup to some others he owns, dated 1874. Billy Emerson, of the white plug hat, the minstrel fame and the "Moriarty" song was playing there, with Billy Rice and Billy Arlington also in big type. And an older oldtimer, the David Kennison described last week as manager of the Museum theater and an 112 year old survivor of the Boston Tea Party, evokes a note from Vernon D. Brauns, who says Kennison's grave, marked with a bronze plaque on a boulder, is 50 feet east of Clark st. where Wisconsin st. ends. Wouldn't that be in Lincoln Park?

Call for Accurate Antiquarians.

The Everett Piano company says it still has that prized piano Teresa Carreno was recommending so long ago, and that not so many years ago it adorned a Lyon & Healy window. Once it bore her autograph on a metal plate but an overzealous workman took care of that. Now it holds the signature of Rudolph Ganz, who played the piano several years ago at Benton Harbor.

The last letter asks a question I am unable to answer unless some of you accurate antiquarians come to my aid. Selma Walden Lincoln of Chicago inquires the name of a 16 year old Italian actress who made a sensation as Juliet a generation ago. According to Miss Lincoln, the girl married an Indian and died in her early twenties. Dr. Carlos Montezuma, an Apache who practiced medicine on the south side, had a portrait of her. Miss Lincoln thought she might have appeared with the Italian Novelli, mentioned in our scrapbook tour. His Portia was O. Giannini, his Jessica was I. Rossi and his Nerissa was E. Servolini. Alas, those cryptic initials.

Two Works to Receive World Premiere Here

Andre Eglevsky.
[Reed Photo.]

Two ballets will be given world premieres and two repeated from last winter's program when Carla Bradley's Ballet Repertory company opens a brief season of three performances at the Eighth Street theater on Tuesday at 8:15. The program will be repeated on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The first work to be presented will be Leonide Massine's new ballet, "Fantasie Poetique," under the personal direction of that famous dancer and choreographer. A group of noted dancers, representing four famed ballet companies, will participate in this performance: Alexis Dolinoff and Marina Svetlova of the Metropolitan Opera ballet, Rosella Hightower and Andre Eglevsky of Ballet theater, Marie-Jeanne of the American Ballet company, and George Zoritch of Ballet Russe. Massine has based his new ballet on music of Chopin, 11 of whose piano pieces have been orchestrated under the direction of Nicolai Malko, the musical director of Ballet Repertory company. One of the numbers will be a piano solo, to be played by Lucy Brown.

The second novelty and second number on the program will be "Spanish Rhapsody," choreographed by Vela Montoya and Miss Bradley and danced by Montoya, with Dolinoff as the male lead, assisted by the local corps de ballet. The work is described as "a ballet in one act in impressionistic style, reminiscent of Iberia." The musical background is the concerto for piano and orchestra which Busoni evolved from Liszt's "Spanish Rhapsody," originally a piano solo. Between the two sections of the rhapsody, "La Folia d'Espagne" and the "Jota Aragonesa," a "Romanza" by Granados will be interpolated. Margaret Heim will play the piano solo.

The program will conclude with two ballets originally presented by the Ballet Repertory company last November. "Debutante's Ball," with choreography by Miss Bradley to the music of a Glazounoff waltz, will occupy third place on the program and the concluding number will be Bronislava Nijinska's "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star" to Tschaikowsky music—the "Capriccio Italien" and the variations from the Third Suite in G. The cast of the final ballet will consist of George Lawrence, Dorothy Gremchuk, Marilyn Bebber, Carole Layden, and Dorothy Howe.

The Golden Gate Quartet of Negro singers will give a concert in Du Sable High school auditorium this afternoon in the course of a national tour of six weeks.

The Chicago Musical college will confer the honorary degree of doctor of music upon Désiré Defauw, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, at the 77th annual commencement exercises and concert to be held in Orchestra hall on Wednesday at 8:15. Rudolph Ganz, president of the college, will make various student awards, and Leon Sametini will conduct the Chicago Musical college symphony orchestra with the following soloists: Joan Gale and Perry O'Neil, pianists; Marilyn Hash and Georgia Anagnost, vocalists, and Fred Hoeppner, cellist.

A choral concert under the direction of Theodore R. Frye will be given for the benefit of Provident Hospital and Training school at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30.

Jacques Offenbach's opera, "The Tales of Hoffman," will be sung in English by the Chicago Concert and Opera Guild at the Eighth Street theater tonight at 8:15. Silvio Insana will conduct and the orchestra will be composed of members of the Chicago Opera company. Leading roles will be taken by Rose Arbanas, Jeanne Grant, Marilynn Sherman, Lillian Padorr, Bartolme Bover, Alois Bragagnola, Henry Matysiak, and Lee Whitezel.

The American Conservatory of Music will hold its annual commencement concert at Orchestra hall on Tuesday at 8. Herbert Butler will conduct the orchestra; Allen Spencer, dean of faculty, will make the address, and student soloists will be Sara L. Hammerschmidt, Jane Somers, Claude C. Smith, Fannie Paschell, Lucille Larsen, Mary Carol Penn, Elizabeth Jeffries, and Marjorie Maulsby.

Sherwood Music School will hold its 49th annual commencement at Orchestra hall on Friday at 8:15. The Sherwood Symphony orchestra will play under the direction of P. Marinus Paulsen and the soloists will be Margery Elaine Smith, Horace Bennett Jr., June Felcher, Wade Grieb, Jane Butler, Cynthia Hotton, Yvonne Chauveau, and Joseph Posta.

The National Composers clinic will hold a week of sessions at St. James Methodist church, Ellis av. at 46th st., beginning with a choral and vocal concert this afternoon at 4:30. Other programs will be given on the succeeding five evenings at 8:30. On Monday there will be an orchestra and piano concert, a composers' forum on Tuesday, a guest composers' concert on Wednesday, an "honorable mention concert" on Thursday, an instrumental concert on Friday, with a concluding banquet at the Bismarck hotel on Saturday.

HERE'S PATH TO YOUR SUMMER ENJOYMENT

Books Which Give Outdoor Life a Zest

By Bob Becker.

Outdoors Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Outdoor fans with hobbies are a lucky group. They not only have a lot of fun but written especially for them are scores of the most beautiful and helpful books which point the way to greater enjoyment or increased skill in their favorite sports or hobbies. Recently we've been browsing among these books and we're amazed not only by their scope and beauty, but also by the impressive list of experts who have written them. No matter what your favorite sport is, there's a book on it.

For example, the gardening enthusiasts who take pride in the flowers they grow can turn for help to some of the most beautiful books we've ever seen. In fact, we dare any one interested in flower gardening to resist this trio: "Garden Flowers in Color," by Daniel J. Foley [with 350 lovely color plates]; "Vegetable Gardening in Color," and the third book in the series "Garden Bulbs in Color" [by J. Horace McFarland, R. Marion Hatton, and Daniel J. Foley].

Another trio of practical gardening books which give all the answers to amateur's questions [including the $64 one] are: "10,000 Garden Questions," a 1,467 page volume by 15 experts; "America's Gardens," by Louise and James Bush-Brown [this one has 1,241 pages]; and "The New Garden Encyclopedia," by E. L. D. Seymour. Then there is the handsomely illustrated "Complete Book of Garden Magic," by Roy E. Biles, another "how" book for the amateur. In fact, there's an entertaining and helpful book on just about every garden hobby including such special subjects as dahlia culture, rock gardens, window gardening, water gardens and pools, and how to grow roses.

The tennis, golf, and riding enthusiasts also may turn to a comprehensive group of books for help or entertaining reading on their favorite sports, for nationally known authorities have authored the volumes. The golf list includes: "Golf, Its Rules and Decisions," by Richard S. Francis, a book that one local golfing authority said every club swinger should read, because it'll settle any argument on the game between the first and the 19th hole. "Swinging Into Golf," by Ernest Jones [tips on how to master the right swing]; "Golf" [Patty Berg's excellent handbook on the game]; "The Secret of Par Golf," in which 14 champions hand out tips and advice, and several books by Alex Morrison.

For the tennis players we recommend: "Advanced Tennis," by Chester Bowers; Helen Hull Jacobs' "Tennis," which is a concise book for the beginner, and "Tennis as a Hobby," by Henry I. Cummings. Ellsworth Vines' "Quick Way to Better Tennis" is another helpful book on the sport.

Outdoor fans who like horseback riding will find it more fun and learn how to ride better if they take a look at "Horseback Riding Made Easy," by Count Darretto de Sousa; "Riding" by Col. J. J. Boniface [fundamentals of correct riding for both beginners and experts], and "The Horse," by Paul Brown. And there are special books written for that other group of outdoor "travelers"—the bicycle riders—including Roland C. Geist's "Bicycling as a Hobby," and "Bicycling" by Ruth and Raymond Benedict.

If you aspire to be the skipper of a nifty little sailboat this summer you'll want to dip into the swell list of practical books on sailing and boats, including "Learning to Sail," "Gadgets and Wrinkles," "Learning to Cruise," and others in a splendid series by H. A. Calahan; "Sailing Made Easy" [told in pictures by Rufus G. Smith]; "The Pleasures of Sailing by Alfred Stanford [for everybody who has been or dreamed about being the owner of a sailboat], and "The Boatman's Manual," by Carl D. Lane.

One of the most attractive and instructive groups of books for the outdoor fan is that dealing with cooking over outdoor fireplaces in the backyard at home or in the woods. Easily heading the list is "Sunset's Barbecue Book," a clever and beautifully illustrated manual by George A. Sanderson and Virginia Rich. [Sanderson tells how to build an outdoor fireplace and the furniture to go with it and Rich gives the recipes.] Other very attractive books on this hobby are "The Outdoorsman's Cook Book," by Arthur Carhart; "The Country Cook Book," by Cora, Rose, and Bob Brown, and the "Gun Club Cook Book" [sportsmen will find this one of unusual interest].

A new book has just been written by Douglas Leechman for the hiking enthusiasts entitled "The Hiking Handbook" which takes up every angle of that sport. And another summer sport—archery—is highlighted by an excellent series of books for both the beginner and expert including: "Bows and Arrows" by James Duff [a small but swell handbook]; "Archery," by Robert P. Elmer [a complete treatise of 563 pages on the sport], and "The New Archery, Hobby, Sport and Craft" [Paul Gordon's compact manual on all phases of the sport].

The thousands of nature study and bird fans who are always on the watch for a new bird in the garden or on a hike thru the countryside, are especially fortunate in the large and authoritatively written reference books which make their hobby more enjoyable. The list includes the delightful "Field Book" series on birds, wildflowers, and other subjects; "A Guide to Bird Watching," by Joseph J. Hickey; "Handbook of Nature Study," a comprehensive work by Anna Botsford Comstock; "American Bird Biographies," by Arthur A. Allen; and the profusely illustrated "Bird Portraits in Color," with text by Thomas Sadler Roberts, which ought to be in every bird fan's library.

For the fisherman who wants to expand his knowledge of common game first in the near-by vacation areas and be prepared to win some bets on the correct names of the species he goes after, we suggest he tuck a copy of "Northern Fishes," by Samuel Eddy and Thaddeus Surber in his pocket. [This is a new book and a dandy.] One of the newest "how" books on fishing technique and equipment is the "Field Book of Fresh Water Angling," by John Alden Knight.

Yes sir, you can call your shot on your favorite summer sport or recreation, and you'll find one or more highly entertaining books about it.

D-Day Brings Great Demand for War Books

"God on a Battle Wagon," by Chaplain James V. Claypool and Carl Wiegman; "We Thought We Heard the Angels Sing," by Lt. James C. Whittaker and Charles Leavelle.

It will be noted that all the books mentioned in the preceding paragraph are concerned with the spiritual angle. It is widely recognized that in times of stress the thoughts of the people turn to religion.

For that reason, among many others, the book trade predicts that the Bible will continue to be the No. 1 best seller for the duration.

Awarded $2,500.

Dr. Gisela M. A. Richter, author of "Animals in Greek Sculpture" and curator of Greek and Roman art at the Metropolitan museum, has been awarded $2,500 by the American Association of University Women in recognition of "distinguished and scholarly work."

Dali's Novel Is Meant to Be Appalling

"HIDDEN FACES," by Salvador Dali. [Dial, $3.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

This is an appalling book. It was meant to be. It is a painting of Dali in which everything speaks. The woman running with a curved body down the eternally straight lines cries out, and she is answered by the fainter voices of dim figures walking deliberately away into the immense darkness outside the picture. And the landscape itself talks, and has the firmest tone of all, and is the real personality of the book and the final character.

Across the years before the war Dali has made a picture of many people, mostly French, a few American. They would be unbelievable, if it were not that the time in which they lived has been unbelievable.

Critics today speak with tight lips and dreadful, proper voice of the error of writing books in which men and women accept lives in which the dark blood and the gray nerve overwhelm the white reason and the blue goodness. They can do that only by ignoring great areas of our century.

This is the time in which the faces of men grow tusked and their voices bark. Should the writer ignore that, and write books in which the faces of men become smooth as the cheeks of inexperience, and good with the ease which comes from blinding the eyes to the powerful drift of these years?

The answer to those who will criticize Dali's book for its "decadence" and its wilfulness is—look at the 20th century so far. Can the artist outweigh the times he lives in? Can he by merely willing it roll back the granite agony from his life and those of all around him? Should he write of the innocence of childhood when Europe's children watch their bellies bloat with profound hunger?

Sometimes I wish that thru this book, thru the finely carpeted rooms in which these finely clothed people sit and talk, a French peasant would walk, straight from the stable, dragging the manure on his shoes. I would welcome him. And yet so, I feel, would the Count de Grandsailles, in spite of his delicacies, for that would be one of the reasons he has survived so long in a world which has no real place for him.

The character of the old canoness is remarkable. With the landscape of the plain outside the count's place, she dominates the book and survives it. I hope the readers may survive it, too.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

IN "Great Tales of Terror and the Supernatural" [Random House], an omnibus volume ambitiously planned to end all such omnibuses, an obscure figure in modern American literature named H. P. Lovecraft comes into his own. Two of his tales are reprinted in this collection of 52 certified masterpieces, and thus Lovecraft, heretofore rated as a bush leaguer, is batting as strongly as Edgar Allan Poe in the big league. His ascension may be credited, aside from his genuine merit as a story teller, to August Derleth and Donald Wandrei, who form the publishing partnership called Arkham House, which operates in the small town of Sauk City, Wis.

Lovecraft died about five years ago, leaving nothing between book covers. He had been, however, a voluminous contributor of weird tales to the pulp paper magazines, and was recognized among a small group of free-lance writers as a unique talent in the field of the "grotesque and arabesque," as Poe called it. He had invented a rich genealogy of supernatural beings, known as the Cthulhu mythology, and some of his disciples borrowed from it in tales of their own imagining, with his consent and approval.

August Derleth, whose fertile literary talent thrives in his Wisconsin birthplace without need of the dubious inspirations of New York and Hollywood, has been an addict of tales of terror ever since "Dracula" scared him out of a year of high school growth. He became a Lovecraft reader and entered into a correspondence with the wizard of Cthulhu, who lurked in Providence, R. I., which eventually taxed the capacity of his filing cabinets. The twain never met, but after Lovecraft's death Derleth resolved to give him library recognition.

Several years ago Arkham House of Sauk City, Wis., published a Lovecraft collection called "The Outsider and Others." Last fall it issued a second volume, called "Beyond the Wall of Sleep," containing lesser tales, poems, and a miscellany of Lovecraftana, including a long biographical study. A third volume, which will be delayed because Wandrei is in military service and paper is scarce, is ready for the printers. It will consist largely of Lovecraft's letters.

Until Derleth turned part of his enormous energy toward the memorialization of Lovecraft in this manner, the man was as unknown to literary scholars as any newspaper reporter. His name does not appear in "Who's Who," "Twentieth Century Authors," or "American Authors and Books." The two latter volumes, by the way, are comprehensive, and contain records of numerous sandflies of the writing trade who happened to live on the right side of the tracks or know the right people. Lovecraft was a recluse, a strange neurotic, who fainted in cold weather, and a midnight delver into quaint and curious volumes of forgotten lore. As a personality he was a modern Poe, without the spectacular color of the whisky bottle.

The Lovecraft tales in "Great Tales of Terror and the Supernatural" are entitled "The Rats in the Wall" and "The Dunwich Horror." They are causing specialists in American literature to ask questions about the author, and to all such, eager for footnotes to their dissertations for the doctorate, we point the way toward Arkham House. On arriving at Sauk City they should head toward the Place of Hawks, the manor house where Derleth spreads his wings. If the pilgrimage is made by motor, passing traffic should be scanned carefully, for Derleth occasionally commutes between his habitat and Chicago in the cab of an egg truck.

D-day, when the great invasion kicked off, marked the 93d anniversary of a notable literary event in the history of freedom. On June 5, 1851, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," by Harriet Beecher Stowe, began its publication as a serial in the National Era, a periodical printed in Washington, D. C.

Book received, on loan from William E. Webster of Libertyville: "The Mollie Maguires and the Detectives," by Allan Pinkerton, autographed by the author; published by G. W. Carleton & Co., New York, 1877. This work, a thrilling but neglected item of Americana, is of secondary interest because it is the source book for the Sherlock Holmes story called "The Valley of Fear." The long interior narrative in A. Conan Doyle's tale, bearing the subtitle, "The Scowrers," is solidly based upon the facts narrated by Mr. Pinkerton, who must have had an able ghost writer.

Edgar W. Smith, secretary of the Baker Street Irregulars, says in his recently published "Profile by Gaslight" that the locale of "The Valley of Fear" was the Shenandoah valley, which proves that he never read "The Molly Maguires." This clan of murderers flourished in the coal mining region of Pennsylvania, chiefly in Schuylkill county.

TITLE.	SUBJECT.	VERDICT.
"FOLK-TALES FROM CHINA," by Lim Siantek. [John Day, $2.]	Ancient folk tales and legends of China, including tales of the gods, stories of beginnings, and fairy tales. Among them are the Legend of the Blue Plate, Legend of Narcissus, The First Firecracker, and other Chinese versions of popular folk legends. Stories are short and told with young readers in mind.	An excellent addition to our folk tale collection; valuable as an interpretation of Chinese life and thought. It is an attractive book, with illustrations by William Arthur Smith.
"LET'S BUILD," by Constance Homer Crocker. [Houghton Mifflin, $1.50.]	An elementary book on woodworking, with brief textual instructions and numerous explanatory drawings. Includes directions for simple objects such as pencil holders, bird houses and small toys.	Altho the directions are concise, adult help will be necessary for the average middle grader. It is a fine book for family vacation projects.
"HEARTHSTONE IN THE WILDERNESS," by Erich Berry. [Macmillan, $2.]	When Marcia Stark set out to help her father build a home on their land grant, she knew she must do a man's work while her brother worked at home to help pay for the new house. Both of them looked back to a year of real accomplishment when it was over.	A pioneer story of New York state. It's good reading for older boys and girls who have need of the same courage and stamina as that of Marcia and her brother.

Economist Gives Classical View of Price Making

"PRICE MAKING IN A DEMOCRACY," by Edwin G. Nourse. [Brookings Institution, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi.

This book is a real disappointment. Here is a leading scientific research institution publishing a large volume written by an outstanding economist on a problem that should be most vital to the survival of free enterprise and to the prosperity of the nation. But all it accomplishes is a restatement, in a popular language, of the classical principles of price making, much on the level of an undergraduate textbook.

The real problem of "price making in a democracy" is whether or not we are going into an inflation or into a depression of prices, or maybe into both, and what that will mean, and why, and how to avoid it. Almost nothing is said about that problem. The book might have appeared in 1912 or 1935 as well.

Characteristically, it ends with the statement, in a tone of deep sincerity, that "Adam Smith's recognition of self-interest as a perennial and dependable spring of human conduct is as true today as it was in his time." Very much so, indeed, but this is just as original and deep an insight as the other concluding statement, according to which business men find that "honesty pays."

What we expect from an economist is something a little more up-to-date, not in the sense of changing the basic philosophy, but in the sense of applying it in a relevant fashion to the present day problems.

Survey Shows Effect of War on Education

By The Rev. John Evans.

Exigencies of war are threatening the future intellectual leadership of the nation because selective service and highly paid war jobs have reduced enrolment in high schools and colleges, thus draining off both students and teachers. These facts are derived from a survey of the educational field made public today by Jane Eads of the Associated Press.

The survey reveals that college graduating classes this June are 50 per cent off their peak figure in 1940, which was 185,000. The peak in high school diplomas was in 1942 when they totaled 1,242,375; the total this June is 200,000 under that figure. Teachers' colleges and normal schools have fared even worse, the former dropping 53 per cent in the last year alone and the latter 60 per cent.

According to Dr. Benjamin Baker of the United States office of education, the most damaging effect arising from the war is the 69 per cent decrease in graduate college students over the last four years, which, he warns, will be increased in later years with a current 8.7 per cent loss in high school students and a 44 per cent loss in undergraduates.

"In few other human institutions," says Dr. Frazier, "is the destructive character of war more devastating than in the higher levels of learning. War's toll of American education deprives the nation of many of its potential leaders, scholars, and professional workers. The supply of young college teachers available to instruct returning veterans, war workers, and the succeeding generation of college students will be appreciably depleted."

This diminution of personnel the survey attributes to selective service, the lure of high wages, the necessity of finding better paid employment to offset living costs far exceeding a teacher's meager pay, and the discontinuance of army specialized training program units.

Statistics from this survey disclose that about 12,500 teachers left higher education institutions between June and October, 1943, and that more than 2,600 of these vacancies were as yet unfilled, and that in addition there were 7,500 vacant classrooms as of Oct. 15. Furthermore, selective service is taking at least 90 per cent of the civilian men students still left, including the formerly deferred engineering and technology undergraduates.

Under the new draft pogram, Dr. Frazier points out, most men's schools and engineering colleges now have only army and navy training program students, a few classified as 4-F, and some veterans, small in number despite a million veterans already discharged because many are disabled, overage, or adjudged misfits. The office of education estimates that over an age span of 11 years an average of 38 per cent of those who normally should be going to school are in war plants or in uniforms.

"There is a marked tendency," Dr. Frazier continues, "to lower physical requirements for induction and to eliminate college training for service men. Thus further losses in college enrollment is to be expected. While there are signs of a leveling off in employment in certain war industries and in federal departments, the demand for both men and women workers in most fields continue unabated."

Educators believe, the survey concludes, that many students now lost owing to the war will return. But how many will do so depends on the duration, post-war economic conditions, and extent of federal aid to education.

Another Fine Dorben Revue on Beach Walk

By Will Davidson.

Henri Gendron. [Calvert Photo.]

They say that Tony De Marco never had a dancing lesson in his life. Yet on the strength of his performances over a long stretch of years, and especially his current work in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel, he is the king of dance team stars. He also is the champion picker of girl partners. Sally Craven, his present—and ninth—carries on the tradition of beauty, charm, and talent.

The De Marcos have always had what to me is the secret of good team dancing—a native sense of timing, an inherent love of dancing, and the good sense to know that enjoyment is an infectious quality. Whether Sally and Tony are whirling thru a routine symbolizing a Gershwin medley, interpreting Emile Coleman's specially written "Sparks," or flashing the gay intricacies of the very Latin "Bomba-Jumba," they are essentially superb dancers who seem not so much to be following a well planned routine as to be expressing in their own joyful way the urgent emotions that the music arouses.

Probably the most depressing sight to me in the amusement world is a dance team, no matter how talented, drooling and mooning their way thru an attempt to impress you with the fact that they spell Art with something far more imposing than a mere capital A. The De Marcos don't fall under that fatal spell. Sally is fresh and light. Tony is agile and as smooth as the ripples of a panther's muscles. Sometimes he is almost snaky. Always he is superb.

Sally and Tony are blessed by Neil Bondshu's music, directed by their own accompanist, Alan Moran. Neil, by the way, will be leaving June 29 for New Orleans. Bill Snyder, now at the Drake, will take over.

It's another Dorben hit at the Edgewater Beach hotel. This time the petite and talented Dorothy has put together a breezy little show that is well suited to the Beachwalk and its lake cooled surroundings.

As usual, the Dorben dancers stand out. This time they have four excellent numbers, each beautifully costumed by the Lesters, who long have interpreted in gowns the routines which Miss Dorben has arranged. In a ballet interpretation of Tschaikowsky's "Rose Adagio" the girls are assisted by the singing star of the show, young and amazingly talented Patty Jo Atkins. Patty sings "A Heart That's Free," and, with a violin background, "I'll See You Again." As a finale for the first show the girls pay tribute to the Fuzzy Wuzzies, our little known allies, in a radium lighted dance in feathered costumes. The dance interpretation of Eugene Field's poem, "Little Red Drum," is a typically cute Dorben novelty. Tunes from "Lady in the Dark" key the other routine, with Miss Atkins singing "My Ship."

A delightful part of the show are the acrobatic shennanigans of the Five Taylor Kids, ranging from 6 to 14. They're something. Wally Boag, the man who makes funny animals out of toy balloons and dances with the elasticity of a jumping jack, proves also to be a pleasant emcee. Eddie Olliver's band continues its good music under the direction of Emil Vandas.

The Rio Cabana is rightfully proud of its new show, starring Ethel Waters and Danny O'Neil, and featuring the fast dances of Rosita and Deno, the taps of Isabel Johnson, the line work of the Rio Lovelies, and Frank Pichl's music. But more of that next week.

The Stevens has gone on a summer policy of no shows in its big Boulevard room, and no dancing until 10 p. m.—thus avoiding the cabaret tax for diners. Henri Gendron has moved up from the Park Row room to take over the bandstand vacated by George Olson, and Carl Schrieber, long a ballroom favorite around here, has moved into the Park Row. On his birthday, in fact—last Friday.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Larry Adler will close at the Palmer House a week early—June 21—for a rush trip to Hollywood to appear in two pictures. In one, "Hollywood Canteen," he and Carmen Cavallaro will do their very amusing skit which is such a strong part of the main show in the Empire room. Adler is paying the Palmer House $10,000 for this chance to make a last minute alteration of contract.

Most cynics have sheer talent for cutting remarks.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

It was the heat. I got mixed up on my Sundays. Thought today was the first Sabbath of June. Which was why the best's weren't in last week as they should have been. Excuse please—in case you care.

"In Our Time" was a well directed, staged and photographed movie dealing with the "in our time" Poland—old and new, before and after the siege of Warsaw. . . . Splendid playing by Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid, and Michael Chekhov. . . . The piece "ends on a desperate—but hopeful—note. There will, you feel, always be a Poland."

"The Imposter" starring Jean Gabin, "master craftsman, with his great cunning in the matters of light and shade . . . is an exciting war melodrama based on the Petain-De Gaulle situation. . . ."

"Cover Girl"—"A musical of perfect blend. May its tribe increase!" . . . Starring Rita Hayworth and Gene Kelly.

"It Happened Tomorrow"—"Different. Fun. Even if it does set you talking to yourself, you could probably talk to worse. . . ." Featuring Linda Darnell, Dick Powell, and Jack Oakie.

"Buffalo Bill." With Joel McCrea. "The great, wide, wonderful west of 1863 and a while thereon, has been gorgeously packaged in technicolor and flambouyantly tied up with the adventures of William Frederic Cody, best known to the world as 'Buffalo Bill.' . . ."

"Song of Russia." Russian propaganda—telling a thrilling romantic glamorously starring Susan Peters and Robert Taylor. . . . Action is backgrounded by the lovely compositions of Tschaikowsky. . . ."

"The Sullivans"—"sticks closely to the true story of the famous Waterloo, Ia., brothers whose devotion to their country and one another has warmed every American heart . . . casting is truly perfect . . . picture has many a laugh. The tears you wipe away are tender but never bitter ones. . . ."

"Black Parachute"—featuring Larry Parks. "One of the choice program 'underground' thrillers. . . ."

"Show Business." "Really about show business . . . follows the popular trend of present day musicals and in the pleasantest possible fashion bows you back into the era of bustles, bloomers, and beer in buckets. . . ." Stars George Murphy, Constance Moore, Eddie Cantor, and Joan Davis.

You'll have a good time at any of the above named movies. [I think.]

See you tomorrow.

Harsh Words Vented Upon Martin Dies

"MARTIN DIES," by William Gellermann. [John Day, $3.]

Reviewed by Walter Trohan.

I often wonder why it is that the fires of hate burn more fiercely in the supposedly serene atmosphere of our universities than in the profane air of the despised outer world. Can it be because the cloistered air of our halls of learning sears human kindness into highly combustible light rubbish, while the untamed winds outside encourage the growth of tolerance more difficult to enkindle?

The volume on the chairman of the special house committee to investigate un-American activities is the product of the white hot hatred which flourishes in classrooms. Never in almost seven years of committee activity—and in those seven years Dies has been a target of violent criticism—has Dies been so bitterly and viciously attacked as he is by Dr. Gellermann, associate professor of the school of education of Northwestern university.

It was composed in the best classroom technique. The professor read every word of the 10,000 pages of testimony amassed by the Dies committee, every word Dies spoke on the floor, every word Dies' father uttered in congress a generation ago, and thousands of newspaper clippings, documents, letters, and other material. The jacket estimates every one of the 288 pages of the book represents six hours of work.

The volume is evidence that Dr. Gellermann read every one of that vast mass of words with a mind violently prejudiced against Dies. He might well have spent one or two of the 1,724 hours talking with Dies or hurried his reading of the reports to talk to those who know Dies, even those who, while they are not numbered among the bluff Texan's supporters, are not poisoned against him.

Dr. Gellermann opens his volume with the unequivocal statement that Dies has been fighting the battle of American reaction and is un-American in his methods. He goes on to charge Dies is anti-Semitic and Fascist, and implies nothing would give Dies greater pleasure than to see America lose the war. He repeats and reworks this theme until he winds up by ironically hailing Dies as the American fuehrer in the final words of his book:

"It is for us to follow the leader. What leader? Our leader, Martin Dies. Heil Dies!"

It must be charitably observed that Dr. Gellermann undoubtedly did not know at the time he was poring over dusty records, that Martin Dies is in the grip of a grave disease. The volume was evidently in the hands of the printer when it was announced that Dies had been forced by doctors' orders to withdraw from the congressional race and these harsh words could not be softened. Nonetheless they leave an ashen taste with the reader, but even so one could forgive Dr. Gellermann for being carried away by uninspired enthusiasm were it not for the fact that he goes to absurd lengths in burning incense before Walter Winchell, impresario of turgid tittle-tattle. He acclaims the gossip monger as a great champion of American ideals merely because he smeared Dies.

Incidentally, the jacket of "Martin Dies" takes care to mention that the heated doctor is a Methodist, evidently to offset any possible charge that his labeling of Dies as anti-Semitic is born of racial animosity. Curiously enough the jacket biography neglects to mention in listing Dr. Gellermann's impressive scholastic achievements that he is a graduate of the Harvard law school and therefore a former pupil of Dies' most bitter, altho secretive, foe, Felix Frankfurter, one time Harvard law professor and now associate justice of the Supreme court.

How Navy Wives Carry On While Their Men Fight

"SAILOR'S STAR," by Fanny Heaslip Lea. [Dodd, Mead, $2.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

These three stories are about navy wives, "rightly so-called because, while they may not be in uniform, the men who have their hearts are." The backgrounds are nautical and topical, the characters emotional and typical.

Leslie, rushing happily to New York to spend a brief leave with her husband, a submarine officer, finds him entranced by a lovely French refugee, a guest at his mother's home. International intrigue is the answer.

Maggy, engaged to the navigator of a PBY, goes to visit his family and finds her happiness almost shattered by a jealous older sister. The usual "love conquers all" theme makes up the plot.

Nineteen year old Lee, living on a wind-swept Atlantic beach as secretary to a commander writing a book on carriers, finds love over the jealousy of his wife and the personal tragedy of an injured navy co-pilot. It is the eternal triangle all over again, this time in navy blue.

"Sailor's Star" is done with hasty, experienced competence—the kind of book that would have to come out before the invasion or the stories would lose their timeliness. It offers nothing more than a few hours of pleasantly irresponsible reading but if you are admittedly feminine enough to get a kick out of tall, bronzed men who crinkle when they smile and slim, lovely heroines with tinkling voices and quick dimples, there is enough interesting romance in this book to bridge you over a dull evening.

History and a Wee Dash of Fiction

"TRUMPET TO ARMS," by Bruce Lancaster. [Little, Brown, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Edw. Wagenknecht.

Bruce Lancaster.

There are many kinds of historical novels. This is pretty much the kind with which Mary Johnston made us familiar, a generation ago, in her two epical narratives of the Civil war, "The Long Roll" and "Cease Firing." Only, this time it is not the Civil war, but the Revolution, from Concord to Morristown, and from the special vantage point of Ripley Mayne, in the 14th Massachusetts infantry. The outline of historic events is strictly adhered to [with history lessons between chapters], and we should know that the book was based on careful and solid research even if the author did not tell us.

There is not much "story" in such a book, but you do get a very satisfying sense of living your way back into a forgotten day. And, tho you need considerable capacity for relishing the detailed records of military maneuvers to follow the main outline with rapture, there are enough incidental episodes to satisfy varied tastes. The heroine, Remembrance Morse, is a gallant girl, and the amiable prostitute, Piety, who had a respectable sourpuss to wear on all formal occasions, contributes some vivid moments. The men, too, are vivid individuals, undifferentiated only in their immense alcoholism.

The most significant thing in the book is perhaps its vivid picture of the development, thru war, of a national consciousness. At the outset both enlistments and dismissals are pretty casual and few soldiers have begun to think in continental terms. But before the book is over we find that the companies "had become regiments, had almost imperceptibly changed from local to provincial, to national units."

Fictionized Tale of the Golden West

"SAMUEL BRANNAN AND THE GOLDEN FLEECE," by Reva Scott. [Macmillan, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Reva Scott.

Samuel Brannan ran away from his Maine home and his tyrannical Irish father when only a boy. He learned the printer's trade, knocked around the country, fell under the spell of Joseph Smith and became a Mormon elder. He edited a church paper in New York, and then led a shipload of converts around the Horn to California. They arrived at Yerba Buena just after Fremont's coup.

Brannan had a vision of the new country's promise. He embezzled church funds, bought and built, and was doing quite well for himself when gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill. He kept the news secret until he himself was well set, with a stock of goods at Sutter's Fort, and then in his own newspaper sprang the story that set the world gold mad.

He gleaned his harvest from the miners. He persuaded the Mormons among them to tithe their takings, and himself shamelessly kept the tithes. In a short while he was accumlating wealth at a dizzy rate. He had a finger in banking, shipping, merchandising, publishing, ranching, real estate — every activity of a lusty, overgrown community. He was a builder, and he was a pioneer in most of the enterprises that made California. He founded Sacramento. He helped organize the Committee of Vigilance and he pulled on the rope at the first hanging. He shipped the first locomotive to California.

His rise was meteoric and his fall equally spectacular. He threw money at the birds, most of them with scarlet plumage, and he was never a bookkeeper. His wife [he had married a second time, polygamously] divorced him, the settlement strained his resources, and in a short time his extravagance and wild speculations broke him. He died penniless and alone. He was an incredible representative of an incredible era.

• • •

Mrs. Scott's book, based on private papers as well as on the known sources, is well documented and reliable. It would probably have been more satisfactory as straight biography than it is in the fictionized form she has given it.

Eloquent Plea for a Return to Faith

"PLEA FOR LIBERTY," by Georges Bernanos. [Pantheon Books, $3.]

Because of the author's impassioned style, vehement and at times almost incoherent, this book is hard reading, but rewarding. M. Bernanos, a French journalist of long experience now living in South America, probes the psychological factors of France's fall, and argues eloquently for a return to honor and faith in the government of nations. He sees in Christian principles the hope of humanity, and Christians of all creeds will have no difficulty in appreciating his Catholic viewpoint, for he champions the cause of the saints and their piety. It is a work to be read and reread until his clouded and mystical utterances become plain.

New Type of Atlas Gives Global View

"ATLAS OF GLOBAL GEOGRAPHY," by Erwin Raisz, Lecturer in Cartography, Institute of Geographical Exploration, Harvard university. [Global Press-Harper, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz.

The language of maps is one of great formal economy and striking vividness. Thru a series of line projections, the use of contrasting colors, and sets of easily read symbols maps sum up an infinitude of knowledge. They are symbolic replicas of the face of the earth, recordings of man's habitual adjustments to his geographic environment.

At first thought the taste for this language may appear an acquired one. However, once fully savored there is none of the vital languages of knowledge which can give as much pleasure. One can pore over maps for hours, following to the full the implications of their contours and symbols.

Actually we have no alternative. We live in a time when the acquisition of the language of maps is a prime requisite for intelligent living. Over night our individual environments have expanded to take in the world. Whereas formerly our decisions may have merely affected our immediate neighborhoods or the country whose political and cultural values order our behavior, now the new instruments of travel and communication give our decisions worldwide implications.

There is just no escaping the pressing urgency upon us that we learn. The "Atlas of Global Geography" is an excellent instrument for this learning. Its many features cohere to give the thoughtful reader a sound grasp of the language of maps.

Raisz gives a true global sense of each of the continents and vital land areas by means of an oblique orthographic projection. This projection sets forth the multigeographic landscapes as they would appear when viewed more or less at a slant. The maps are impressive and richly informative.

As a whole the atlas falls naturally into three parts. The first is a series of orientational expositions and maps. These guide the reader in his comprehension of the regions, the climate, the natural environment which characterize our planet. This section ends with a fine global view of the great air routes; the new arterial skyways which are ushering us into the air age.

The second is the heart of the atlas. Here are fine global representations of each of the continents and the vital land areas. The maps are in four colors and represent everything of importance which pertains to the land area and associated waters depicted. Further each of the maps is bordered with miniature maps and illustrations of data not contained in the map itself. This type of composition is unusually effective in assembling a vast amount of data before the reader.

The third consists of a series of dramatic cartograms and maps which visualize the problems which arise as man adjusts himself to his natural environment. Here the reader can see race, language, and religion distribution. From cartograms on agriculture, industry, minerals, illiteracy, disease, poverty, etc., he can infer the profound world problems which press for solution. It is a salutary experience to have our horizons widened to encompass peoples and issues which are important to our future welfare.

There is much more that could be said of this atlas. Its many features can be only suggested. The reader is assured hours of pleasurable and thought provoking contemplation. As a first step in extending the language of maps beyond the ordinary gazetteer atlas, the "Atlas of Global Geography" should meet a wide welcome.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

WHEN events are a little quieter in Rome, and less international in scope, I wish Seymour Kerman, or some good fellow with happy memories of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," would drop in at the Caffè Greco, No. 86 Via Condotti, opposite the "Spanish Steps," and inquire after the statue of Mark Twain that Signor Federico Gubinelli, the proprietario, conceals in an upper room of his popular restaurant. Every Clemens specialist to whom I have ever mentioned the item has asked me searching questions about it, which I am unable to answer. But it was certainly there in 1937; I saw and touched it. Indeed, I once had an excellent photograph of it, now put away so carefully that I am unable to find it.

It is not a life size effigy like the stone citizens of ordinary acquaintance, but a statuette some three feet in height—an excellent portrait alleged to have been done from life by a sculptor named Amato, as I recall the story, who was a friend of Signor Gubinelli's father. If this is true, it could have been made, I think, only on Mark Twain's visit of 1879, which resulted in "A Tramp Abroad." There is no reason to doubt that Clemens visited the place. The restaurant, said to have been established in 1760, has been visited along the years by hundreds of celebrities, among them Goethe, Byron, Shelley, Keats, and Thackeray. It is diagonally across the street from the house in the Piazzi di Spagna in which Keats died.

George Hiram Brownell and Franklin J. Meine, to mention only two local Twainiacs, have urged me repeatedly to find my missing photograph; they think I invented the whole story.

Maugham's Major Works.

Somerset Maugham's "The Razor's Edge" [Doubleday] is being hailed by the critics as "one of Maugham's three major novels." They rank it after "Of Human Bondage" and "The Moon and Sixpence." I dissent from the supposed number of Maugham's major novels. "Cakes and Ale" also is a major performance—less major than "Of Human Bondage" perhaps, but not a whit less major than "The Moon and Sixpence" and several whits more major than "The Razor's Edge." The magnum opus is still "Of Human Bondage." However, every line written by Somerset Maugham is notable. He is a master of the long and difficult art of writing. Beginning authors will get more out of an intelligent reading of his books than out of a dozen writers' conferences.

Detecting the Detectives.

Can you identify the great detectives of fiction by their creators' descriptions of them? It is not as easy as it sounds. For example, here are a number of fairly precise portraits right out of a number of famous books:

1. "[His] jaw was long and bony, his chin a jutting v under the more flexible v of his mouth. His nostrils curved back to make another, smaller v. His yellow-grey eyes were horizontal. The v motif was picked up again by thickish brows rising outward from twin creases above a hooked nose, and his pale brown hair grew down—from high flat temples—in a point on his forehead. He looked rather pleasantly like a blond satan."

2. "In height he was rather over six feet, and so excessively lean that he seemed to be considerably taller. His eyes were sharp and piercing . . . and his thin, hawklike nose gave his whole expression an air of alertness and decision. His chin, too, had the prominence and squareness which mark the man of determination. His hands were invariably blotted with ink and stained with chemicals."

3. "He was unusually good-looking, altho his mouth was ascetic and cruel, like the mouths of some of the Medici portraits; moreover, there was a slightly derisive hauteur in the lift of his eyebrows. Despite the aquiline severity of his lineaments, his face was highly sensitive. His forehead was full and sloping—it was the artist's, rather than the scholar's, brow. His cold grey eyes were widely spaced. His nose was straight and slender, and his chin narrow but prominent, with an unusually deep cleft. [He] was slightly under six feet, graceful, and giving the impression of sinewy strength and nervous endurance."

4. "[He] was a big, broad-shouldered, deep-chested Saxon, with all those marked characteristics of a race living out of doors and hardened by wind and sun. His powerful frame carried no ounce of surplus weight. It was the frame of the empire builder on the frontier of the empire. The face reminded one of Cromwell, the craggy features in repose seemed molded over iron, but the fine grey eyes had a calm serenity, like remote spaces in the summer sky. The man's clothes were plain and somber. And he gave one the impression of things big and vast."

5. "[He] towered six inches above his father's head. There was a square cut to his shoulders and an agreeable swing to his body as he walked. He was dressed in Oxford grey and carried a light stick. On his nose perched what seemed an incongruous note in so athletic a man—a rimless pince-nez. But the brow above, the long delicate lines of the face, the bright eyes were those of a man of thought rather than action."

6. "[He] was an extraordinary looking little man. He was hardly more than five feet, four inches, but carried himself with great dignity. His head was exactly the shape of an egg, and he always perched it a little on one side. His moustache was very stiff and military. The neatness of his attire was almost incredible."

A Masterly Encyclical.

Adeline Lobdell Pynchon, columnist of the Society of Midland Authors, reveals that the commander of the naval units at Northwestern university, troubled by certain philandering tendencies among his charges, asked Prof. James Taft Hatfield to compose a distich stressing a stricter attention to drill and studies and an avoidance of irrelevant distractions. This is what the professor wrote:

Sed Venus hinc abeat, permaneatque foris.

—which Charles Collins translates, "Here Mars himself reigns and fostering Minerva is not absent, but let Venus depart and do her stuff elsewhere." A masterly encyclical and a notable translation.

Drama Notes

An abrupt addition to the town's playbills is the Cole Porter musical, "Let's Face It," which opens at the Selwyn Tuesday evening with Benny Rubin, Mary Jane Walsh, Brenda Forbes, and Cynda Glenn heading the cast. This is the show with book by Herbert ["A Connecticut Yankee"] and Dorothy Fields which was designed for Danny Kaye and in which he starred for seven months in New York during the season of 1942-'43. Mr. Rubin now has Mr. Kaye's role.

Hollywood can take two bows on the Rodgers and Hart musical, "A Connecticut Yankee," now starting its last week at the Studebaker. Richard [Oklahoma!] Rodgers, its composer and producer of the revised version, says the show originally was written because back in 1921 he and Herbert Fields, the librettist, saw a silent picture of Mark Twain's story, with Harry C. Myers as the Yankee. They decided it was a fine idea for the stage, and got to work with the late Lorenz Hart as lyricist. They even got a six months' option on the story from the Twain estate, free. But Rodgers was 19 and widely unknown, and his collaborators were in about the same fix. Their option lapsed and not unttil 1927 did the musical hit Broadway and success. How did they happen to revive it? Well, Mr. Rodgers can't resist movies. This time he saw Fredric March in a private showing of "The Adventures of Mark Twain."

NOW BRUNET

Her blonde tresses changed to brunet, Grace McDonald appears thus in "Follow the Boys," at the Palace.

"Alaskan Stampede" gets under way at the Coliseum Friday night, a musical show, ice ballet, and dramatic story spun in a new sound system and iced by air conditioning. The book of the show was written by Harold Sherman, who did the libretto for "The Adventures of Mark Twain," and who is here to direct his story. Leonard Whitcup has collaborated on music and lyrics, and Wilson Sawyer, formerly of the University of Michigan, has done special arrangements and a song or two for Klondike Kate, played by Wini Shaw. Starring in the musical story are Margaret Spencer and Earl Covert, who played in our most recent engagement of "Blossom Time," while Evelyn Chandler and Bruce Mapes head the ice ballet, with the aid of Mimi, who does a rhumba on ice. Among the gold rush scenes will be a race between two teams of malemutes.

"Rebecca" closed rather suddenly last night, frightened away from the Selwyn by the torrid wave that also changed Katherine Dunham's mind about keeping "Tropical Revue" at the Blackstone all summer. Miss Dunham closes next Saturday night and puts her show in storage until Sept. 15, when it reopens in Milwaukee. She will spend the summer in Hollywood, making two pictures and arranging two concert appearances at the Bowl. When the revue again gets under way, new material will be rehearsed and added gradually, with the idea of taking a new show to Broadway after the first of the year. "Rebecca" plans to invade New York in the fall, again with Bramwell Fletcher, Florence Reed, and Diana Barrymore in leading roles.

Arthur Maxwell, who sings Jim Kenyon of the Canadian Mounted in the Civic Opera house's revival of "Rose Marie," spent two summers as recreation leader at Yellowstone park long before he dreamed of warbling in front of synthetic Rockies on an opera stage. A six foot Texan from San Antonio, by way of the University of Texas, Mr. Maxwell got his start in light opera with the San Antonio Civic Opera company. He was here in 1942 with Muriel Angelus in "The Merry Widow" and last season appeared in the "Ziegfeld Follies."

Billie Lou Watt recently was given featured billing in "Kiss and Tell," an advance birthday present from George Abbott, the producer. Miss Watt, whose middle name might be Cinderella, has been in the professional theater about two months.

The Belfry Players, of Williams Bay, Wis., announce their 11th season of plays to open July 6 with "My Sister Eileen," under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. George Fred Rassweiler of Beloit, Wis. Subsequent plays will be "The Perfect Alibi," opening July 20; "Guest in the House," opening Aug. 10, and "Papa Is All," opening Aug. 24. Each play runs Thursday thru Sunday nights for two weeks. Tryouts for the opening play will be held this afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock at the theater on Geneva Lake.

John Sheehan of the Civic's "School for Brides" counts his current appearance as his third in a men's locker room. The others were in "Good News," when he played a college coach, and in "Follow Thru," which had its own 19th hole. A Californian who got his theater start with Walter Catlett in Oakland, Mr. Sheehan has spent the last few years in movies and radio.

Notes of Music and Musicians

By Albert Goldberg

Anna Grant Scott, soprano, will be presented in recital by the Treble Clef club at Kimball hall this afternoon at 3:30. Her program lists songs by Bach, Handel, Bellini, Debussy, Dalcroze, Strauss, and some Negro spirituals.

The American Symphony Orchestra league will conclude a two day meeting with an address by George Kuyper, manager of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, on "Essentials of Advertising and Publicity in Symphony Orchestra Management" at the Voigt and Geiger studios, 7th floor, 218 S. Wabash av., this afternoon at 3. The public is invited to attend. The American Symphony Orchestra league, of which Mrs. Leta Snow is president, is composed of representatives of minor symphony orchestras of the middle west.

The Metropolitan Opera association and the Alice M. Ditson fund of Columbia university have announced an award of $1,000 for an opera not over 75 minutes in length by a native or naturalized American citizen. The opera must be new and unpublished, the libretto must be in English, and the opera must be suitable for production at the Metropolitan. The winning work will be produced during the 1945-'46 season. Royalties and other rights will remain the property of the composer and he will not have to pay for the extraction of parts from the orchestral score. The composer must, however, submit a full orchestral as well as a piano vocal score. Manuscripts must be submitted not later than Sept. 1, 1945.

The 27th season of summer concerts by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony in the Lewisohn stadium, New York, will begin on June 19, with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting and Fritz Kreisler playing the Tschaikowsky violin concerto. Sir Thomas' programs will include the first New York performance of a symphony by Jerome Moross, remembered here as the composer of the ballet, "American Pattern," presented by Ruth Page at the Chicago Opera in 1937. Succeeding conductors for the stadium season will be Vladimir Golschmann, Eugene Goossens, Alexander Smallens, and Leonard Bernstein.

The National Opera season in Mexico City will open on Wednesday with "Tristan and Isolde" and will continue with "Don Pasquale," "L'Elisir d'Amore," "The Barber of Seville," "The Secret of Suzanne," "Don Giovanni," "L'Heure Espagnole," "La Forza del Destino," "La Boheme," "Rigoletto," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Pelléas and Mélisande," "Werther," and "Tsar Saltan." Conductors for the series will include Gaetano Merola, Jean Morel, Jascha Horenstein, Guido Picco, Carl Alwin, and Ignacio del Castill. Among the singers are Lily Pons, Stella Roman, Elisabeth Rethberg, Kurt Baum, Frederick Jagel, Salvatore Baccaloni, Jennie Tourel, Raoul Jobin, Armand Tokatyan, Ivan Petroff, and Roberto Silva.

The Blue Network has established a Creative Music fund to encourage composers to write streamlined compositions in "vest pocket" or "symphonette" form. Original compositions of from five to seven minutes in length and particularly adapted to the purposes of broadcasting are desired. Composers who already have accepted such commissions include Roy Harris, Igor Stravinsky, Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, and Paul Creston. Presentation of the new works will begin in July and will be featured on special programs built around them by Blue Network musical directors headed by Paul Whiteman.

Sir Thomas Beecham will direct a government sponsored Mozart festival in Mexico City opening on July 9. He will both produce and conduct the three operas to be presented—"The Magic Flute," "The Marriage of Figaro," and "Don Giovanni."

• • •

Portia White, 23 year old Canadian contralto, has been engaged to appear in the fifth annual American Negro Music festival to be held in Comiskey park the night of July 8. Miss White made her New York debut in Town Hall in March.

An annual competition to be known as the Ernest Bloch award has been established by the United Temple chorus of Long Island, N. Y., for the best new composition for women's voices based on, or related to, a text from the Old Testament. The award will be a prize of $150, publication by Carl Fischer, Inc., and public performance by the United Temple chorus. Detailed information may be had by addressing United Temple chorus.

Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, has received first rights to performance of orchestral excerpts from Prokofieff's new opera based on Tolstoy's "War and Peace," scheduled for production by the Metropolitan Opera next season. The opera has not yet had its Russian premiere.

BEN AMES WILLIAMS WRITES A MELODRAMA

Latest Opus Is Built on Thrill Lines

"LEAVE HER TO HEAVEN," by Ben Ames Williams. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

Ben Ames Williams, who wrote "The Strange Woman," and whose "Leave Her to Heaven" is the June choice of the Literary Guild, seems obsessed with unpleasant women. As a well known radio comedian says, "Leave us face it" — his heroines are as subtly horrid gals as you could hope to find between book covers and hope never to find in real life. Mr. Williams labels this one a jealous woman and declares "jealousy that seeks exclusive possession, that is the original sin."

He had planned to write seven novels about the seven deadly sins, Mr. Williams says. Five have been written. This one adds a dramatic sixth. "Melodramatic" would be a better word, for a series of events not easily credible is climaxed by a fantastic plan to win by and in death what a jealous woman had lost in life.

Mr. Williams says his novel is basically a psychological study "in which the most extreme dramatic situations found a place." What the book will seem to most readers will be, I think, half a psychological study and half a super-mystery tale in which the mystery of why the hero stood it as long as he did is as tense in the first part as the possible outcome of a trial for murder is in the last.

The tale quite naturally divides itself into those two halves — the pursuit, capture, enchantment and complete possession of the hero by a possessive woman and his violent awakening, sudden disenchantment and the subtle machinations of the jealous woman who wants so passionately to keep him hers that she is willing to die to do so.

To normal human beings Ellen will seem a pathological case even from the first pages. But her methods of getting what she wants when all she wants is to get her man and bind him to her are not too unlike the piracy of a good many young women they have encountered. The first half of the book is, except for the external trappings which Mr. Williams gives the tale — like an almost fatal flood—highly dramatic but not too fantastic. But when Ellen gets down to business in the elimination of obstacles to her complete possession of the hero, the reader's credulity gets a real workout.

It is probably because of that incredulity, rather than in spite of it, that the reader's eyes are glued to 400 and more pages. Melodrama piles up, tenseness increases instead of relaxing, and the reader's interest grows more taut as it shifts from persons to events. At least a fourth of the book is devoted to a moment by moment record of the trial for murder of an innocent person, a trial in which the circumstantial evidence is so damning that the innocent victim seems inextricably caught in the subtly wrought meshes of the jealous woman's hatred.

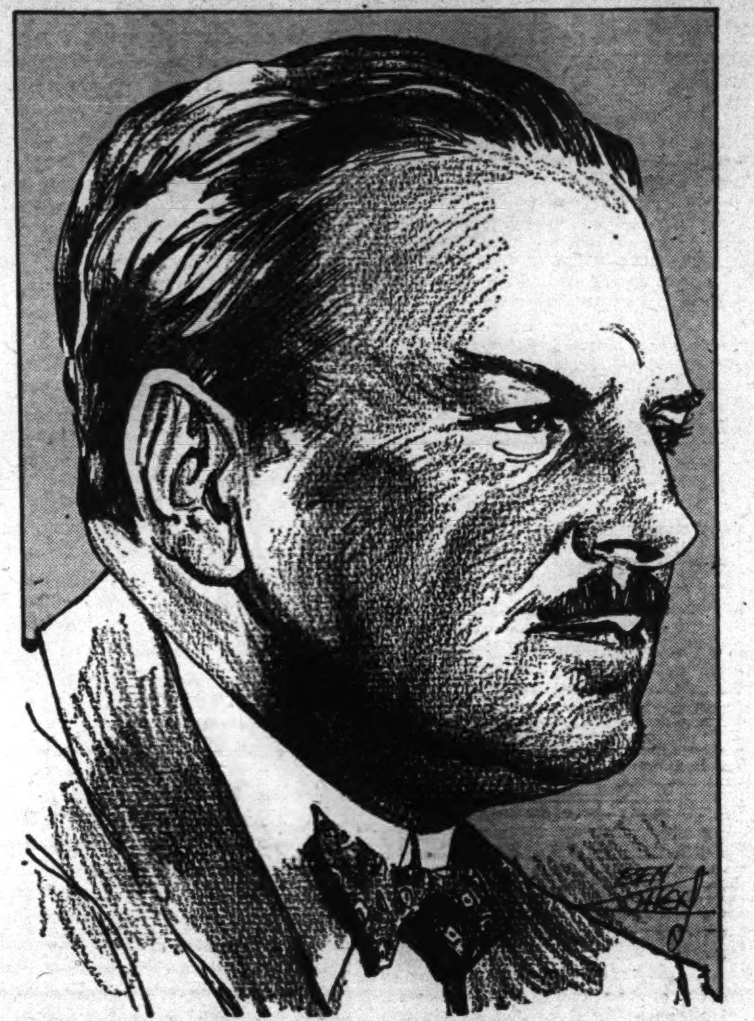
"Leave Her to Heaven" is, I fear, not a literary masterpiece. But that it is an absorbing story all of its readers will unquestionably agree. The probing of the methods of a gal who gets what she wants may open an eye or two sealed by infatuation, but few readers will believe in the later Ellen and they will, therefore, be able to concentrate on the excitements of the events of the tale without having their own emotions color their enjoyment of a plot which is a good deal of the thriller-diller.



Ben Ames Williams, whose novel, "Leave Her to Heaven," has just been published. The story, which has jealousy as its theme, is reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

D-Day Brings Unprecedented Demand for Books on War

By Frederic Babcock.

On the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918 there took place a historic event that permitted the world's soldiers and sailors to return to the pursuits of peace. Whereupon everybody began writing about the war that had just ended, and among the results were such classics as "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Three Soldiers," and "A Farewell to Arms."

On the sixth hour of the sixth day of the sixth month of 1944 there began another historic event that plunged hundreds of thousands of uniformed men once more into the maelstrom of continental Europe. Whereupon everybody rushed to the bookshops to get the latest printed word on the current war.

Chicago booksellers last week reported an unprecedented demand for atlases, geographies, books about warfare, books about France and Germany, books about recent history, books about the post-war world, and books about religion.

Nearly every bookstore in the middle west is featuring displays of volumes that, in one way or another, are concerned with what Carey Orr called, in a cartoon in last Wednesday's TRIBUNE, "history's most decisive hour." And every store, now well supplied, hopes it can remain that way for as long as the invasion lasts.

What is the public buying? Following are some of the recent, present, and prospective headliners:

"Atlas of Global Geography," "A War Atlas for Americans," "Rand-McNally's New Reference Book of Europe, "A Citizen's War Atlas."

"Germany Will Try It Again," by Sigrid Schultz; "How to Think About War and Peace," by Mortimer Adler; "The Road Back to Paris," by A. J. Liebling; "Der Fuehrer," by Konrad Heiden; "Time for Decision," by Sumner Welles; "Behind the Steel Wall," by Arvid Fredborg; "War Criminals and Punishment," by George Creel; "What to Do with Germany," by Louis Nizer; "Lend-Lease," by Edwin R. Stettinius Jr.; "The Curtain Rises," by Quentin Reynolds; "D-Day," by John Gunther; "Hitler's Generals," by W. E. Hart; "Hour of Triumph," by Maj. George Fielding Eliot; "Tell the Folks Back Home," by Sen. James M. Mead; "Back Door to Berlin," by Wes Gallagher; "Eisenhower, Man and Soldier," by Francis Trevelyan Miller; "The Gravediggers of France," by Pertinax.

"Presidential Agent," by Upton Sinclair; "Fair Stood the Wind for France," by H. E. Bates; "Avalanche," by Kay Boyle; "Arrival and Departure," by Arthur Koestler; "Here Is Your War," by Ernie Pyle; "What About Germany?" by Louis Lochner; "1-B Soldier," by Pvt. Joe Jones; "Captain Retread," by Capt. Donald Hough; "It's All Over But the Shooting," by Richard Powell; "The Human Comedy," by William Saroyan; "Happy Land," by MacKinlay Kantor; "Yesterday's Children," by La Mar Warrick; "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," by Dixon Wecter; "Miracle in the Rain," by Ben Hecht; "I Never Left Home," by Bob Hope.

"The Song of Bernadette," by Franz Werfel; "The Robe," by Lloyd C. Douglas; "The Screwtape Letters," by C. S. Lewis; "Blessed Are the Meek," by Zofia Kossak; "The Apostle," by Sholem Asch;

New Libel Action Brought Against Eastern Publisher

By Harry Hansen.

New York.

IF the aunts, uncles, and second cousins of authors are going to start filing suits for damages because they recognize themselves in new books and don't like their portraits, publishers will have to develop an entirely new method of defense. They have protected themselves in the past against possible recriminations by printing, at the front of a book, the statement that no character in the story is meant to represent any living person and that any such resemblance is merely a coincidence not intended by the author. They got this standard form from the English, who are constantly being hailed into court on charges of libel.

The situation, brought into the open by the suit against Betty Smith of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" by the lady who says she is the original of Sissie, is now dramatized anew by a suit against E. P. Dutton & Co. by the uncle of Woody Guthrie, author of "Bound for Glory." Woody's book, as you may remember, was a lively, explosive autobiography of a man who had worked his way across the United States, singing ballads and having exciting experiences. Woody, now in the merchant marine, is an extreme leftist and in the course of the book landed some blows on the "American Fascists" that he encountered. He also described some events in the life of his uncle, which that gentleman says are inaccurate.

Whatever the facts, he can't have suffered much in the eyes of the public, for the book had a small sale, despite a terrific charivari by the publicity bureaus of New York, including autographing parties, radio appearances and other devices for getting your eye. By the way, never be misled by the publicity ruckus in the east, or by the statement that so-and-so's book is now "on the best seller lists"—there are dozens of such lists and not one of them tells how many copies were actually sold in Kalamazoo and Twin Falls to make the best-seller grade.

For Ambitious Knot Tiers.

Customers are buying more books than ever before and publishers' hopes run high. Their principal worry is paper, but the house of Doubleday is said to have acquired a remarkable stock of it when it bought the Philadelphia publishing house of Blakiston & Co. Last year a number of publishers were issuing their books thru Blakiston for that very reason. I shall be interested in the response Doubleday gets to "The Ashley Book of Knots," which will contain 7,000 drawings and eight pages of half-tones showing 3,900 useful knots. The publisher tells booksellers: "It is a salable and profitable book you can stock for a specialized but eager market." I don't know how eager the general public is to learn how to tie 3,900 useful knots, but wait till you hear the rest—it's going to cost $7.50. There is one good book on knots on the market now and there is a sailor in my family who can tie more knots than I ever heard of and does so on her boat, but even she has no ambition to do rope tricks. Besides, where can you buy good rope nowadays?

Food for Worrying.

Leo Cherne, author of that pessimistic report on the state of the union, "The Rest of Your Life," is a slightly built young man of 32 who has made a great reputation and, some say, a fortune, by organizing the Research Institute of America. His particular trick is his ability to see how government and court decisions affect business and to present regular reports based on analyses of conditions. The house of Doubleday gave Cherne a send-off at 21 Club and I can testify that statisticians unbend as much as novelists and poets. One smiling huddle was composed of Leo Cherne, Leon Henderson, Wendell Willkie, and Milo Sutliffe. They didn't seem as worried as you will be when you finish reading Leo's book.

Publishers Entertain.

The house of William Morrow & Co. has moved to new quarters and celebrated the occasion by entertaining its friends, just as the movie people do. Authors, publishers, and booksellers paid their respects. I had a chat with Thayer Hobson, president of the house, which is named in honor of one of the best beloved publishers of the last few decades, William Morrow—long associated with the Frederick A. Stokes company—who died in the 1930s. Also with Alfred Harcourt and Mrs. Harcourt, who, as Ellen Knowles Ayres, was actively associated with Holt and Harcourt, Brace. Mr. Harcourt, now retired from the firm that bears his name, altho still a heavy investor in it, is associated with George S. Armstrong & Co., consulting engineers. John Erskine was in, so was Roderick L. Haig-Brown, author of that fine tale, "Return to the River," the story of the Chinook run; he is now in the Canadian army.

Business of Yodeling.

If, upon reading Ellin Berlin's first novel, "Land I Have Chosen," you find the characters aware of several songs by Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, and Jimmy McHugh, just put it down to the author's awareness of music in the air. It's a strange fact, but few authors are conscious, when writing, of the tremendous business of humming, yodeling, singing, and tooting that goes on all over the American continent. Of course authors are dealing primarily with essentials of behavior, such as murder, sudden death, alienation of the wife's affections, and the like, and they forget that even criminals hum. But how could Ellin Berlin fail to be aware of the musical atmosphere? The daughter of Clarence W. Mackay, she is the wife of Irving Berlin, tho that fact does not appear anywhere in the information on her book.

SOCIETY CLUBS TRAVEL
NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

D-Day Brings Back Thoughts of Normandy

By Thalia.

This week's momentous news has touched every home in Chicago. In those in whose windows a service flag proudly hangs, hearts have beaten faster and there has been a tightening of the tender ties of friendship and the belts of courage which hold us together. Many have prayed who never prayed before. Some to whom prayer has been a habit suddenly found it a necessity. To those who know well the Norman coast there is a special poignancy in the invasion news. And almost every traveler to France does know it, for he landed from America either at Le Havre or Cherbourg.

He can shut his eyes and see that lovely soft Norman landscape, unbelievably tender green in the spring, the simple country houses with stately iris growing on their roofs, the orchards looking as if some cosmic paint brush has swished the pink of the apple blossoms across the clear azure of the sky as one hurried by on the boat train to Paris.

Everyone who crossed the channel in misery on a rough day, or even in the luxury of the Golden Arrow and a state room for the 45 minutes between Calais and Dover must feel that the nine seasick pills and the two paper bags which are said to be part of every man's equipment are welcome impedimenta.

Probably most of the audience at the recent benefit given by the English Speaking Union for their war services activities fund had crossed that nervous channel. That evening, four days before D-day there was the long shadow of what was to happen. Wilfred Gallienne, British consul, spoke preceding the showing of the last picture which Leslie Howard directed, a filming of the recruiting, training, and war service of the A. F. S., the British equivalent of the American WAC. "This is it," he said is today's fighting man's crisp designation of the greatest tests. "This is it," a bomber tells his crew as the enemy fighters sweep in. "This is it" we hear were the words spoken by the colonel in charge of press relations when all of the newspaper correspondents were gathered for their assignments in the invasion.

Mr. Gallienne, who had just returned from England by plane, told the fashionable audience gathered in Orchestra hall that he had spent a great deal of time with the British and American army—"army," he emphasized to much applause "not armies"—and he had talked with a great many American soldiers and had brought messages to their families in Chicago. Those families he had invited to be his guests that evening. Twenty-five accepted, and waited afterward for the special messages which he brought them.

He told of seeing a squadron of heavy bombers come in, badly shot up. From the last of the planes, so perilously damaged that it had to be kept in the air until all the others had landed, lest it crash up on a runway and fill it with debris, an exhausted pilot emerged, soon staggered over to him, gave him an address and a message. Mr. Gallienne paused dramatically, and said, "Is Mary P. here? Mary P., that is why you have just received a bunch of yellow roses from your husband, with a message of love." The audience was tense. Mary P. did not answer. Perhaps her head was buried in the tender fragrance of her roses—and her heart.

The upper crust of Chicago's social pie was in the audience that night which was hot enough to roast, freehand, a side of beef to that special juicy redness which made Simpson's in London in the

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle.

Next Sunday, as you know, is Father's day. From all we can gather, it's to be a big one because this year we're peculiarly aware of the heaviness of fathers' burdens, whether they're fighting on the home or the battle front.

Now father is human enough to want to be considered a personable gent; he may not exhibit his vanity as women just naturally do, but you may be sure that he has it. Consider how fussy he is about his razor, his ties, the kind of shaving cream or soap that he uses. And did you ever notice that men are, as a rule, more fastidious and tidy than women are? That's the instinct for order and rightness, for keeping things shipshape—which is very strong in men.

It's that same instinct that makes them pleased as punch when you flatter their vanity by giving them toiletries. Not just a cake of the soap they use every day, or a tube of the same old shaving stuff, but exciting things, different things, that they might feel guilty about buying for themselves. Try him out with a good cologne, packaged for men, scented for masculine tastes.

Or, give him a whole set of shaving things—an after-shave lotion, for example, a shaving soap, a fine, flesh colored talc and perhaps a cologne too, all in the same fragrance.

If father is fighting the war far from home, you can send him, via the mails, something useful: Razor blades, mounted on a fine, light little folder that also has space for a written message wishing him love and luck and a happy Father's day.

Two Business Women Clubs Plan Meetings

By Irene Steyskal.

Delegates from two organizations of business women that have had long experience in setting successful procedures for international cooperation will gather in convention halls in Chicago within the next two weeks. Shutting doors for a brief time against the loud echoes of the war's crescendo, they will give quiet and concentrated thought to practical measures each may take for setting the world to rights again when peace comes.

For three days, from June 22 to 24, Zonta International, an organization of executives, will carry on its studies in the Edgewater Beach hotel. At Hotel Windermere next Saturday, business and professional women from Altrusa clubs in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana will assemble for a day's workshop conference. Groups of this area are united as a 5th district association of Altrusa International.

The name of Sigrid Schultz as a guest lecturer on the Zonta convention program carries more than usual interest at this historic hour of the allied invasion. The famous foreign correspondent, who for 16 years managed THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Central European News bureau in Berlin, will be the dinner speaker at the Zontians' closing session. Miss Schultz's talk will borrow title from her important book on Germany, "They'll Try It Again."

Miss Schultz was the only woman manager among the heads of large foreign news staffs in Europe and her dispatches hold high rank in contemporary journalism. The boldness and accuracy of news reports and her independent interpretation of events transpiring under the Nazi regime led to many an exciting brush with the Gestapo and the propaganda ministry and only by the narrowest margin did Miss Schultz escape expulsion from Germany during the months preceding the outbreak of the war.

Miss Schultz was born in Chicago, but her father, an internationally known painter, took his family to Europe before the first World war, when he was commissioned to paint a portrait of the king of Wuerttenberg, and there they remained. After private schools in Paris, Miss Schultz attended the Sorbonne and later the University of Berlin.

Miss Schultz remained in Germany during the entire period of the first World war and it was in Berlin, after the armistice, that she became acquainted with Richard Henry Little, noted war correspondent, who later became conductor of the TRIBUNE'S A Line o' Type or Two. She acted as his interpreter and assistant, and later she joined the foreign staff of this newspaper.

She covered Germany in the early days of the present struggle but illness compelled her to return to this country before our entry into the war.

The Zonta delegates also will hear Henry Bohn Hass. Mr. Hass is the noted research chemist, formerly of Purdue university, and his lecture will be on "War Research and Post-War Living." Miss Mabel Stoakley, a Zonta member from Toronto, Canada, where she heads an important advertising agency, is scheduled for a talk on post-war prospects for business women.

Serving as co-chairmen of the convention are Miss Bernice Dodge and Miss Elizabeth C. Krouse of Syracuse, N. Y., is president of Zonta International.

The planning of a more effective program of service, with particular emphasis on vocational guidance and international relations, is the primary objective of the Altrusa meeting, opening at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Some of the specific programs to be discussed are

Fresh from the Hills . . . . Basket Dinner

By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I COULD hardly believe my ears. The minister had said "This Easter service!" I had thought it was Palm Sunday! Down here in the Ozarks, where there are no first-of-the-month bills to pay, one can easily lose track of three or four days. But a whole week, that was terrible! Then I realized I was hearing a fine sermon there in that stone schoolhouse set amid blossoming peach orchards and steep hills. It was well prepared and well delivered by a young man with sandy gold hair. He stood before the teacher's desk made festive for Easter with a pink begonia plant in a tin can covered with Christmas paper, a mound of peach boughs thick with pink blossoms, and, in an enameled drinking cup, a bunch of Roman hyacinths blue as the minister's bright eyes.

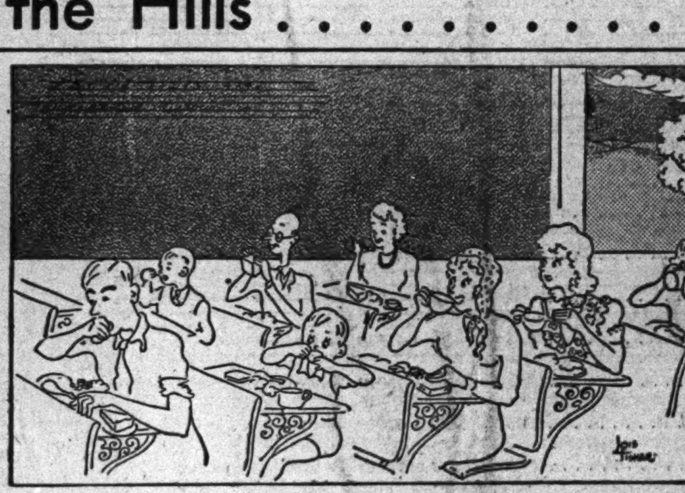
The talk adhered to no creed; it was as direct and universal as the preaching of the Great Teacher whose resurrection was the topic of the day. The minister stood with a limpbacked Bible in his left hand, obviously the desk was too low to hold it comfortably, and I wondered why all preachers didn't realize how much authority that simple gesture lent to their words.

The congregation numbered 35 or so. I could only guess at them, for the Jedge and I sat well forward with only a few within our view. One couple, a good looking man in leather jacket and a pretty woman in a dark coat and white fascinator, sat at the left. A man in dark business suit and a bareheaded woman in navy blue sat ahead of us. In the wide seat before the teacher's desk sat a small blond boy and two little dark haired girls in bright flowered dresses.



With well filled plates we slipped into the school seats and ate from the desks.

The sermon progressed. The minister proved his words with direct Biblical quotations. He was logical and easy to understand. The congregation gave him rapt attention, with none of the shuffling heard in greater congregations. When the minister reached Point 6, the two little girls became restless. The older one hoisted the younger on her lap, playing Mamma! The younger spoke a few soft words aloud. Instantly a slim young woman with dark hair came from the back of the room. Without a sound she hauled the older girl from her seat and literally propelled her to a place beside a red faced young man in a leather jacket, obviously Daddy. The child's face crumpled in a wailing expression, but no sound came from her. The young woman made a second trip to the front. She grasped the surprised little sister by the arm and drew her from her seat. Down the same aisle the youngster was gently but very, very firmly hauled, then plunked into an empty bench. Mamma sat down beside her. The small boy was beckoned to a seat in front of the navy blue couple. Peace descended. The sermon had not been halted during this pantomime.

I looked about the schoolhouse. The partition which divided it into two rooms was folded back to make one room about 30 feet long and 20 feet wide. A T-shaped section of stove pipe enabled the two stoves to use the same chimney. Now they stood back to back, redundancy in wrought iron, with a fire in only one. The blackboard was clean and black, with copybook letters in beautiful script in white on black at the top. The windows at the left had Venetian blinds and below them were pictures of boys flying kites and horses looking with surprise at barking dogs. In one corner a neat row or hooks lined up beneath pasted numbers, a forgotten plaid scarf hanging lonesomely on one. Farther back a crockery water container with a faucet at the bottom stood alongside a row of tin cups, each with its number above it. When the minister coughed, one of the cups was hastily filled and brought to him. I wondered if, on Monday, some youngster would say, like Baby Bear:

"Some one's been drinking out of my cup!"

At the close of the sermon the minister invited every one to stay for the basket dinner. The announcement was unnecessary. The grapevine had brought news of a dinner as far as Sunrise Mountain Farm, and we had come well prepared. Then the closing hymn was announced. Some one gave me a hymnbook and another was handed to the Jedge. A moment later a tall boy in a blue shirt with sleeves rolled above his elbows held another hymnbook out to us. But the Jedge and I shook our heads. He held the book out to the navy blue couple who put money on it. We realized we had shaken our heads at the collection box. We made far more noise in recalling the collection-taker-upper than the reproved little girls had made.

When the services were over, we discovered several friends in the congregation. Our neighbor, Rounder Smith, the "retired moonshiner," was there with his daughter, Faye. And if Hollywood has a prettier girl than Rounder's blonde, blue eyed 15 year old, I'd be surprised! Another friend was Earl Carr, who works in Bolerjack's grocery where we do our trading. With these for a start, we soon knew the entire congregation and were made welcome. When the pretty woman in the white fascinator was introduced, she said:

"I've been wanting to meet you, but I'm sorry it's in church!"

"O, O!" I said.

It developed that the lady is a transplanted Texan who loves Missouri so greatly she can't bear to hear me talk of the difficulty of making a living on these rocky hills. While I defended myself and my writings, other women of the congregation were bringing in their baskets of dinner. One woman drew a big aluminum kettle from an egg case and felt of it anxiously. Then she set it on the stove to warm. It seemed to be a good idea. Other kettles were placed beside it and the fire given a vigorous poke. Two of the men carried a table to the front and set it alongside the teacher's desk. In five minutes a typical Ozark feast was spread out for the congregation. Stewed chicken and gravy, thick with homemade noodles, baked homegrown navy beans, stewed lima beans, hickory nut cake, potato salad, deviled eggs, meat loaf, and three kinds of pie. Faye and I raced out to our car to bring in my basket —"boughten" cooked meat, cheese, sandwiches, coffee in thermos bottles, and a whipped cream cake which I had made between sunup and church time.

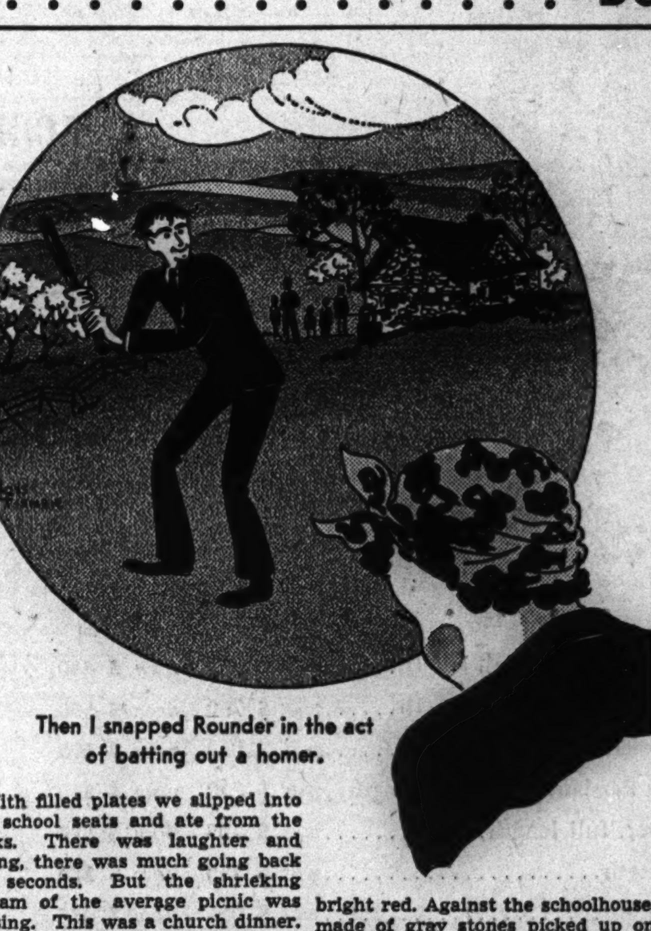
Every one gathered about the table to sing one verse of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus!" Then the minister returned thanks:

"Our heavenly Father, we are grateful that we may be gathered about this table like one big family, for wherever Thy children are, they are, indeed, members of one family. We thank Thee for this food. . . .

And so on to Amen.



Then I snapped Rounder in the act of batting out a homer.

With filled plates we slipped into the school seats and ate from the desks. There was laughter and joking, there was much going back for seconds. But the shrieking bedlam of the average picnic was missing. This was a church dinner.

During the cleaning up process I went outside and took color pictures of the young folks, lovely young Faye in her bright glossy flowered chintz dress, Mary Lou in blue, Barbara in red plaid, and the young mother of the little girls in bright red. Against the schoolhouse, made of gray stones picked up on near-by fields, and the blossoming orchard at the next farm, not to mention a gray stake-and-rider fence and azure skies, they made a lovely picture. Then I moved around the building to photograph the ball players, snapping Rounder in the act of batting out a homer, while the Jedge and the Texan's husband urged him on with Wrigley field hullabaloo.

Then we went inside for an hour of visiting, to talk about gardens and orchards and fence posts. Rounder's tall dark eyed cousin invited us over to her house, promising us even more of the Roman hyacinths than I had sneaked out of the enameled cup. But we had seen a creeping forest fire yon side of the river. That meant we must get home as soon as possible to prayerfully patrol our farm borders. The pretty Texan forgot her grudge and asked us over to Sunday dinner two weeks hence. I looked at the Jedge and found him and the Texan's husband in complete accord on politics so the invitation was gladly and promptly accepted.

Then it was time to go home. Kettles and baskets were being carried out to pick-ups and cars. A little girl who had walked two miles over rocky roads to church got into our car to ride part way home with us. Rounder had to see about a shoat some place so Faye, too, rode with us. Every one was saying it was even a nicer dinner than last Easter.

I suddenly remembered my lost week.

"You know," I said, "I didn't realize this is Easter. I thought it was Palm Sunday!"

"O, it is," said Rounder's cousin. "But our regular preaching day is the first Sunday in the month. When we found that Brother Goodrick couldn't change his dates to get here for the second Sunday, we just had our Easter today!"

D-Day Brings Back Thoughts of Normandy

old days the roast beef haven of all travelers.

Perhaps it was the heat that nearly caused an international incident. One of the city's shyest, most modest, gray haired matrons opened the door of Orchestra hall just as lusty strains pealed from the organ and the audience stood ready to resume community singing. She stood beside a young man who looked no more British than she did, while the organist played the transition chords to the joint music of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "God Save the King." She began singing in her usual unnoticeable pianissimo "My country 'tis . . ." when in roaring tones beside her she heard "God Save Our Gracious King." Whereupon as if from the depths of her subconscious there roared in a mezzo-soprano as brazen as a radio blues singer, "Sweet land of liberty." The young man gave her one murderous look and still lustily asking God to protect his noble king, walked away in disgust while she continued in a pealing voice to "let freedom ring."

It was just before Americans went to another war that one of Chicago's great clubs was organized, the Arts club, which is today known to every lover of art in America and probably to every inhabitant of the city's and the country's social registers.

It is unique in the distinction of being always in the vanguard in offering its members and the public the best in contemporary art, and is thus truly a living arts club. Its membership is so judiciously organized that there is a nice balance between the wealthy lay members who are privileged to bear the larger burden of the financial support of the club and those who must have achieved distinction in the creative arts before they are eligible to the professional membership.

The Arts club was organized in May, 1916, with Mrs. Robert McGann as president. Pleasant rooms in the Fine Arts building were occupied until a floor of a building in the 600 block on S. Michigan av. was taken by the club and remodeled by the late and always tenderly remembered Rue Winterbotham Carpenter [the first Mrs. John Alden Carpenter], who had become its president in 1918. Mrs. Carpenter had a genius for making four walls shelter and emanate beauty [she decorated the Casino club, too, so exquisitely that its decor has never been essentially altered since she designed it]. Even a bare, dark floor in an old house glowed under her ministrations. When the club moved to the second floor of the North Wrigley building in 1926, she gave it a more formally beautiful setting. When she died in 1931, after having been the club's president for 13 years, the choice of her successor was a momentous one. What proved the happiest possible solution was the election of Mrs. Charles Barnett Goodspeed.

Under her tireless guidance the club reached new peaks of service to the community and its members. She spent every summer abroad during those years, searching out exhibitions, concerts, lecturers, and gave her committees material from which they made up the club's distinguished programs. Mrs. Goodspeed resigned as president in 1940, after serving the club for eight years. During her presidency the club moved in 1936 to its present luxurious quarters in the South Wrigley building, overlooking the Chicago river, and she was directly responsible for its beautiful and distinguished decor.

She retained as much as possible of the atmosphere of the old rooms and used the lovely furniture and the works of art which had given it personality, and around them created one of the most distinctive and creative clubs in America.

To succeed Mrs. Goodspeed the directors elected Mrs. Alfred Shaw, who was Rue Winterbotham before her marriage, the niece and namesake of Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, who had given the club its earliest years of national importance. She carried on both the traditions of her aunt and of her own predecessor. Last week she was reëlected president by the board of directors, who also reëlected Mrs. William B. Hale 1st vice president, William D. Darrow 2d vice president, and W. Woodbridge Dickinson, treasurer. And to take the place of Mrs. Gustavus Swift, who has served the club devotedly, but who is leaving Chicago, the directors elected Mrs. Chauncey McCormick as secretary.

Miss Alice Roullier, who was chairman of the club's exhibition committee from 1918 until 1940, was hostess on Tuesday to a group of Chicago's elite at her galleries at a pre-view of an exhibit of the newest sculpture and drawing of Maude Phelps Hutchins, the wife of Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. Both Dr. and Mrs. Hutchins were present to receive the wholehearted congratulations of the breathlessly delighted first viewers. A most spectacular life sized bronze nude of a youth dominated the room, almost frightened one by its aliveness. It was as active as a breathing being, not passive like most sculpture. It is sensational and will undoubtedly cause even more comment than Mrs. Hutchins' life size bronze of a nude girl done a couple of years ago.

A beautiful terra cotta torso filled me with the cardinal sin of covetousness, as did one of the large drawings of a nude girl sleeping. They were both utterly alive, but also utterly at peace. The boy, as one eminent critic said, looked as if he were just stepping out to join those other boys who at this moment are leaving behind them their private worlds to make every man's world a decent place in which some day to be at peace.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

One of the cleverer versions of the little Dutch cap is that belonging to Mrs. Henry Rew Gross and fashioned of a shower of red, white, and blue stars. The cut out stars are of felt and of varied sizes, each artfully stitched along the edges and caught together at the points, the open work creating an altogether cooling and summery effect. It was at the recent tea and preview showing at the Art institute of the exhibition, "Embroidery and Its Uses," attended by members and guests of the institute's Needlework and Textile guild that the youthful Mrs. Gross was glimpsed nonchalantly carrying the patriotic concoction in a white gloved hand. She laughingly explained that she just had been talked into a new summer hair-do—a becoming sideswept arrangement—and the hat did not fit quite so snugly as before because of the vertical side roll into which her brown locks had been tucked. However, she was most obliging in modeling it for a small and admiring audience. Her dress was of dark blue summer silk pin striped in white, and she carried a drawstring pouch of white leather. In an interesting contrast to the cool and comfortable looking costumes worn by the guests were the heavily but exquisitely embroidered and brocaded materials of bygone days that were on display.

That the male of the species must have been a decidedly vain creature in years past was evidenced by the brocaded silken waistcoats on exhibit and the brightly embroidered suspenders. Occasioning a bit of amusement was the man's linen night cap, embroidered in gold silk and sequins, which was the gift of Mrs. Emily Crane. A nearby feminine ensemble consisting of a little wasp waisted tunic of the late 16th century, and matching cap, both laden with an intricate pattern of black silk embroidery, was lent by Mrs. Chauncey Borland, who came to the preview in a summery blue and white print dress and white flowered hat. She was assisted by Mrs. John Paul Welling in pouring at a long table centered with delphinium, Shasta daisies, bachelor buttons, sweet alyssum, and baby breath. Also glimpsed at the tea was Mrs. Edward Blake Blair, whose broad brimmed navy straw hat was rimmed in the same shade of grosgrain ribbon. She wore matching blue gloves and a blue print dress.

Making her first public appearance since recovering from chicken pox was Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., who with her husband dined at the Mayfair room the night that Tony DeMarco and his pretty new dancing partner — and bride — Sally, opened there. Mrs. Adams wears skull caps in all types and colors, and that night hers was of white crochet work with a couple of jewelled clips pinned to it, and her cool dancing frock was a short one of black and white print. Another guest was Miss Ellen Ryerson, whose dress was of white, printed sparsely in tiny black figures. Its sash fastened in back with black velvet ribbon, and her small white skull cap was trimmed in back with a black velvet bow. An attractive foursome was made up of Maj. and Mrs. Edgar L. Marston and Mrs. Marston's cousin, Mrs. Omar Fareed, and Dr. Fareed. Mrs. Marston's gown was of black and pink print, and in her dark hair was pinned a small white flower ornament. Mrs. Fareed, whose frock was sand colored, was hatless. Sally danced in black and white, the white gown as frothy, gay, and ingenue as a debutante's party frock, and the black one of lace, ultra-sophisticated and low cut. Also hatless was Mrs. J. Burton Foley, who wears her hair pulled smoothly up and back from her face, and whose nearly sleeveless dress was of gayly colored print. Mrs. Samuel A. Culbertson II. came to the Blackstone that same night in a simple black frock and a tiny black half-hat trimmed with white flowers.

On the House

If you desire to stop the "dusting" of your concrete basement floor and if you would like to change its bleak gray to some cheerful color, there's a treatment which will do both things. First you apply a hardener with a long handled brush or broom, and then in a couple of hours when hardener is dry you brush on a floor enamel. This enamel comes in four shades, tile red, club green, chestnut brown, and light gray. This treatment does more than just finish the surface of the floor. It penetrates and becomes an integral part of it. Useful also for a garage, terrace, porch, walk, or steps.

Here is a modern home help which you can give a room in the morning and use the room for guests if you like in the afternoon. It is a one hour drying paint which covers wallpaper, brick, concrete, wallboard, or plaster in one one coat. It comes in many lovely colors, mixes easily with water, and has a soft, velvety finish. Available also by manufacturers of this paint is a coater tool which makes the paint very easy to apply.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, June 7, 1896.

Dear Julia: It is a beautiful summer evening, after a warm day. We have had a late dinner and now are sitting in the library, talking of the interesting ceremonies we witnessed in Lincoln park this afternoon, when a statue of Benjamin Franklin given by Joseph Medill, editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was unveiled.

Benjamin Franklin.

From every walk of life people were present to hear the speeches, but printers were predominant in the crowd, for the statue was given to the Old Time Printers' association and by that body was given to the park. Will says there were probably present men who had set type on Long John Wentworth's Democrat. The hour announced for the exercises was 4 o'clock, and the sun was not so hot as it had been early in the day, while a gentle breeze came from the lake.

A platform had been erected to accommodate about 500 guests, but it was quite inadequate and the gentlemen gave it up to the ladies, and sat on the grass near-by. Brooks' 2d Regiment band played several pieces and then M. J. Carroll introduced Mr. Medill, after whose speech the statue was unveiled by Rene Bache, a great-great-great-grandson of Franklin. Being historically minded, you probably remember that Franklin's daughter, Sarah, married a man named Bache. Rene Bache is a newspaper man of some reputation in Washington, D. C. Conrad Kahler, president of the Old Time Printers' association, accepted the statue on behalf of the organization and then it was presented to the park. William Penn Nixon of the Chicago Inter-Ocean accepted it for the park board and an eloquent speech on Franklin was delivered by a young lawyer named H. D. Estabrook.

Mr. Medill said there are only three statues of Franklin in all America, and none at all in the west except this in Chicago. Philadelphia is just now erecting one to honor this greatest of its citizens. High time, I should say, for the City of Brotherly Love to recognize him.

H. R. Parks was the sculptor of the statue unveiled today and it seems to me he has done an excellent piece of work. The face is modeled from a painting of Franklin by the French artist, Duplessis, which is in the Metropolitan museum and the expression is benignant and shrewd. Mr. Medill said in his speech that if disembodied spirits know anything of what is going on in this mundane sphere, we may suppose that Dr. Franklin is pleased with what has been done in his honor on this June day and with the part taken by his lineal descendant in the ceremony.

The statue cost a great deal, about $20,000, I believe, but Mr. Medill is a wealthy man. I feel he deserves the tributes paid him in the speeches. Mr. Kahler likened him to Franklin himself, calling him a philosopher, statesman, and patriot and the paper which he has built up "a first class one." Never did Mr. Medill flinch from telling the truth to the public, said this old time printer. He added that Joseph Medill had always been helpful to printers, and Will says it's true that THE TRIBUNE is a paper they all like to work for.

Mr. Estabrook, chief orator, dwelt on Franklin's nobility of character and his effort to help others. His morning question of himself was: "What good shall I do today?" At night: "What good have I done today?" And each day's questions were accompanied by a remarkable prayer, according to the speaker, which closed with the words: "Accept my kind offices to Thy other children as the only return in my power for Thy continued favors to me."

Near me on the platform were Mrs. Robert S. McCormick [Mr. Medill's daughter]; Victor Lawson, another eminent Chicago editor; Marshall Field, and Judge Murray F. Tuley.

And now I hear Selma bringing up the lemonade which Will likes on these warm evenings, so I'll stop and enjoy it with him.

Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

WHO KNOWS THE WORDS OF THESE OLD SONGS?

Mrs. I. O. Gray, Racine, Wis., asks for the words of the following: "The Fair Fanny Moore," "The Jealous Lover," "The Six Kings' Daughters," "Amber Tresses Tied in Blue," "Roll On, Silver Moon," "With His Little Black Moustache," "The Yellow Rose of Texas."

THE WAGON ROAD.

Within my old forgotten depths, I hold
The secret joy and woe of other years:
Quaint sleigh ride songs; hushed tales that sweethearts told;
The hum of horse drawn plows; and mourners' tears.

Like me, those echoes faded, sure but slow,
When Progress lured the world with speed and ease;
For I, the "wagon road of long ago,"
Lie here unseen, but rich in memories.

Open Show of Water Colors and Drawings

By Eleanor Jewett.

The 55th annual American exhibition of water colors and drawings opened last Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It is not a particularly American show, rather is it a medley of foreign isms waxed and polished, proven innocuous, and arranged as a background for what we may expect next. There are a great many fantastic conceptions scattered thru the galleries; ghosts and spirits rub elbows with bats and prowling beasts; a number of these are well done and a number poorly done, most are frivolous in tone.

John Whorf has the outstanding water color, "The Gale," a stunning ocean beach, wind-swept and drenched in spray and rain, with people, boats, and weather combining to point the frenzy of a tearing Atlantic gale. Zsissly has the outstanding gouache in "Gouache by Zsissly," a still life painted with meticulous care. Note the various items which make up his arrangement [particularly the nets] and the texture and authenticity of objects he obtains. Zsissly seems in this effort to be following fairly closely the pattern set by his brother, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, whose still life compositions for years have been the wonder of the painting world. In the current show Ivan Le Lorraine Albright offers the picture with the wierdest title: "A Guttated Self-Portrait—A Nutant Lycanthrope Seen in Glass." The self-portrait, to our eyes, is not as successful a likeness as was his "After Dinner Speaker" of a few seasons back.

Jon Corbino has a one man show in a little room which his large drawings fill adequately. Corbino has an affection for figures on the grand scale. Horses, bulls, men, women, and children, each and all are robust in type, almost Homeric in their proportions. He offers several dramatic arrangements of horsemen, a fine portrait of a bull, and a number of figure drawings, one of which, "Mother and Child Walking," was given the Watson F. Blair purchase prize of $600.

Eugene Berman is another artist to be given a more or less comprehensive showing. His work is largely for the stage and is rather on the thin side. William Fett, the third man to be given a separate showing, concocts abstract designs in vivid colors. The results are similar to that obtained in finger painting when the paper is folded and pressed to make the picture. Knowledge of his titles leaves the visitor more at sea as to his goal than does ignorance of them.

"Still Life with Mirror" by Karl Zerbe was given the Watson F. Blair purchase prize of $400 and "Within These Ancient Walls" by Raymond Breinin was given the William H. Tuthill prize of $100.

The exhibit will continue to August 20.

Five new sculptures by Maude Phelps Hutchins were placed on view last Tuesday at the Albert Roullier Galleries, 410 S. Michigan av. The most important work is the "Life Size Figure of Boy," a completely nude figure in bronze. Mrs. Hutchins has done a notable piece of modeling, particularly in the legs, the throat, and head. The hands, we thought, are at odds with the face and, with the pose, it is a bit amazing that the shoulder blades are not flatter. Whether or not the lack of trunks is important depends upon one's point of view; artistically the figure is complete as it stands.

The two little portrait heads in terra cotta, "Louise Benton" and "Helen Benton," are perfectly charming. They are fresh, amusing and fascinating. A "Male Torso" and "Female Torso" in terra cotta complete the exhibit which will continue in the gallery thru June.

The Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors opened its annual water color exhibition last Wednesday in the Chicago Galleries, 215 N. Michigan av. It is a delightful show and will continue to July 1.

• • •

The Women Artists salon will open next Saturday in the Findlay galleries. This is usually one of the most intriguing of our early summer shows and hopes are high that the coming exhibit will not be disappointing. It will hang to July 1.

• • •

A stunning exhibition of paintings of sailing ships by Frank Vining Smith is current at the Findlay galleries, Michigan av. at Van Buren st. Frank Vining Smith is noted for his marines so it is with a curious satisfaction that we find in the present show several remarkably fine paintings of flying birds—white swans flying low over dunes in one case, and ducks turning to settle over low water and reeds in the other paintings. They are beautifully handled. The paintings of ships are fine and decorative. Mr. Smith is a painter who never fails his audience.

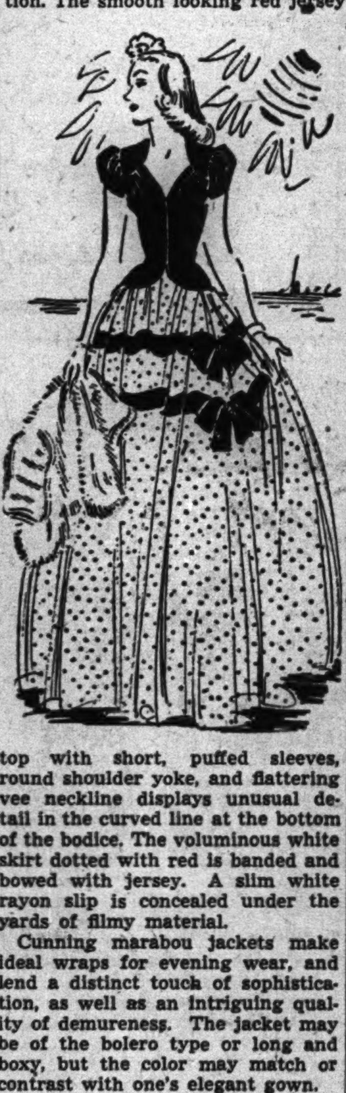
Fashions

By Angela

Junior proms and fluffy dance dresses are synonymous with the month of June. Light, billowy frocks created for formal summer dancing are of the frothiest kind of materials. Marquisette, organdie, net, lace, and dotted Swiss are but a few of the cottons preferred. Full skirts and fitted bodices are prescribed style for the junior miss. The color range forms a beautiful rainbow with white a logical contender.



One striking dance frock is this jersey and dotted Swiss combination. The smooth looking red jersey top with short, puffed sleeves, round shoulder yoke, and flattering vee neckline displays unusual detail in the curved line at the bottom of the bodice. The voluminous white skirt dotted with red is banded and bowed with jersey. A slim white rayon slip is concealed under the yards of filmy material.

Cunning marabou jackets make ideal wraps for evening wear, and lend a distinct touch of sophistication, as well as an intriguing quality of demureness. The jacket may be of the bolero type or long and boxy, but the color may match or contrast with one's elegant gown.

Girl's Summer Camp to Open on June 26th

Mrs. Wm. T. Grable
[Koehne Photo.]

Camp rolls on their shoulders, within the next few weeks thousands of healthy American youngsters will be plunging knee deep in June again among sand dunes, gold and glistening under the sun, and pleasant beaches unmarred by the black disfigurement of barbed wire barriers; into woodlands where gunfire never has shattered the melodious line of leaf and bird song.

One of the larger vacation spots in this region which is being groomed to receive its first young guests is the Camp Fire Girls' Camp Nawakwa, a 16 acre tract of grassy meadow, ravines, woods, and beach bordering the west shore of Lake Michigan. Nawakwa is some five miles south of South Haven, Mich. Coming by bus, the first camping contingent from the Chicago area will arrive Monday, June 26.

Children's camps are receiving full coöperation from OPA officials in Chicago and elsewhere, for they are regarded as important factors in war time juvenile protective programs, and altho private cars are not available for transportation, bus accommodations are being provided, and adequate food stocks also are assured.

Enrollment for camp already has reached a figure that is double the registration for any recent season, Mrs. William T. Grable, executive secretary of the Chicago Camp Fire council, reports. It is no part of the camping plan, Mrs. Grable explains, to remove the girls from the realities of these days, but every effort will be made to open avenues to them for participation in war service.

Those who wish to do so again may help on near-by farms where the shortage of workers is acute in the harvesting of fruit and vegetables—work which many were eager to undertake last season as a means of earning money for war stamps.

Special handcraft projects are planned for the making of toys, clothing and other war relief articles for orphans of the allied nations and other homeless children of Europe. All these plans are integrated with the customary pattern of camp living, with its hikes, picnics, horseback riding, swimming, archery and other sports, music, impromptu theatricals, and campcraft.

Camp Nawakwa will be shared this year with girls who are not Camp Fire members. The three groupings, old settlers, pioneers, and bluebirds, are according to age, and the camp admits girls from 7 to 18. Groups are quartered in screened cottages, each having an adult counselor, and the camp staff includes a registered nurse.

This is Camp Nawakwa's 31st season. The program for the Chicago area campers is under the supervision of the Chicago council, of which Mrs. C. H. Compere of Evanston is president.

Lake Geneva Social Season to Open Later

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS. Nature is early at Lake Geneva this year with midsummer heat and lush gardens, but the social season, if any, is late. Because of war activities and lack of servants, most of the big houses show no signs of life while in others there is only sporadic week-ending. Dr. and Mrs. William F. Petersen, always among the first to open their home at Black Point, will not be in residence this year until after they return from the east, where they have gone to attend the wedding of their oldest son, Edward S. Petersen, to Miss Zoe Bakeeff. The wedding is to take place today at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bakeeff in Weston, Mass.

Mrs. Petersen's brother, Ernst C. Schmidt, who is joint owner of the estate, has been spending week-ends at the family's Black Point farm while rounding out the summer program for the Lake Geneva Yacht club, of which he is secretary. The yacht club will open June 24 with a Cub boat race. The tentative racing schedule for the season includes races for the Cubs every Saturday morning, with "C" boat races in the afternoon, and "E" boat classics Sunday mornings. So far there are only three "A" boat events planned, and these will come at the end of the season. The oldest of the inland lakes' regattas, the Sheridan Cup race, will be held the last Sunday in August, the Charles H. Wacker trophy race the following Sunday, and the Dr. Otto Schmidt Memorial race last of the season instead of opening the season as in other years. The late Dr. Schmidt always is referred to as the father of yacht racing at Lake Geneva.

The club refused to accept the resignation of its fleet captain, the former Barbara Wakeley, when she became the bride recently of Edward A. Wheeler. Mrs. Wheeler now has a new home in Wilmette and offered her resignation, inasmuch as her husband's duties may prevent more than brief Sunday excursions to the lake.

Mrs. Wheeler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley, have been spending week-ends at Wakewood, their summer home at Lake Geneva, and will open the house permanently within the next fortnight.

Mrs. Wakeley is program chairman of the Lake Geneva Garden club. The club had its annual spring luncheon at the Woman's Athletic club last week, with Mrs. Olaf Nelson Tevander as hostess, and will not have another meeting until July 12. An interesting event on the club's calendar is the mid-August picnic at Butternuts, the Lake Geneva estate of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. The house at Butternuts, a gem of the Victorian period, and one of the first summer mansions at the lake, was built by the late Nathaniel K. Fairbank in 1875. War gardening is the theme of the garden club again this year, and, instead of the annual flower show, the members will exhibit their best garden edibles at the Lake Geneva Country club in September.

Because of the shortage of canned goods, many of the club's best gardeners are growing special vegetable to help out the menus at Holliday Home, a summer camp for underprivileged city children. The home is supported by the Lake Geneva Fresh Air association, to which most of the garden club members belong. Mrs. Wakeley has put in extra beds of tomatoes for the home, and Miss Edith Kohlsaat and her sister, Mrs. Harry L. Wells, also are devoting additional space in their garden for this purpose. Generous supplies of vegetables and fruits, as well as gorgeous blooms, always are forthcoming for the home from the fine gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay. Mrs. Madlener and Mrs. Bartholomay are sisters and their estates at the lake adjoin.

Casa del Sueno, summer home of Mrs. Philip T. Starck, will not be opened for several weeks, as Mrs. Starck is at Hot Springs, Ark. Her younger son Brent [yeoman 3d class], now in the amphibious forces. Mrs. Brent Starck, the former Ann O'Brien, and her mother, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Brien, recently returned from a month's stay in Boston where Mr. Starck has been stationed. Ann will spend the summer at Lake Geneva with her mother and sisters, Mary and Eileen. Another sister, Clare, and her husband, Frederick Crane Gartz, will join the family most week-ends.

If the old farm saying, "corn knee high by the Fourth of July," means anything, bumper crops are assured, as corn in the vicinity of Lake Geneva was knee high by the first of June, especially at Highland Farm, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, of North State pkwy. Highland Farm is on the Hebron road not far from Two Oaks, the James N. Rawleighs' farm, and was formerly the estate of the late John H. Alcock. Mrs. Alcock now has an adjoining farm.

One of the most interesting old farms at Lake Geneva from an historical viewpoint, is The Maples, originally the property of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Chandler and part of their Ceylon Court estate. Ceylon Court was later owned by the John J. Mitchells. The Maples now belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Marion Isbell of Chicago. While the Isbells have modernized the attractive old rambling house somewhat, the producing part of the farm has undergone real streamlining. Even the Mitchell pampered prize stock that once graced the barns at The Maples would marvel at the scientific care bestowed upon the "beasties" now in residence.

ENGAGED

Miss Katherine Rose Reise's engagement to Staff Sgt. George A. Maier of the army air forces has been announced by her mother, Mrs. K. M. Reise of Oak Park. Sgt. Maier, son of Mrs. Rose Margaret Maier of Bradley pl., is stationed at Chanute field, Ill.

Office Supervisors Plan Anniversary Party on Thursday

Mrs. Virginia K. Upham.
[Hartough Photo.]

The featured attraction at the anniversary party of the Chicago Office Supervisors' club, to be given at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the Marine room of Martin's restaurant, 120 S. La Salle st., will be a book talk by Mrs. Virginia Kendall Upham. Mrs. Upham, a graduate of the University of Chicago who conducts several study groups which meet for monthly book discussions, will review Mildred Walker's novel, "Winter Wheat."

"Convention Echoes" will be the program theme for another business woman's group, the Credit Women's Club of Chicago, which will meet for a dinner session Tuesday evening at the Stevens building restaurant. The program, concerned with reports of the National Credit War congress held last month in Omaha, Neb., is designed particularly for the benefit of those members who were unable to attend the national assembly.

Chicago Hadassah to Aid in Fifth War Loan Drive

Plans for participation in the fifth war loan drive will be presented at the annual meeting of Chicago chapter of Hadassah Tuesday afternoon at the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Bertha Read Riss, war bond chairman, and members of her committee will sell bonds at the gathering, and Ann Birk Kuper and Isabel Ryan of the United States treasury department will be program participants. Officers for the ensuing season will be elected during the business session, at which Mrs. James H. Olshan will preside.

A Mother Tells How She Deals with Child, 15

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I want to share with you a letter on the subject we were talking recently, a subject of much concern to boys and girls, and to their parents, too. I hope those mothers and fathers who have been forbidding their children the normal fun that their youth entitles them to will read what this mother has to say:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have been reading your column for some years and have virtually raised my children from day to day on your splendid advice.

"I've always wanted to write to you but never got around to it. I was 'burned up' about the parents of the 16 year old girl you wrote about in 'Attitude of Her Parents Hurts Teen-Age Girl.'

"It just hurts me to think that parents could be so selfish with their children when they forget they were young once and perhaps had boy companions. Or, maybe their parents again were selfish, and they are trying to raise their children the same way.

"My daughter will be 15 next month, and she has been interested in boys for two years. Since Christmas she has been going to a movie with a boy on Sunday afternoons. Before she started to go out, her dad and I told her that when a boy asked her, she could go, and I also told her that she could expect the boys to want to play 'wink,' 'postoffice,' and a few other kissing games. She comes home from parties at a reasonable hour and tells her dad and me all about the games, and we laugh and joke about it and kid her.

"I've told her all about life, within reason of course, all a girl her age should know. And also preach religion to her and tell her just what is considered wrong and what isn't. She never misses Bible class and church, and I think religion helps a lot.

"My daughter is at a girl's birthday party tonight. I know all of them, as they are from the church and, of course, the boys are there. If she comes home at 12 [which I doubt], I don't scold, as I know she would have been home sooner if the party had broken up earlier. I know the girl's parents, but not personally. I'm not a bit worried and I don't scold her, just tease her a little. We have so much fun together.

"I feel young again since my daughter 'confessed' her admiration for a certain young boy. For a confirmation gift on Palm Sunday he gave her a gift his parents had helped him select. I had a long talk with his mother, and she approves of his taking my daughter to a movie and walking her home after choir practice. I'm glad they approve, too. It makes everything so pleasant for those youngsters.

"My folks never let me come to them with my troubles or joys, and that's why I'm the opposite with my two children. I cried myself to sleep when I was a young girl, even as early as 10, and when my dad said, 'What's the matter?' I'd say, 'I don't know. I just want to be alone and cry it out.'

"Please don't think that I'm spoiling her by giving in to her and that she hasn't any faults, because she has faults and does get scolded and punished by having some privileges taken away, but she's careful not to do it the second time when she has to miss a party or a movie for punishment. But I never punish her for staying out late, and she's sensible and understanding, and listens to my explanations. She knows she can bring boys and girls home any time.

"My heart aches for these young children who write in for your advice. If their parents only knew that they are 'throwing' their daughters in the arms of the boys by their resentment! They might not be so proud of them in later years if they become worldlings and drink and steal, and so forth. They can't blame the children for that, only themselves. If my children go wrong later on, I'll only blame myself, and feel that I must have slipped up somewhere as a parent.

NEEDED MORE THAN EVER BEFORE
Carefree Days in MICHIGAN

Rest and Recreation
in West MICHIGAN

Within a short distance of large centers of population, West Michigan becomes, this summer—more than ever before—the logical and ideal locality for a vacation.

And, with pressure of work upon everyone increasing, and cares and responsibilities constantly growing—rest, relaxation and recreation for millions is needed this summer—more than ever before.

Gas restrictions, tire shortage and crowded transportation conditions will little bother those who have the great vacationland of West Michigan at their very doorstep. Indeed, they are lucky, and truly fortunate!

Get Yourself a Real Rest—Do a Better Job!

Whether you desire a week-end of fishing, a couple of days of complete relaxation away from the heat and the hustle of the city, or can get away from your work for a longer period, West Michigan will supply what you want and need.

Thousands of lakes, with cottage-lined shores, invite you. Miles of clean sandy beaches beckon. Picturesque forests, sports, pastimes and recreation galore—and in addition West Michigan's sunny-cool days and refreshing nights with steady Western breezes and water-washed air—will make your escape from worry and care a memorable experience.

Yes, Michigan folk are lucky—but those who live nearby can share its pleasures and better fit themselves in health and renewed vigor for the work yet to be done.

Fruit Canning Procedure Is Given Today

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Fruit canning is much less of a problem than vegetable canning. Fruits have natural acids to help in their preservation, and to discourage the growth of spoilage organisms. They may be canned in the boiling water bath instead of the pressure cooker, whose high temperatures are unkind to fruits.

Probably you've canned fruits by the open kettle method in the past. So have I and both of us have had pretty good results. But in war time, the open kettle method must be discarded, for there is more of a chance for imperfect sterilization with this method than there is in the boiling water bath process, and in addition, the vitamin loss by open kettle canning is considerable.

This is the procedure used with most fruits:

1. The fruit is carefully washed, pared, pitted, or prepared in other ways for canning.

2. It is cooked for several minutes to shrink it and start the processing. Cooking often is done in the fruit's own juice, in the case of berries or cherries, or it may be done in a light, medium, or heavy sirup.

3. The fruit is then packed into hot, sterilized jars, and boiling juice or sirup is added to cover every piece of fruit. Half an inch of head space must be allowed in each jar.

4. The jars are sealed or partly sealed, depending upon the type of closure used, and are immersed carefully in the boiling water bath.

5. Time in the boiling water varies from 5 minutes, for juices and berries, to 20 minutes for peaches. Water must be boiling for the entire time.

As for oven canning, that has been abandoned for good. The national safety council now adds its voice to the chorus of authorities crying out against oven canning of any food. "Dangerous even for experienced canners and under normal conditions, this method proved to be especially hazardous last year because of war time changes in equipment, and inexperience," says the council.

A large, deep container is needed to make a boiling water bath. Many farm women use wash boilers. A pressure cooker may be used if the lid is not clamped down. There should be room enough for water to boil up over the tops of the jars, and so that an inch of space separates one jar from another. Some kind of rack to keep the jars off the bottom of the kettle must be arranged. The boiling water bath should be covered, if possible, for a cover helps keep the water boiling constantly.

So many new problems are facing home canners now that war time equipment has taken the place of the old familiar types of canners, jars, and lids, that my staff found it necessary to write a completely new canning booklet this year. It's called "War Time Canning Guide," and describes in detail new and approved canning methods. Specific information on use of the available types of jars and closures is included, as well as recipes for canning the various kinds of fruits, vegetables, meats, and poultry.

To obtain "War Time Canning Guide," send 7 cents [preferably in stamps] to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

In addition, my staff will be happy to answer canning questions either by mail or telephone. We have tried to keep up with the newest developments in canning and to get at the root of many of the difficulties which homemakers faced last year.

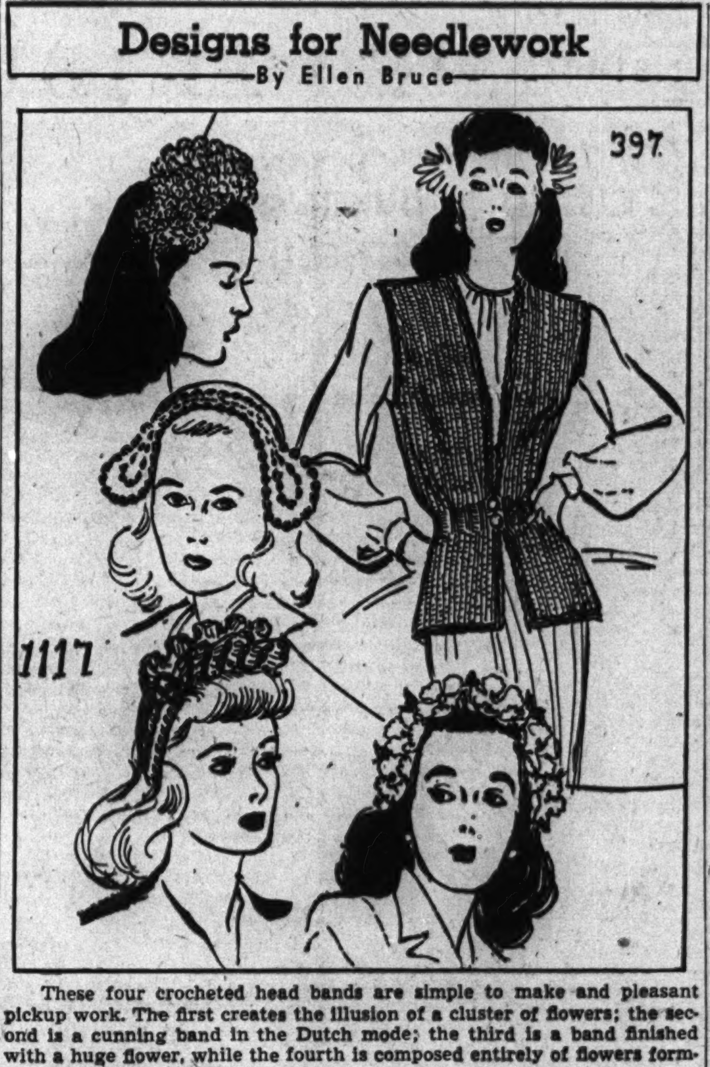
Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



These four crocheted head bands are simple to make and pleasant pickup work. The first creates the illusion of a cluster of flowers; the second is a cunning band in the Dutch mode; the third is a band finished with a huge flower, while the fourth is composed entirely of flowers forming a band or half hat.

This sleeveless jacket is high style for summer comfort. Sleeveless, it is knitted in a stockinette stitch with a band of ribbing at the waistline. Started now it will see valuable service thru summer and on into fall and winter.

For instructions in crocheting the four head bands, No. 1117, and instructions for knitting the sleeveless sweater, No. 397, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, FOR EACH PATTERN, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago, Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York City.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

"I don't see how I could have guessed that East had a singleton club," South said plaintively, just after losing his vulnerable game contract. "Of course if you expect me to be a mind reader . . ."

North rudely interrupted to say that he didn't expect any such thing, and then he proceeded to point out why South should have known, not guessed, the right play in the club suit. This was the deal:

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠10 9 5
♥10 6 2
♦A Q 7
♣K 9 6 5

WEST
♠8 7 4 2
♥J
♦8 6 5
♣Q 8 4 3 2

EAST
♥A K Q 9 5 4
♦10 9 4 2
♣10

SOUTH
♠A K Q J
♥8 7 3
♦K J 3
♣A J 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 heart	Double	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding was somewhat strange but the final contract was the best available to North-South.

West led his singleton heart; East overtook and cashed two more rounds while West discarded a low diamond and a low club. East now exited with a trump. Declarer drew the necessary four rounds, cashed his diamonds, noting West's second club discard, then laid down the club king before leading toward the ace-jack. East showed out, and the contract was doomed.

As North, perhaps with a little too much bitterness, pointed out, declarer had been given an exact count on East's distribution. East had shown six hearts, two spades, four diamonds [when West failed on the third round of diamonds], and consequently could have only one club. Perhaps it wasn't an honor, but in that case declarer would be helpless. The right play was to lead the club ace, and when the ten appeared from East, to push the club jack thru for the established finesse.

Cool Your Rooms with Cotton Rugs

By Edith Weigle.

Summer is an ideal time to go in for the new cotton floor coverings. Many women like to have heavy wool rugs cleaned and stored in moth preventatives till fall. Then, if there are too many in the family to make it practical to leave the floors bare use a few small cotton rugs, or an attractive large oval. You'll find the room will seem just twice as cool as before.

Among the prettiest of the smaller rugs are ones of looped fringe that have a soft, shaggy effect. They're made in the following sizes: 22 by 36 inches; 24 by 48 inches, and 30 by 56 inches, and the smallest size costs around $6.

From California come extremely good looking, reversible, washable cotton rugs that have a raised effect due to the way in which they are loomed. They combine light blue with white, the irregular strips of blue being slightly raised from the white background; vivid green and white; shell pink and white; azure and white; Dubonnet and white, and beige and white.

Less expensive are a group of new cotton rugs that use lots of bright, bold colors in haphazard fashion. Called rancho rugs, they are unusually strong and tough wearing, and they shrink only about 1 per cent each way in washing.

If you are hunting for rugs of odd size or for a small room don't miss the handsome collection of Mexican serape floor coverings. They are all wool and no two have the same design. An especially beautiful one, that measures 5 by 8 feet, is pale gray with a deep border patterned in a geometric design that resembles the Greek key and combine beige, black, and white with very pale blue.

Some have white centers, most effective; others, black or gray. There is a vivid blue with a dash of scarlet and white, and dark gray with much the same effect. Prices are around $30 for the 5 by 8 size.

For the summer bedroom there are charming, old-fashioned hooked rugs in delicate, pastel colors. They are made by hand in our southern states and are not at all expensive.

For further information about the items described by Miss Weigle telephone the Tribune Public Service office, Sup. 0200, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Father's Day Gift Ideas Are Listed Today

By Rea Seeger.

Once a year, officially at least, father emerges from comparative oblivion. With vivid memories of a life with father, most of us go into this business of gift buying for that gentleman on his day with complete gusto. Remembering how he catered to all our particular whims and caprices, especially if we are the feminine part of the family, it's not difficult now to recall his special delights—invariably the stuff he did without so that we could be indulged. It's easy to find the books, the games, and the crunchy candy, but it takes a bit more imagination, plus some expert research work, to get the right information about luxury accessories, the things he'd never buy for himself, no matter how longingly he viewed the newest masculine loot for the well dressed man.

If he fancies himself as a country gentleman, see the new gnarled apple wood "sticks"—sturdy, good looking canes to flourish as he does the supervisor act over the weekends. Or, if he is somewhat of a man about town, check the crook handled sticks of polished wood or the malaccas of honey color.

There's no excuse for not knowing the sock size, and just what he would crave in the way of giddy or controled colors. There are eye catching anklets in bold Scotch plaids; some new cable stitch cotton and rayon mixtures in two tone shades; dress parade lisles with side clox, and all kinds of white, yellow, and beige cotton ribbed socks for week-end sports and golf games. Still available are supplies of soft resilient all-wools in snowy white for tennis.

The array of summer sleeping pajamas is something to bring out any lurking Indian or savage in the man. There are printed, air conditioned rayon mixtures with big, bold jungle prints; some super cool looking affairs of cotton in pale blue, green, and dubonnet with big designs in white, and some of the time honored awning stripes, as well as the smaller stripes. Summer lounging robes and beach coats also flaunt lively prints against such effective background colors as green, beige, bright blue, maroon, and dark brown.

The necktie or cravat situation is well covered. Intriguing new bow ties are the 1944 version of the old time collar button model. These are ingenious mechanical whizzes. Stunning silks in all kinds of colors and patterns are tied and fitted with an inner device of metal that doubles for a collar pin for neatness and as a safe anchorage for the bow, for there is no neckband. They must be seen to be believed. However, experts have tried them out and are jubilant over the ease, sanity, and speed with which they can be secured to the collars.

Fabulously sheer Swiss mull handkerchiefs are new and colorfully effective in the breast pocket of a sports shirt or jacket, or used as a summer muffler. The prints are unusually different. Sports shirts are plentiful, the newest being of boldly checked thin wool. Extra sweaters and cardigans always click; so do fabric gloves, cuff links, tie clips, an order of a favorite tobacco mixture to be delivered once a month. The only thing really missing this year are the "cave man" shorts with the elastic bands, and sleeping pajamas with that comfortable elasticized band.

Sketched are gift suggestions for Dad's day, culled from collections in the smartest men's shops. For further information call Superior 0200.

Paradichlorobenzine.

Paradichlorobenzine crystals are an effective moth preventive; in an ordinary trunk, about ½ pound of crystals lasts about two months; after that it must be replenished.

Boldly checked, thin wool shirt is available in several color combinations. • 4 . . . Argyle socks feature bright colors. • 5 . . . Cable stitch, two tone cotton socks. • 6 . . . Peoria, Ill. [To the Home Owners' Editor]—We've just moved into a rented house and are bothered with weeds and grass which grow in our gravel driveway. A friend advised lime in water but this didn't help. J. L.

Chicago. [To the Home Owners' Editor]: Can you give me directions on how to remove printing from cloth sacks so that they can be used for household articles, etc? J. B.

American Farm.

Ages upon ages of growth and change, geologic and organic, put richness and "sound tilth" into vast areas of the soil of the great wilderness that has become our middle west.

Our forefathers and foremothers came into that wilderness bringing civilization the while, by dint of hard work and Spartan self-denial, they wrested homes from it. Year by year the homes grew. Men and women gradually set their roots deep in the soil and acquired for it a feeling of trusteeship, passing it on from generation to generation thru the century; taking from it what they needed, but giving to it more than they took.

The bell in the little red schoolhouse called the children and the children's children; and there were instilled into their minds and souls those qualities that make the American farmer with a feeling for his land as solid in his country's crises as one of his own granite boulders.

One of many such is Riverside farm, Mount Pleasant, Ia.; and our guest contributor today is the young mother in that home, Mrs. Joe Virden. Listen—

"June is the month for weddings and I think of a bride of a hundred years ago, an anniversary we will celebrate in a few weeks, when Great-grandmother Short came by horseback to Mount Pleasant, to live in a log cabin. . . . Years bring changes and the 'north 40' has served as a landing field for our airplane, and a bit of rail fence is the only outward sign of yesterday, but the bride of a hundred years ago still lives in our hearts.

Grandmother's Legacy.

Altho I never knew her sunny smile,
The face where Time has laid a gentle hand:
The treasures that she left will reconcile,
For I can look on these and understand
The things that she would like to have me know.
Her taste for line and color I can see
In dishes from that cabin long ago,
A walnut chest of sweet simplicity.
I know that she loved beauty for she left
A coverlet of simple, rare design;
The quilts and linens that she made with deft,
Small hands show patience that the years enshrine;
This lends itself to true biography
The beauty she left as a legacy.

"I think Grandmother must have smiled much as I do now at our 4 year old Curtis [fifth generation at Riverside], when her children reached the—

At least a Solomon—
To answer all the questions
Posed by my little son.
Why does everything cost money?
Where does thunder go?
Why can't airplanes fly to Heaven?
Where is Tokyo?

I've taught him economics,
The law of gravity.
I've told him all that I recall
From my geography;
I explain in simple language,
I measure each reply,
I tell him everything I know
And still he asks me—WHY?

Lazy Rain.

The rain comes down lazily
As if reluctant to take its leave from Heaven;
It drops slowly on the windowpane,
Too tired to run in rivulets.
Fog slumps over and wraps the earth
In dirty cotton, trying to make night of day.
Cows stand in huddled groups;
Birds snuggle their heads beneath their wings;
The cat stretches itself before the fireplace,
When rain comes down from Heaven
As if reluctant to leave the sky.

The beginning of Riverside farm [now 400 acres] was 73 acres bought by Joseph Short more than 100 years ago. He cut and hewed the timber framing the barn [1853] still in use. Among treasured papers is his first tax receipt, 1841, for 77 cents.
